Wreckage Of Pan American Plane Located 50 Miles From Monrovia

By William C. Neven

Monrovia, Liberia, June 23. — (AP) — The wreckage of the Pan American Constellation, Great Republic, was located in the sodden jungle 50 miles from Monrovia today, more than 24 hours after it was due here with 40 passengers and crewmen.

(A Pan American spokesman in New York said the plane was "completely disintegrated and there are no survivors." He said it hit near the top of a 1,500-foot hill near the village of Sanoghie.

(Earlier reports from Dakar, French West Africa, said rescue pilots saw what they believed were signs of life and dropped food and medical supplies at the scene.

(Informants at Idlewild Airport in New York, said they believed "rescue operations will be carried on by parachute" as the nearest trail was about four miles from the crash.

(The wreckage was located by a Pan-America DC-4 and two other planes engaged in search operations. A Pan American spokesman said they "identified the remains of flight 151.")

The missing plane crashed at ToToTa, 14 miles from a Lutheran mission and about 40 miles northeast of here.

Doctors and nurses in ambulances and jeeps were dispatched at once but it was expected they would take four hours to reach the location from Monrovia.

It was understood a parachute team was expected soon from the United States to assist in rescue operations.

The big four - engined Constellation on a flight from Johannesburg, South Africa, to New York, was to have picked up 13 passengers at Roberts Field here for various destinations.

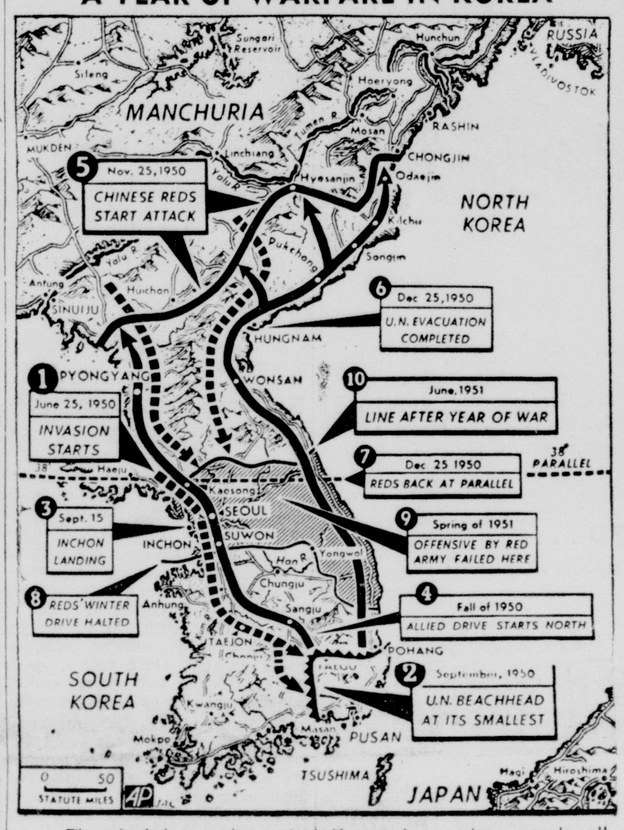

The plane left Accra, on the African gold coast 800 miles to the east, and reported at 2:45 a.m. yesterday that it expected to land here in half an hour.

No further word was heard from it.

Its mere location in the midst of the African rainy season was almost miraculous. The plane had enough fuel for approximately another 11 hours of flying when it disappeared, enough to have flown 3,000 miles over dense crocodile-in-

A YEAR OF WARFARE IN KOREA

The shaded area in central Korea shows where nearly all ground fighting has taken place in 1951. Boxes indicate the high spots of geographical developments since the war broke out June 25, 1950. In contrast to the early months of the war, ground fighting since last January has been confined to mid-Korea. The Allies are now holding just north of the controversial 38th Parallel In earlier stages, ground action swung first to the far southern end of Korea, then almost to Manchuria. (AP Wirephoto Map).

Proposal By Russian Delegate Is First Red Peace Bid For Korea Not Hedged With Conditions Favorable To Chinese

By A. I. Goldberg

United Nations, N. Y., June 23. — (AP) — Russia's Jacob A. Malik urged in a nationwide broadcast today that both sides in Korea confer on a cease-fire, armistice and withdrawal of troops from the 38th parallel as the first step to peace.

The U. S. State Department in Washington quickly declared the United States is ready to do its share if Malik's statement "is more than propaganda."

The Russian United Nations delegates' proposal was the first Russian peace bid for Korea not hedged with conditions favorable to Red China.

It was met with wary skepticism in Washington, but with every indication it will get serious study. Several key congressmen, citing caution necessary to appraise any Russian statement, said Malik's new proposal must be considered carefully. Distribution of President Truman's speech Monday on the Korean anniversary was held up for possible revision in the light of the Malik statement.

News of the broadcast reached European capitals late at night on a weekend and there was a dearth of comment from their statesmen.

U. N. delegation heads here reserved comment until they could get guidance from their capitals.

The State Department stand, reached after a discussion that indirectly included high government heads, is known to be that cease-fire machinery for Korea has always existed in the U. N.

Governor Long Makes Laws Out Of 32 Bills

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

Baton Rouge, La., June 23. — (AP) — Louisiana got 32 new laws today, signed and sealed by Gov. Earl K. Long and, in most cases, effective immediately.

The governor's $16,150,600 program galloped through the legislature in what observers clocked as near-record time. Approval was lopsided — mostly unanimous both in senate and house.

But the course lay through a parliamentary woods teeming with a sharpshooting, though under - manned, foe. In the senate, especially, sniping was so heavy that opposition leaders still question the legality of all 32 bills.

In recess Friday, both houses meet June 29 to adjourn the special session, Governor Long's fifth since he took office in 1948.

As emergency legislation, most of the program is law today, the others, of a minor "local" nature, are effective 20 days after final adjournment.

The two key measures — $14,000,000 for highways and a narcotics act re-armed to blast peddlers who sell dope to minors— had completely different careers.

PEACH FESTIVAL OPENS WEDNESDAY

Two-Day Event To Be Conducted By Louisiana Growers At Ruston

Ruston, La. June 23—(special)—The big day for Louisiana peach growers is drawing near. On Wednesday and Thursday, June 27-28, their association will sponsor the first peach festival ever to be held in Louisiana. It will be known as the first annual Louisiana peach festival, and the way things are shaping up, the various festival committees think it's going to be a great event for everybody.

Already, more than 20 of the nicest little peaches in the state have had their names entered in the "queen dixie gem" and "princess peach" contests.

These contests, which will initiate the festival program, will be held in Howard auditorium on the

FBI Nabs Man Wanted For Slaying Wife

Washington, June 23. —(AP)—The FBI announced tonight it had captured Thomas James Holden, one-time train robber sought for the killing of his wife and her two brothers. He was taken into custody near Beverton, Ore.

Holden was on the federal bureau of investigation's list of the ten most wanted criminals.

The capture was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI.

Hoover said FBI agents have been seeking Holden since late in 1949 on charges of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for the three murders in Chicago. Holden was released from Leavenworth, (Kans.) federal prison in 1947.

Hoover said an alert citizen spotted Holden's picture as part of a feature story appearing in the Portland Oregonian.

The citizen recognized Holden as a plasterer at Beaverton, who used the name John Roger McCullough.

Hoover praised the citizen for his alertness in promptly notifying the FBI. He also praised the press for carrying a story about Holden.

The citizen was not identified by the FBI.

The FBI said Holden was a former associate of Alvin Karpis.

British Permit Tongays To Stay

London, June 23—(AP)—Britain relaxed her ban against the swimming Tongay family today, with permission for them to remain here as ordinary tourists for a month.

But any swimming done by five-year-old Bubba Tongay and his four-year-old sister, Cathy, is to be strictly in private, under a ruling of the home office.

The Chief Immigration Officer at London ariport said there will be no public exhibitions, whether for cash or for fun.

Russell Tongay of Miami, Fla., flew to Britain with his family yesterday with the aim of making a tour of British holiday camps for children and then sending Bubba and Cathy on a swim of the 19-mile-wide English channel in August. Protests had arisen on both sides of the Atlantic.

MRS. LARCHE'S RITES ARRANGED

Funeral Of Well Known Resident To Be Held In Presbyterian Church

Mrs. Louise Flournoy Larche, member of an old time, prominent Monroe family, and widow of Lucien N. Larche, died at an early hour Saturday morning in a local hospital. She had been seriously ill for several months. The funeral will be conducted in the Presbyterian church here this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Ernest D. Holoway, pastor, will officiate and interment will be in the family plot in Hasley cemetery. The body will remain in the Peters Funeral home until 3:45 p. m. today when it will be taken to the church.

Mrs. Larche was a native of Ouachita parish, being born in old Trenton nearly eighty - one years ago and had spent her entire life in this parish. She was the youngest child of A. Francis Flournoy and Louisa Lockett Flournoy. She received early education in Mary Baldwin Seminary, Staunton, Va. and in 1895 was married to Mr. Larche, a prosperous West Monroe merchant. After their home in West Monroe was destroyed by fire, Mr. and Mrs. Larche removed to Monroe and established their home at 216 Arkansas avenue, where Mrs. Larche continued to live after the death of her husband in February 1935.

She was an active member of the Presbyterian church, where she taught the women's Bible class for years and for a long

Red Trial Of Groesz Is Continuing

By Endre Marton

Budapest, Hungary, June 23—(AP)—The nine defendants in the conspiracy trial of Archbishop Joszef Groesz completed their eager confessions in a Communist court today with admissions that included sex transgressions, murder, black market dealings and crime.

Istvan Cserriar, 40-year-old general of the Roman Catholic Paulician order, perhaps out-did all others in his detailed self - blame, though Ferenc Vecer, a Paulician prior, was a close second.

"We had mistresses and homosexuality was common among the monks," Cserriar volunteered.

Vecer told how he himself killed a Russian soldier who came to his monastery in December, 1944.

"I knocked him down, took away his pistol and shot him in the head," he confessed calmly. "Then I took lunch."

Archbishop Groesz and his eight co-defendants went on trial yester-

SEGREGATION IN SOUTH IS UPHELD

Federal Court Rules Separation Of Whites, Negroes Is Lawful

Charleston, S. C., June 23.—(AP)—A special three - judge federal court today upheld Negro segregation in the south's schools. But it reminded southern states that they must provide equal facilities for Negroes.

The court, in a far-reaching 2 to 1 decision, held that "segregation of the races in the public schools" is a matter of legislative policy for the several states, with which the federal courts are powerless to interfere."

But the court ordered Negro schools made equal to those for whites and told school officials to report back within six months on what they are doing about it.

The decision came in a case involving rural Clarendon county in South Carolina. The case, heard here on May 29, was initiated by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in a broadside assault on the south's traditional system of segregated schools.

The court majority, consisting of Circuit Judge John J. Parker and District Judge George Bell Timmerman, wrote that "in a country with a great expanse of territory with peoples of widely differing customs and ideas, local self government in local matters is essential to the peace and happiness of the people in the several communities as well as to strength and unity of the country as a whole."

District Judge J. Waties Waring, the jurist who opened South Carolina's Democratic party primaries to Negroes, took a far

Spaniard First To Circle Globe

London, June 23.—(AP)—Britain and Spain engaged in an historical argument today. Spain won. This is how it was:

The Festival of Britain displayed a picture of Sir Francis Drake, captioned "Sir Francis Drake was the first captain to sail 'round the world."

Sir Francis set sail in 1577 with five ships from these shores and most British history books say he was the first to circumnavigate the globe. But Spanish newspapers said Ferdinand Magellan set out in 1519 and although he was killed in the Philippines during the voyage, a lieutenant—Juan Sebastian Del Cano—completed the globe-circling trip.

The British embassy in Madrid passed this on to the foreign office. The foreign office told the festival people. Now the caption under Drake's picture reads:

"Sir Francis Drake was the first English captain to sail 'round the world."

Allies Attack, Try To Upset Expected Drive

By Don Huth

Tokyo, Sunday, June 24. — (AP) — Bayonet wielding Allied infantrymen Saturday attacked and routed enemy troops on the central front in an attempt to upset a suspected third Communist spring offensive expected at any hour.

In bitter and bloody fighting, Allied troops cleared an area south of Pyonggang, 29 miles north of parallel 38. Pyonggang stands at the tip of the old Red "iron triangle" massing area.

One hill changed hands five times before Communist screening forces were driving northward.

The Allies dug in after clearing all Reds from these approaches to Pyonggang, from which Communists forces might strike southward.

As the United Nations command sought to keep the Reds off balance, Jacob Malik, Russia's chief delegate to the U. N. at New York, made a bid for a cease-fire conference. He suggested an armistice and withdrawal of troops from DeSiard street is unique in many regards. One of these is in the fact that one will find four rival shoestores jamb up together and all are leasing their stores from the same landlord. Isnt this one for Ripley? The stores are Butler's, Holloway & Thompson, The Toggery, and Baker's. All seem to get along in complete harmony which is also quite unusual and praiseworthy.

Farther down the street one reads on the window in the seven hundred block "Federal Hardware and Clothing." Gosh that must require quite a diversified stock in trade at all times."

And way out DeSiard one can rent a piece of property. A sign on a vacant lot says "FOR RENT."

Two In Serious Condition Here

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Loftin, injured here late Friday afternoon, were reported in serious but not critical condition last night by their attending physician.

Other than a general statement on the husband's injuries Friday night, no details of the injuries were obtainable from the St. Francis Sanitarium last night.

Loftin, 41, was said to have sustained severe lacerations on the forehead and scalp.

The couple, from Mobile, Ala., were hurt when their car crashed into a Tendercrust Bakery Co. truck and turned over two miles east of Monroe on U. S. Highway 80.

WINNSBORO WATER SHORTAGE ENDED

Mayor Mulhearn Withdraws "State Of Emergency" Proclamation

Winnsboro, La., June 23. —(Special)—A drastic three-day water shortage which Wednesday forced Winnsboro into a state of emergency ended here today when Mayor Robert F. Mulhearn withdrew his proclamation.

Last Wednesday one of two sources of the city water supply developed a serious leak and the mayor issued a proclamation banning wasteful use of water.

The defective well was repaired at 3 p.m. by the Louisiana Well Company of Monroe, and both wells are producing above their normal 600 gallon per minute capacity.

Mayor Mulhearn, who had earlier enforced the emergency proclamation with an automatic $25 fine for offenders, said today that he wished to express appreciation for the "100 per cent cooperation" of residents.

Although streets were patrolled steadily, not a single offender was reported, Mayor Mulhearn said.

A third well may be installed to prevent another occurrence similar to the uncomfortable situation which residents are glad has ended.

Mayor Mulhearn said an engineer would be employed to study

Controls Get Last Backing From Truman

Washington, June 23—(AP)—President Truman, opening a last-ditch fight to save his economic controls program, warned congress today that "a relaxed, soft attitude is an invitation to disaster." tees an invitation to disaster."

The president sent an urgent letter to capitol hill leaders as congress prepared to open debate next week on controls bills which deny the president many of the powers he says are imperative to fight inflation.

For one thing, the bills prepared by Senate and House Banking Committee would take away much of price administrator Michael V. DiSalle's authority to roll back the price of meat and other articles.

A majority of the Senate Banking Committee issued a report today declaring that the threat of rollbacks hanging over business was discouraging production and hence was inflationary.

The defense production act, under which present price-wage controls and other restrictions are

MAJ. H. MCCLARY GIVEN PROMOTION

Military Science Professor At N. L. S. C. Will Leave Soon For Cairo

Maj. Hugh W. McClary, assistant professor of military science and tactics at Northeast Louisiana State, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel. The announcement was made by J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff, U. S. army.

The promotion closely followed McClary's assignment to Cairo, Egypt, where he will be with the army attache service as assistant attache.

The new post, considered a highly selective one, entails duties under supervision of the state department at the American Embassy.

As additional preparation for the Cairo assignment, Colonel McClary will attend the strategic intelligence school in Washington, D. C. The school, opening August 17 for a four-month period, is designed for army attache and state department personnel who are going for the first time on foreign missions.

The program will orient these men in the situations which they will find in the specific countries where they are to work.

Following the special training, Colonel McClary will have a twenty-day delay before reporting to the New York embarkation. He will be accompanied to Egypt by his wife, the former Maud S. Gill

Ott Enters Into Governor's Race

Baton Rouge, La., June 23.—(AP)—A fifth candidate, Lionel Ott, joined the race for governor of Louisiana today, and Judge Carlos Spaht—reported backed by Gov. Earl Long—has made up his mind to run, sources close to him said.

Ott, New Orleans finance commissioner, tied to his formal announcement in that city an attack on the "strange political deal" in which U. S. Rep. Hale Boggs became a candidate supported by Sen. Russell Long and former Gov. Sam Jones.

If Spaht, 44-year-old Baton Rouge district judge, enters the arena, he has been assured not only of Governor Long's backing, but that of his administration leaders too, reliable sources said today.

This latest development unfolded while administration leaders were here for Governor Long's fifth special session of the legislature.

Gov. Dewey Plans Trip To Korean Front, Other Eastern Countries

Albany, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will visit the Korean war front and other Far Eastern trouble spots next month—with the approval of President Truman.

Dewey announced the tour today and, despite his assertion that no domestic politics were involved, there was immediate speculation that he might be trying to project himself into the 1952 presidential picture.

The twice-defeated Republican nominee for president said he would visit Chiang Kai-Shek, leader of the Chinese Nationalist government, in Formosa, and military and political leaders of other non-Communist nations in the Pacific area. Dewey has been a leading advocate of strong U. S. support for Chiang's government.

Asked whether he were setting out to do spade work for the creation of a Pacific treaty of defense, similar to the north Atlantic pact, Dewey replied at a news conference:

"I will not engage in any diplomatic forays."

However, the countries he will visit are the very ones that conceivably might be welded into a military defense alliance. They include Japan, Korea, the Philippines, French Indo-China, Malaya, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand.

In Washington a White House spokesman said the trip had President Truman's approval and had been arranged by the state department. The department promised Dewey every possible assistance.

However, Dewey said he would not be representing the government or "anyone else."

"I am traveling at my own expense," he said.

Dewey will fly from New York

News-Star-World Will Give Bonds For Essays

Residents of 16 northeast Louisiana parishes will have an opportunity to win defense bonds as prizes for their essays on the history and growth of their home parishes to be published in the Mid-Century edition of the Monroe Morning World, Wilson Ewing, editor and publisher, announced Saturday.

The winning writer in each of the 16 parishes will receive a $50 defense bond and second place winner will receive a $25 bond. Eligible to submit essays for judging are residents of East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Lincoln, Ouachita, Richland, Madison, Tensas, Franklin, Caldwell, Winn, Jackson, LaSalle, Concordia and Catahoula parishes.

The winning essay will be published in the big Mid-Century edition which will roll off the presses early in August. The deadline for mailing essays is July 20, and envelopes containing essays must bear a postmark of that or an earlier date. Essays should be mailed to Mid - Century Editor, News-Star — World, Monroe, La.

A total of $1,200 in defense bonds will be awarded.

The essays should not be of unusual length, with 750 or 1,000 words sufficing. Facts given should be a brief history, including the founding and growth of the parish, population, industries, agricultural development, roads, recreational facilities, hospitals, schools and other pertinent facts which you consider important.

Essays should be mailed as soon as possible. Essays will not be returned unless requested by the writer, and if so, a stamped self-addressed envelope must be enclosed.

Remember, every resident of the 16 parishes listed is eligible to compete for the prizes.

Cedric Foster, Commentator, To Be Tallulah Guest

C. Of C. Banquet To Be Attended By Monroe Delegation

Tallulah, La., June 23.—(Special)—The Madison parish Chamber of Commerce is all set for its biggest and best annual banquet and installation of officers on Friday night, June 29 at Community Club when Cedric Foster, noted speaker heard over more than 350 radio stations, nationwide, will be the principal speaker. Monroe will send a large delegation of business men from the Chamber of Commerce of the Twin Cities. Officers to be installed will be as follows:

President, J. W. Love; vice-president, E. H. Lancaster, Jr.; George Kimbrough, treasurer and J. E. Neill, Jr., general membership chairman. Mrs. Agatha L. Sevier, is secretary-manager.

Cedric Foster, who became the first day-time news commentator on the Mutual network in October, 1940 and who went to Boston with the Yankee network to continue his broadcasts over Mutual in 1941, was not satisfied to remain at his desk during the second world war.

He spent three months in the battle zones of the Pacific as an accredited correspondent to both the army and the navy. He was aboard an aircraft carrier as it rode to action off Japan and was with three infantry divisions in the Philippines. On this trip he covered more than forty thousand miles by plane, carrier and jeep, visiting Pearl Harbor, Eniweltok, Saipan, Guam, Kwajalem and many of the Philippine islands.

He is regarded as one of the best newspapermen anywhere. His splendid training, supported by extensive travel (three quarters of a million miles in 30 years) has equipped him to handle intelligently one of the most difficult assignments, which is seeing the news behind the news and telling the public what is there.

Following the close of World War Two, Foster has traveled more than 200,000 miles in the United States and Europe. In the past year he has made three trips to Europe, one of 26 thousand miles and it included Finland, Greece, Spain, Germany, France, Britain, the Low Countries, Switzerland, Sweden and Denmark. While in Greece he was received by King Paul. With his introductions from the state department, Mr. Foster was received in all embassies and met military leaders in all countries through the courtesy of the United States army.

On this extensive trip to Europe, he flew with General James Van Fleet to the front lines in the closing phases of the guerilla war in the Vitsi and Grammos campaigns, ending up on the back of a mule at Mt. Tsarno on the Greek-Albanian border. In Finland, Mr. Foster broadcast from Helsinki when the Communists were trying to take over the country through a nationwide strike.

In February, 1950, Mr. Foster flew to Britain to cover the British elections with his programs originating in London for a two-week period. Then he was soon in Berlin covering Communist Youth March for another two-week period. In the last two years his broadcasts have originated from almost all European capitals.

Foster is a native New Englander of ten generations.

Mr. Foster has received many honors, among them a decoration from the Greek government, rank of commander, Royal Order of Phoenix, for services rendered the Greek people during the Greek-Italian war. He is an honoroary doctor of literature from Southwestern University; has honorary doctorate of laws from John Brown University, Siloam Springs, Ark. He is an honorary Texas Ranger; honorary colonel on the staff of J. Strom Thurmond, governor of South Carolina; and an honorary colonel on the staff of former Governor Ellis Arnall, of Georgia.

Church Groups In United Service

Three downtown church groups at 7:30 p.m. tonight will meet in the First Methodist Church. The other two churches in the group are the First Christian and the First Presbyterian.

Rev. Ernest Duncan Holloway, Presbyterian pastor, will deliver the sermon.

All three congregations are urged to attend in as large numbers as possible.

Union Parish To Have Sing Meet

The Union parish singing convention will meet in the high school auditorium at Marion on Sunday at 10 a.m.

The best trained singers of the parish as well as other noted vocalists and quarters will participate in the program.

All singers and lovers of gospel music are invited.

Mrs. Freeman Returns From Rubenstein School

Mrs. Mary Freeman, of Silverstein's, has recently returned from Helena Rubenstein's Beauty school in New Orleans.

Mrs. Freeman says she will be pleased to show her customers Helena Rubenstein's sensational new Stay-Liong lipstick. It is said to have all the beautiful things women love in a lipstick—lustre, creaminess, glowing, vivid colors, plus indelibility. Its new smear-proof formula keeps it on until removed.

She also has glamour news about skin care, is ready to advise on particular skin and make-up problems. She invites women of Monroe to learn from her how to bring out their beauty potentialities.

OTT ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY

New Orleans Commissioner Tosses Hat In Governor's Race

New Orleans, June 23.—(AP)—New Orleans Finance Commissioner Lionel G. Ott today announced his candidacy for governor of Louisiana.

In a prepared statement, the 56-year-old former state senator challenged "The strange political deal" by which, he said, Rep. T. Hale Boggs (D.-La.) entered the governor's race with the support of U. S. Senator Russell Long (D.-La.)

Ott's statement follows:

"For many months I have given serious consideration to entering the gubernatorial primary to be held in January 1952, and I now formally announce that I am a candidate for governor of the state of Louisiana in the election to be held at the time.

"I had intended delaying my announcement until some time next month, as is customary, but I feel that I should make my position clear in view of the strange political deal that caused Mr. Boggs to enter the race as the personal candidate of Mr. Russell Long, the junior senator from Louisiana, and, sad to note, Mr. Sam Jones, the former standard bearer of the good government forces in the state.

Senator Long pleads loudly for an end of political feuding in Louisiana but apparently his only solution for the ending of bitter political partisanship is to take unto himself the right to dictatorially name all of the state officers for the next four years without even consulting the people whose efforts elected him to high office. It is easily apparent that the real motives behind this brazen political deal are: '(a) to set up complete dictatorship in the state (b) to insure that the Louisiana delegation to the 1952 national Democratic convention will be pledged to support the program of President Harry Truman.

However, the real issue in the coming gubernatorial campaign are the institution of sound and economical government, preservation of state's rights, and the defeat of the trend toward socialism.

It shall be my purpose to carry out the fight to preserve our kind of government to every city, town and hamlet throughout the state. I shall conduct a campaign free of personalities but will neither ask nor give any quarter in the fight for the principles which I deem to be the paramount issue.

Training Center For Wacs Planned

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—A new, permanent training center for the Womens Army Corps, to ost in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, has been proposed to congress by Secretary of Defense Marshall.

It would be located at Fort McClellan, near Anniston, Ala., and would replace the present WAC training center at Camp Lee, Va.

The WACs, oldest of the women's military services, now have a strength of about 10,000. They plan to have three times that many by the middle of next year.

Some 1,800 recruits at a time now get basic training at the temporary quarters in Virginia.

The proposed permanent training center would include classroom buildings, living quarters, a recreation hall and various other buildings.

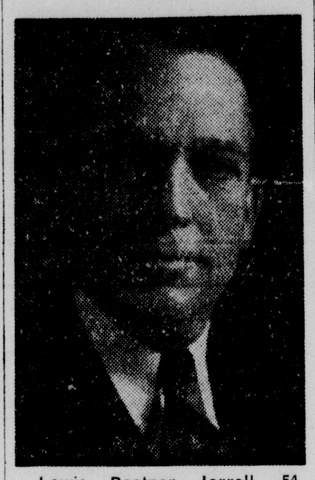

Negro Who Drove Gen. Grant Dies

Goshen, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—Walter A. "Gus" Baltimore, a Negro coachman who once drove General U. S. Grant, died today in the county home. He was reputed to be well over 100 years.

Baltimore was coachman for Charles Backman, famous horse breeder, and drove the coach in which Grant toured Stony Ford Farm, Backman's stud farm, in 1885.

Local historians say that on this occasion Grant, who was en route to Mt. McGregor where he later died, smoked his last cigar. The former president died of cancer of the throat.

DIES

Lewis Boatner Jarrell, 54, above, retired businessman and former mayor of Columbia, died Friday while visiting his son in Ardmore, Okla. Mr. Jarrell, member of a well-known Caldwell parish family, was stricken with a sudden heart attack. He was a leader in the American Legion post and a member of the Masonic order.

BREESE GOES TO RED CROSS MEET

Leader In Local Chapter Will Attend New York Convention

Breese, the superintendent of the Monroe Claims Department of Employers liability Insurance Co., which covers 19 north Louisiana parishes, has been active in Red Cross work since 1927, when, as a schoolboy, he helped his father in rescue work during the flood.

From 1928 to 1930 he took Red Cross life-saving courses and was a lifeguard, and worked with both the YWCA and the Boy Scouts as a life-saving instructor. In 1930, he began a two-year tenure on the Louisiana Tech Red Cross student advisory committee.

In 1940, he was a first aid instructor in Shreveport, and in 1942 and 1943, while in the army, he gave 9 pints of blood before going overseas. In addition to other duties, he was liaison officer between his unit and the Red Cross from 1942 to 1946.

In 1947 he served as parish publicity chairman. Since 1948 he has been a member of the local chapter board of directors and a solicitor for the advance gifts campaign.

Since 1948, he has served as entertainment chairman for the local chapter and has been largely responsible for the schedule of entertainment the Red Cross in this area brings to the Veterans Hospital in Alexandria, including the annual Monroe Night at the hospital immediately before Christmas.

Year Of Warfare Harsh On Dogface And General Alike

By Don Whitehead

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—The earth has circled the sun since that fateful day when the north Korean Reds sent their tanks plunging south, bent on conquest.

One year ago Monday—just the tick of a clock in the eternity of time. Yet the rolling north Korean tanks were like a pebble bounding down a mountainside. They started a roaring avalanche.

This avalanche of war hasn't burst beyond the bounds of Korea, the little finger of land hanging into the sea of Japan from the vast body of Asia.

But it has changed with violence the lives of the five-star general and the dog-face private. It has brought profound changes to this nation and to the United Nations.

Private Joe was a gangling kid when he left high school to join the army and see the world.

The recruiting officer told Joe all about the advantages of being in a peacetime army. Nice way to learn a trade. Good chow. Free medical care. Keep your nose clean, kid, and pretty soon you can retire with a check every month from Uncle Sam.

It sounded good to Joe, who never expected he'd have to fight.

They shipped Joe overseas to Japan into the army of occupation. It was prtty nice, Japan. Nice country. Cute girls with dark slant eyes who were friendly with GIs. And a man had a lot of free time to sight-see or spend week ends in the big plush resorts which the army ran as rest camps.

Suddenly the fun was over. Joe and his buddies found themselves fighting beside the south Koreans. Bewildered but still confident they could lick the Reds who never had fought a modern army before.

But in the retreats that followed Joe and his buddies in dog company discovered they had a lot to learn.

The little brown men swarmed over the hills around them and behind them, armed with Russian made weapons.

Joe was buying time . . . time for reinforcements from America and other United Nations to arrive and go into the battle line beside him. And he began to learn some tricks of his own.

One day Joe and dog company came out of their holes. They were chasing the Reds now. They chased them through Seoul and Pyongyang and almost to Manchuria.

"Home by Christmas" became the slogan.

But then the Chinese hit again, and Joe fought his way out with dog company on the big retreat. Back through Pyongyang and Seoul and Taejon.

One year ago General of the Army Douglas MacArthur was more powerful than the emperor of Japan. He was supreme commander of the Allied powers, which control Japan's economic and political life.

Today he is stripped of his commands but waging the greatest fight of his career—for his idea of the best way to peace in Korea—a fight that has broadened into what is perhaps America's greatest foreign policy battle of the twentieth century.

MacArthur's admirers looked upon him as the greatest living expert on far east affairs and as one of history's greatest generals.

His critics believed him to be a supreme egotist and were likely to question his generalship in World War Two.

But then MacArthur was chosen to head the first U.N. army in its fight to halt the north Korean aggression. The 70-year-old general plunged into this new job with his old-time vigor.

His little army checked the north Korean drive. MacArthur conceived the brilliant Inchon landing, which broke the back of the north Korean army.

Up to this time there was little friction between MacArthur and the president of the joint chiefs of staff.

In October, MacArthur met President Truman on Wake Island. It seemed then that any differences there were had been resolved. On Wake, according to a transcript of the meeting, MacArthur told Truman he didn't think the Chinese would intervene. This record shows he also told the president the Chinese in any event wouldn't be able to bring more than 50,000 to 60,000 troops south of the Yalu river.

Pentagon chiefs and the state department too had discounted the possibility of Chinese intervention.

But then the Chinese did enter the war—and the friction between Tokyo and Washington began to mount.

MacArthur spoke out in favor of bombing Manchuria, blockading the Red-held coast and using Chinese Nationalist troops in Korea.

He continued to advocate this program while the president and the joint chiefs in Washington got hotter under the collar. They said MacArthur was in open defiance of administration policy to limit the war to Korea.

Historians will be digging into this dispute for many years to come to piece all its parts together, but in this past year the stage has been set for MacArthur to carry to the American people a program directly opposed to the Truman program. And perhaps the question will be involved in the decisions to be made by the people in the next national election.

NEW LINER IS TROOP CARRIER

Liner United States Built Primarily To Carry Troops

By Harry Nash

Newport News, Va., June 23.—(AP)—The passenger liner United States, which was floated in her drydock early today, was conceived and built primarily as a troop transport in the event of war, her operators disclosed today.

John M. Franklin, president of the United States lines, in a speech prepared for ceremonies christening the $70,000,000 Super liner, said: "We face . . . the solemn fact that we are in a period of world confusion and crisis. Against the possibility of such an emergency, this mighty ship was conceived, planned and constructed, basically and primarily, as a naval transport, for immediate use as a troop ship if war must come."

The 51,500-ton United States, largest and fastest passenger ship ever built in this country, has many closely guarded secret defense features which made her readily convertible into a transport capable of carrying 14,000 troops. She is the third largest ship in the world, bowing in size only to Britain's Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth.

When the vessel, now 70 per cent complete, enters trans-Atlantic service next summer, she will have accommodation for 2,000 passengers and will carry a crew of 1,000. Her rated speed is 30 knots, but ship experts expect her to exceed that figure considerably.

Franklin, who spoke several minutes before Mrs. Tom Connally, wife of the Texas senator, was to break a bottle of champagne on the new ship's bow, said the United States will have "a wider cruising range than any other ship of comparable size that has yet been designed."

He said she will be capable of transporting an entire division of troops across the north Atlantic, in the tropics, or in the arctic, and return home without refueling.

The 990-foot liner was not launched from conventional sliding ways. Because of her great size, she was built in a drydock, which was flooded early today to float the ship off the blocks on which her keel was laid 16 months ago.

Monroe Citizens To Vote On Fire Bond Issue, June 3

By Yvonne Brett

Citizens of Monroe will go to the polls and vote on the fire department bond issue June 3.

The 650,000 bond issue, which was cut from $900,000 by a citizens committee appointed by the city council to look thoroughly into the matter, is of vital importance to the progressive city of Monroe.

The Ouachita Insurance agents have informed the city that unless the fire department is brought up to first class standards the insurance rates will be increased by the national board of fire underwriters.

The Louisiana Rating and Fire Prevention Bureau has made a careful study of Monroe's Fire department needs and handed down a list of requirements which the department will have to achieve before it can be rated as first class. Chief H. L. Hales states that the recommendations of the bureau were the basis for the $650,000 bond issue.

A letter from the Dixie Bedding and Furniture company, which suffered a raging fire recently, complimented the department on its work.

The letter read as follows:

"My entire organization, and myself, wish to thank all of you firemen who helped in saving our property from the fire on Washington street. You did wonderful work, and I want to tell you how much we appreciate this. All of the firemen deserve a lot of credit."

The owners of the Eureka Grocery store in West Monroe expressed their appreciation also in a letter forwarded to the department.

"We would like to say, without hesitancy, but for the alert work and heroic efforts, and the splendid equipment you maintain and use, the entire city block would have been destroyed due to the fire which we suffered on June 9.

"We are all resdients of West Monroe, and cannot vote in your forthcoming bond election, but we have just learned, the hard way, the vital importance of the improvements you plan for the city of Monroe, and we wish you every success in your important project."

The letters above are only a few of the many appreciative responses which the department has received in the past.

The Monroe Fire department is a progressive unit of men who wish to progress with the city, which it is their duty to protect, asserted Chief Hales.

The $650,000 bond issue has been carefully analyzed down to the last cent, said Hales, and the citizens committee has appropriated definite amounts to each item named in the analysis.

An up-to-date fire department is one of the best investments a community can make; it not only save lives, but dollars and property as well ,declared the fire chief.

NEGRO HELD FOR ATTEMPTED RAPE

Charlie McGee Accused Of Entering Home And Attacking Child

City detectives picked up a local Negro early Saturday and charged him with attempted rape.

Charlie McGee, Renwick street, was arrested by detectives after the father of a nine-year-old girl accused him of entering his home and attacking the child while she was asleep on a cot with her six-year-old sister.

Officers stated that the arrested Negro entered the home of Tom Morrison, 306 Church street, by pulling a screen door open. The nine-year-old girl screamed and two of her brothers came to the rescue, said police. McGee ran from the house.

McGee, who attempted to flee from officers through a field in back of his home on Renwick street, was apprehended when police pulled their guns and demanded that he halt.

The Negro was indicted by the grand jury on two counts of attempted rape in 1946, but he disappeared and had not been heard from, until his arrest by detectives Saturday.

He is being held in the Ouachita Parish jail.

Support The Fire Bond Issue

As a matter of simple economics, every property owner in the city of Monroe should support the $650,000 bond issue for improvement and expansion of our fire department.

It will cost you money if the bond issue fails to receive approval at the polls.

Monroe has been "riding" its present fire insurance rates for several years. This city is not properly entitled to its present rate because of the inadequacy of its fire-fighting equipment and personnel—in short, its fire protection. Now, the National Board of Fire Underwriters, as well as state agencies, have warned that unless steps are taken to expand this protection, fire insurance rates will be increased materially. And the only way we can expand protection is to vote the bond issue.

There are no "bugs" in the proposed expansion program—as there have been in previous bond issue proposals, a majority of which were approved by Monroe voters. A citizens committee appointed by Mayor John E. Coon and comprised of business and professional leaders, has scrutinized the analysis of the fire department's needs and there isn't one item that isn't absolutely essential if our present rate is maintained. As many will recall, an election was called to vote on a $900,000 bond issue, but following the appointment of the committee, the election was postponed, the program was studied and the amount subsequently was cut to $650,000. This committee, under the able leadership of W. L. Ethridge, considered every phase of the program, as well as every requirement of underwriter groups, to arrive at a figure which would provide adequate fire protection.

Several large property owners are members of the committee, which, incidentally, will supervise the expenditure of the $650,000, and these men have expressed wholehearted support of the revised proposal. Certainly they would not agree to tax themselves unreasonably for items which are not needed. In fact, such a good job was done in culling the chaff from the wheat that a number of taxpayers belatedly bemoaned the fact that such a committee wasn't given a chance to work on the $7,000,000 power and water bond issue before it was submitted to the people. It is said that a number of "bugs" have matured in that one.

The chief proposals of the $650,000 program include expansion of No. 1 station on its present location, relocation of stations No. 2 and 3, construction of a new station on Forsythe avenue, completion of the fire alarm system to provide protection for outlying sections of the city, construction of drill tower, school and equipment and reconditioning of No. 4 station. The need for these items cannot be questioned.

In view of present conditions, there should be little or no opposition at the polls on July 3.

Always Important

Regardless of the year, of seasons, of world conditions and of whether prices are high or low, the cattle grower of Louisiana or of any other state who does the best financially is the one who uses the best management practices and produces the most feed on his own place. The importance of pasture improvement and hay and silage production in profitable dairying are obvious. They will pay equally well in beef production.

The most economical and efficient way of increasing profits and production is through better breeding, better feeding and better parasite prevention. For example, the L. S. U. Extension Service points out that on a good pasture beef cattle that are sprayed for protection against horn flies and other pests often will gain as much as half a pound a day more than cattle not protected from pests that sap their strength and interfere with their grazing.

In good times these better practices, which have been proven by many Louisiana beef growers, will mean greater profits. In bad times they may mean the difference between a good living and bankruptcy. Good management pays regardless of the times.

Pasture improvement and hay and forage production, essential for successful dairying or beef cattle management, figure prominently in the new grassland farming program now being got under way by the Extension Service. But regardless of how much more emphasis may be placed on them, they are not themselves new. Their value has been established and the cattleman who neglects these aspects of his business is losing money, no matter how much money he may be making.

Senators' Bias

Sound American public policy probably would be served by a fair congressional inquiry into lobbying by foreign governments. But there's serious doubt such an investigation conducted now would measure up to vital standards of fairness.

Senators McMahon and Morse first broached the idea in the MacArthur hearings, suggesting that the so - called "China lobby" be looked into. They contended that funds originating in the U. S. are being used to influence American far eastern policy.

Secretary of State Acheson agrees such a study could be valuable, but believes it should attempt to distinguish between "proper and improper" foreign lobbying activities.

He told the senate that President Truman has instructed all appropriate executive agencies to cooperate fully should such a study be undertaken.

From the senators' discussion of the issue, it is apparent the inquiry, if voted, could not be confined to the "China lobby." It would extend to all governments, friendly or otherwise.

On its face this proposal seems eminently wise and fair. Other things being equal there is no reason to oppose the widest possible scrutiny of foreign lobbying operations.

But unluckily, other things are not equal. Senators who approach our foreign relations in a calm spirit of justice and reasonableness are somewhat rare. Too many have pet likes and dislikes among foreign nations.

In their eyes, the countries they disapprove can do no right. Those they like are forgiven any sins, including those they will not tolerate in some other nation.

Consequently, putting the lobbying activities of all nations under the microscope at this time would mean more than useful disclosure of improper doings.

It would provide lawmakers who have varied foreign phobias with an ideal excuse to unleash once more their their wildest and most vitriolic charges. It would be another field day for emotionalism, of which we have already had too much in congress these recent months.

In the course of a lobbying inquiry, America's international relations would inevitably suffer, as they have suffered too often in the past few years from irresponsible congressional outburst.

There has been enough talk for the moment. The need now is for action — action to arm the free world against the Communist danger, action to cement the free peoples in this resolve.

At some later time, when the atmosphere of congress is more temperate and the risk less from irresponsible behavior, it will be wise to study just how foreign nations may have improperly tried to influence American policy.

Almost certainly, that goal would be quickly lost sight of if the investigation were undertaken now.

Margaret Truman Sees Versailles

Paris June 23. (AP)— Margaret Truman saw Versailles today.

Miss Truman visited the famed chateau, once the home of French royalty, with Mrs. David K. Bruce, wife of the U. S. ambassador to France.

They were taken on a special tour of the building, including the Hall of Mirrors, where the German peace treaty ending World War I was signed.

Miss Truman, who will leave Paris for Rome on Monday, had dinner tonight with Baron Alain De Rothschild, and the baroness, in the fashionable avenue matignon.

No big city in the country has been more shocked by disclosure of widespread dope peddling than Washington D. C., which usually thinks of itself as free of gangsterism, and most of the other organized rackets, except gambling, which flourishes here. But the revelation that marijuana, morphine and heroin can be easily obtained in the city where the most aggressive drive against dope in the world —by the federal bureau of narcotics—has its headquarters embarrasses that organization no end, with witnesses testifying dope is "as easy to buy here as a soft drink."

Neither the narcotics bureau nor the local police can explain the sudden boom in narcotics peddling and the alarming epidemic of 'teen age addicts in some large cities. But some trade experts and some social workers think they have the answer.

They think the increase in use of dope by youngsters in big cities is Communist inspired, and their reasoning does not sound like sheer imagination. It is no coincidence, in the opinion of people who work in the poorer districts of major cities and see the opportunity dope peddler have to carry on their dirty trade, that the increase in addicts parallels the rise of communism in China. China has always been a major producer of narcotics. With official collaboration, opium, heroin and the rest can easily be produced and exported, can be smuggled into the United States through a dozen avenues.

It is a serious charge to bring against any nation that it countenances attempts to debauch the individuals of another, but the countries of Europe, always have lagged in efforts to stamp out the narcotic evil. The League of Nations made slight progress in that direction. Britain, which at that time, was in a position to restrict traffic in drugs in both China and India, did relatively little, and most of the profits of that traffic were said then to flow to London. And it has been a tremendously profitable business for centuries.

Now Moscow has taken over and is in a position to boom the sale of drugs illegally. Red China offered enough "stuff" to supply the trade. to supply the entire world for a year. But other drugs are easier to handle, particularly morphine and heroin (which are opium derivatives). And the insidious reefer, or marijuana cigarette, can be manufactured from the marijuana weed in many parts of the U. S.

In suspecting Communists of having a hand in the distribution, those who support the idea point out that not only do the Commies have access to great supplies of opium, but they can move it into the United States from both Europe and Asia, so U. S. efforts to stop smuggling must guard four coast lines instead of two. Narcotics officials confess that much of the dope sold illegally in this country comes by way of Canada and Mexico.

It is conceded that Communists probably have little to do with illegal sale of narcotics in our big cities. That would be handled by organized dope rings, which in the past have had trouble getting enough "stuff to supply the trade. But in an atmosphere when adolescents can become addicts, with the available supply of dope is greatly increased, there's plenty of money in the business for the Communist originators.

And the fact that American kids are the victims would not disturb the gentlemen who are attempting to control approximately one half the world's population.

No Special Privilege—

There still are some conscientious senators. Senate rules provide that one the senate side of the Capitol, a senator presses the elevator buzzer times, gets instant service. The elevator goes to the senator's floor first, regardless of other passengers.

Senator Mike (A. S.) Monroney (Dem.-Okla.) won't avail himself of that privilege, or has not in the five months he has been a senator. When a friend noticed that Senator Mike pushed the button only once, his curiosity prompted him to ask why.

"I don't feel like doing it," was the reply. "It seems like taking an unfair advantage."

Angelo Parti:
Our Children

LOVE

I have said more than once that it is love that rears children in sound health of body and mind, not force, and an angry father writes to tell me that I don't know what I am talking about. That could be. Still, having lived a lifetime among children, having taught them, watched over their growth, seen them fail or succeed, I still say that the only way to lead a child to see goodness as the only way of life is the way of love.

There is great misunderstanding about love. Many think that love is a soft way of thinking and acting. Far from that: it is the hardest way of life. To accept insult and injustice, bear disappointment and injury, bear with ignorance and error and still keep loving is to be saintly and few of us ever reach that stage.

Children come into the world with their own characteristics, many of them inherited. Dr. Meters once said, and I well understand him, that children come into the world bearing evidences of every form of life that ever existed on earth. That I believe when I see children exhibit traits, skills, tendencies that are strange to their immediate families. If parents do not like these evidences of bygone ancestors, they proceed to train better ones into him. Well and good, if they train in love.

Love sees error for what it is and denies it, overwhelms it with the good. Love knows no weakness. When a child rebels against known good, love holds fast to that good and refuses to allow the child to deny it by wilful action. That is possible without using force, that is physical force. Love, being a spiritual force, is the strongest always. It reaches the inner being while physical force reaches only the physical being and rouses anger and hate and rebellion in the inner being. Which will you have?

I am not for spoiling children for by that road we lead them to error. By personal example, by precept and practice, by discipline that relates cause and effect, by direct personal interference when necessary, but always in love, never in selfishness, we lead children to express goodness in their daily lives.

Yes, there are times when on uses force. A child, after training, teaching, supervision, runs out into the highway to play, is brought back and spanked, is disciplined that way because his mother had done all in her power to teach him to keep out of danger and he forsook knowledge and entered danger. But that is an emergency method and emergencies do not become a habit. Love is the habitual attitude, and it is present even in such an emergency.

When baby cries it may be for one of five reasons. Dr. Patri tells how to overcome the crying habit in children in leaflet P-4, "Crying Children." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, c-o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

THE FALLACY OF CONTROLS

There are three classes of people who desire a retention and a tightening of the price and wage controls now being exercised by the government.

First, there are those who undoubtedly believe controls are necessary to stop run-away inflation. Such people are placing the cart before the horse; they are dealing with results rather than causes. Price control is simply on opiate that for a while may deaden the pain but never cures the disease.

When our national leaders claim that controls will stop inflation, they are betraying the trust of their office. Such a claim is absolutely false in concept and in execution. You can no more cure inflation by controls than you can cure a tumor by slapping on an adhesive plaster.

Second, there are those who use their advocacy of controls for political purposes. They are not interested in controls as such; they are only interested in making a great show of protecting the voters from the "special interests."

They are not interested in the economics of controls they probably know nothing about them—but they are interested in appearing as champions of "the people."

The claim of this second group that they represent the interests of the "little man"—the consumer, the wage earner, the housewife—is entirely deceptive and misleading. It is a curious irony that the people who are urged by vote-seeking politicians to clamor for controls are the ones who will suffer most from controls. A call for controls is, in effect, a call for control of the value of wages and savings. It is a submission of all that honest working people have achieved to the whim and the personal interest of the politicains.

Third, there are those who want government controls because they believe in state control and centralized bureaucrasy—not just in time of strain and stress but for all time. These are the socialists, the economic planners. They infiltrate. They say, "Give us controls for two more years and everything will be all right." They had just as well say two months or twenty years because they never mean to relinquish the controls anyway.

This third group never relaxes; they never "miss a bet." They seize upon every emergency or general distress of the people to further their aims. They do not believe the people are capable of governing themselves; they do not believe in the freedom of the individual; they do not believe in our constitutional republican form of government.

None of these three groups can be trusted. Neither ignorance nor selfish interest nor grasping for power are safe guides for the American people.

We should have learned from the lessons of history—and certainly from the very clear demonstrationgi ven us by Great Britain in the last few years—that it makes no difference whether people believe in socialism or not—it just won't work. And the reason it won't work is because it violates certain fundamental laws of both economics and morals that will not be violated.

The same thing applies to controls, which, after all, are part and parcel of the socialist system. Controls have always stifled the incentive to produce, which is the basis of the progress we have made here in America; they have always caused scarcity and black markets, and they always will. It is much better to have plenty of goods at some price than no goods at a controlled price.

Controls may be necessary in time of total war; war forces many undesirable things upon us. But history tells us that the longer controls remain in effect, the harder they are to get rid of, and if we accept controls now—for an indefinite period whose end no one can foresee—we may very well destroy our economy and our form of government "without firing a shot."

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

DEATH OF DIPLOMACY

Donald McLachlan, assistant editor of the "Economist" (London), made a point last March which is pertinent today when both the American state department and the British foreign office seem to have fallen upon hard times. He wrote in "The Twentieth Century" (British):

"There must have been much turning and tossing in the tombs of great diplomatists six weeks ago, when the United Nations assembly almost simultaneously declared China an aggressor and set up a good offices committee to negotiate with Peking —or at least to mediate between Peking and Washington. One needed to be neither pro - Chinese nor anti-American, nor indeed engaged on any side, to see that here was something ludicrous happening, something that common sense rejects and the diplomatist scoffs at . . ."

This is but an instance of a weakening of the delicate process of diplomacy which is the art of winning friends and soothing enemies for your country. The testimony of General Albert Wedemeyer, apart from supporting the testimony of General MacArthur, established the incapacity of the state department to hold existing friendships and win new friends. Nor has there been a sufficient consistency in what might be called policy to make friendship secure by the knowledge of what conduct is to be expected.

General Wedemeyer had been offered our ambassadorship to China and had expended $900 on what he calls a trousseau for such service. The Chinese Communists objected to his appointment and so Mr. Acheson, then under - secretary, bowing to our enemies and scowling at our friends, withdrew the offer from General Wedemeyer.

But to get back to death of diplomacy, it would seem that the fault lies in the global concepts which prevail among specialists in foreign affairs. A diplomat is an agent whose principal is a nation. He is an envoy ,a messenger, an ambassador, a negotiator. His limitations are the needs and interest of his employer. When his devotion is to those who are his direct masters, his concepts are controlled by them. When he has become a globalist, a pursuer of internationalism, he has no limitations because he has no principal, even though he is employed by one country. His mind is on world needs; not his own country's necessities. He is all things to all men.

Few of those who believe that they have been building a new world can or will recognize that the errors of our times are in a pattern of behavior: that the global view results not only in a weakening of our own country but actually in the constant strengthening of Soviet Russia. For if there is to be one world, whose world is it to be — ours or theirs? Is it to be a world based on natural law or on Marxian dialectics? and what convincing arguments — to establish Washington or even the United Nations as preferable to the Kremlin? Each advocates universalism, but each has a different concept of management. Thus far, the Kremlin has been more successful, because it has kept itself nationalistic. It works for Russia.

The Kremlin is bulding a one world; Stalin is building it by imperialism, by propaganda, by force by cajolery, by trickery, by any means at his disposal. But it is a one world concept that is the goal of Soviet diplomacy, and the capital of that world is to be the Kremlin. It is a one world in the Russian model.

That is why their entire effort is centered now on the word, "peace". By peace, Stalin means unity, unification, the amalgamation of all countries in a federation of states within the Soviet Union, a universal state dominated by Russia. Their word, peace, means the destruction of the one world that the United States is trying to build through the United Nations.

This they call peace and all who oppose this concept of the world are war - mongers, fascists, reactionaries. And, of course, to them those who still believe that their own country is worthy of reverence and that patriotism is a virtue.

When diplomacy is not guided by such virtue, it willy - nilly becomes the tool of the Soviet one world. For while it may be violent in its opposition to communism and to Russian imperialism, it nevertheless serves Stalin by developing siutations beneficial to his purposes. The errors since Teheran can thus more readily be explained and understood, without personal acrimony.

DOROTHY DIX

Absent Hearts

They Grow Fonder, Or Wander, According To Circumstances

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been going steady for three years with a wonderful boy. We love each other and get along beautifully together. He is attending college now, and we plan to be married when he graduates. But this is my problem. His father was transferred to a job in another state, and this summer my boy friend has to join his family. Do you think he will forget all about me then, or get lonely and find another companion? My friends tell me to look for another boy friend but that would be impossible as there could never be a substitute for my love. Others tell me to marry him now but that also is impossible because we can't afford it. Also, he would have to leave college and I don't want that to happen when he is doing so well. I don't think my boy friend would leave me but everyone is putting ideas in my head so I don't know whether I'm coming or going. What should I do?

DOROTHY DIX

CORNELIA

ANSWER: Here we go again with well-meaning friends who seem intent on spoiling your happiness. I notice they've given just about every bit of advice except the assurance that the separation couldn't possibly hurt people as well matched, as sensible and as devoted as you two. Summer isn't eternity, Cornelia. Just think of all the romances that have held together even though the boy has had to do service overseas for two or three years!

TRUE LOVE IS STRENGTHENED

The old adage about absence has two variations, you know. "Absence causes hearts to wander," and "Absence makes the heart grow fonder." Where hearts are already fickle, absence will not make them constant, but where true love and devotion already exist, a separation only strengthens the bond between them. You will both find lots to do during the summer, and letter-writing will be a major occupation. I'm sure neither of you will have the slightest inclination to find companionship in the opposite sex—but on your part, anyway, Cornelia, I would certainly be wary of girl friends who are too free with advice. Put your faith in the stability of your boy friend, and remember, if you couldn't trust him for a few summer months, he'd be a very poor matrimonial risk.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am very much in love with a boy, Dick, who is younger than I. He is 18 and I am 19½. We have been going together for a year and he has asked me to marry him. The wedding would not take place now, but when he is out of the army. He is a senior in high school and I a freshman in college. We get along very well, but the trouble is with my parents who think he is too young for me. They like Dick very much and also like his folks.

We love each other very much, but I also love my mother and would not want to hurt her. She has nothing to disapprove of in Dick except his age. Do you think the difference in age is that important?

TRUDY

ANSWER: A difference of a year and a half certainly is not so important. Of course, in the teens it seems more of a problem than it will be later. The difference between 28 and 29½, for instance, isn't nearly as great by comparison as the span between 18 and 19½. By the time Dick comes out of the army and you are ready to be married, your parents will probably be reconciled to the age disparity, which will already seem to be shrinking by that time. With all the other promising aspects of a happy romance you possess, such as mutual interests and the respect and affection existing between both families, I think you can very easily overcome the barrier of years and in time have your parents realize its unimportance.

DEAR MISS DIX: Could you help me find a solution to this problem? Should a boy attempt to stop his girl friend, who is a minor, from smoking?

TOMMY

ANSWER: Of course he should. Smoking is a habit for adults and not one to be encouraged in a minor. It is a health hazard in the very young, and a charming miss does nothing to enhance her appearance by aping her elders with a cigarette in her mouth all the time. I hope you have enough influence over your girl friends to make her postpone smoking at least for a few years.

DOROTHY DIX cannot answer personal mail. For girls planning a career she has written leaflet D-4, "Ambition." To obtain a copy, send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Dix, c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 18, N. Y.

CALLS FOR SLASH IN GOV. SPENDING

Sen. George Says Finance Committee Will Not Rush Vote On Taxes

Washington, June 23—(AP)—Senator George (D-Ga) called today for a $6,000,000,000 slash in government spending before congress votes any new taxes.

George told a reporter the Senate Finance Committee, which he heads, will not rush action on the House-approved $7,200,000,000 tax bill.

"We are going to take the necessary time to go through this tax bill thoroughly and to investigate the country's economic prospects before acting," the Georgia senator said.

He added that this will put off any final decision on new levies until congress has acted on pending appropriations bills.

"We should cut $6,000,000,000 off of the spending budget and I believe we can do it," George continued. "That might make it unnecessary to raise so much in taxes.

As approved by the House, the measure would add $2,847,000,000 yearly to individual income taxes, boost excise levies $1,252,000,000, add $2,855,000,000 to corporation charges and raise $245,000,000 through other changes in the revenue laws.

George said the Finance Committee will begin its study of the bill behind closed doors Wednesday with Treasury experts and members of the staff of congress' Joint Revenue Committee.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder will testify Thursday followed on Friday by J. Frederick Lawton, director of the budget.

In the following week, George said, the committee will hear from Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, Stabilization Director Eric Johnston and Price Director Michael V. DiSalle.

George said the committee wants particularly to find out what the rate of federal spending is likely to be in the 1952 fiscal year, starting July 1, and the following year.

"There have been reports that the budget might reach $89,000,000,000 in fiscal 1953," George said. "If that is true, we'll have to have more economy and more taxes than congress seems to be thinking about now"

Mrs. Connally Christens Ship

Newport News, Va., June 23.—(AP)—A lady Texan smashed a bottle of champagne today all over herself and the bow of the largest and fastest passenger ship ever built in this country.

The christening of the SS United States by Mrs. Tom Connally, wife of the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, followed ominous warnings by her husband and two other prominent Americans that the new ship is ready for conversion to a troop transport in the event of war.

Thousands of persons stood under a scorching sun to witness the christening of the $70,000,000 ship —America's challenge to the British sea queens, the Mary and the Elizabeth.

At least four persons fainted from the blistering sun. A score of others were treated for illness caused by the heat.

Mrs. Connally had a broad smile for the battery of television and newsreel cameramen and photographers as she broke the champagne bottle over the bow of the liner and received a champagne bath in return.

As the bottle smashed, the 51,500-ton liner already had begun to move slowly sternward out of the drydock in which she was built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company.

Former Showgirl Marries Fireman

Greenwich, Conn., June 23.—(AP)—Former showgirl Martha (Mickey) Devine, 39, once the wife of Horace E. Dodge, automobile fortune heir, was married here today to William Gerlach, 35, a New York City fireman.

She divorced Dodge and reportedly received a settlement of almost $1,000,000 in Reno, Nev., on July 28, 1944.

Later she was married to William Cahill, Jr., a New York attorney.

She has been living in Greenwich.

Reds, Fascists Killed 52 Priests During War

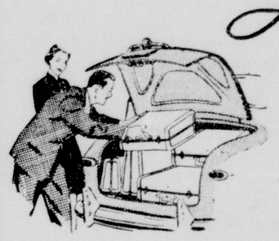

Rome, June 23. —(AP)— Communist's and Facists killed 52 priests in the Emilia region of Italy during and shortly after World War II, a writer for the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said today.

The writer said he got the figure from a pamphlet written by Don Lorenzo Bedeschi, priest-journalist and an editor of L'Avvenire D'Italia, Bologna Catholic newspaper.

Where Have You Been all its Life?

THIS ad is addressed to the fellow known as "the man on the street."

From that vantage point, you must have noticed that a lot of folks are driving 1951 Buicks.

You must have noted that you can spot one of these beauties—by its sparkling forefront—its gleaming fender ports—(three for the SPECIAL and SUPER, four for the ROADMASTER)—and by its fluent grace of lines and contours.

You've probably noticed, also, that these Buicks give a good account of themselves in traffic—ease to a gentle stop—get away to a nimble start when the light says, "Go."

You may even have noticed that these cars have a level-gaited stride that traces, as we've said before, to the fact that each wheel rides beneath its own coil spring.

But what we'd like to know is—when are you going to try one?

It's about time you climbed in the driver's seat.

It's about time that you sensed for yourself the thrill that comes from feeling your shoulders sink back in the cushions, when your toe gives the gas treadle a gentle nudge.

It's about time for you to be on the receiving end of those admiring glances which are the due of folks smart enough to pick the smart buy of the year.

What's holding you back? It can't be prices—for as you can see for yourself, you can own a SPECIAL for less than the price of some sixes—and SUPERS or ROADMASTERS are just as smart a buy in their fields.

So why not end the suspense? The welcome mat is out at our showrooms. We hope to greet you soon.

the water problem and report his findings to the board of aldermen.

The proclamation, when first issued, was supposed to have remained in effect until Monday at 8 a.m., but the Monroe repairmen beat the deadline in an effort to relieve the growing difficulties as soon as possible.

Winnsboro officials had feared an outbreak of fires could threaten the entire city if the water crisis was extended.

The two wells, both fed from a single supply, normally have outputs of 300 gallons per minute. Both were cleaned, and a filter, which is said to be too small for the amount of water pouring through, is to be repaired soon.

of Monroe, and their four-year-old daughter Susan.

The McClary's have made their home here for the past three years while Colonel McClary was assigned to the Northeast State Military Department.

Just prior to this tour of duty, he completed thirty months of service in Japan. He was with the 6th army headquarters, Yokohama, as a member of Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's staff. During World War II he also saw service with the 4th infantry division in England and France.

Colonel McClary received a regular army commission when he graduated as an honor student at Louisiana State University in 1940.

He also graduated from the infantry school, Fort Benning, Ga., and the cammond and general staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

His military experience since then includes five years of troop duty and six years of staff duty and reserve officers training corps work.

have some rather unusual signs. Out Lee avenue is a one-man barber shop run by a man by the name of J. B. Glass. Mr. Glass does like, between shaves, to run home about three blocks for a cup of coffee, so quite often a sign goes up in his window; "Gone for Coffee, Back in Three Minutes."

Three downtown Monroe churches, the First Christian, First Methodist and First Presbyterian, will have united services on Sunday nights during the heated period of summer. Tonight the service will be held for all three at the First Methodist and Rev. Ernest D. Holloway will be the preacher.

Last Friday night the men's group of the First Methodist church held something a bit unusual at their monthly supper meeting. They went out on the uncovered porch, second floor of the Educational building, for their supper and meeting. It proved quite delightful, both cool, and with lights turned out or low, the city's lighting all around lent an unusual charm to the scene. The address of the evening was by popular Joe Pearce, soon to become a Methodist minister. He made a highly inspiring talk in which he cited why he had chosen this line of activity. He said the church had already done so much for him that the least he could do would be to endeavor to repay in some degree an obligation that he felt was most urgent.

It's rarely that a physician gets sick. Usually they keep going till they drop from a heart seizure and just fade away. But we have an exception in Dr. Irving J. Wolff, smiling physician that everybody around here knows. Friday he was on the street and still smiling but not too vigorously. In response to questions he admitted that he has been ill for four weeks or more and some of the time has been hospitalized. He stated that at his doctor's orders—had to take his own medicine this time—he will go to a New Orleans clinic for a complete checkup.

"Bet it was hard to have to submit to another man's will, wasn't it doctor? was asked.

"Could have been, but you should have heard my nurse talk. She said I was her very best patient. One day when they were working on me I made no outcry as they expected. This caused my nurse to give one of my toes a twist. When I asked the reason, she said she wanted to make me cry out but she failed to achieve her purpose."

The soaring temperature doesn't seem to affect the enthusiasm of Monroe Rotarians. The club goes right along expanding in membership and activities. Most recent newcomer to the group is James Austin Strange, who was presented at Thursday's meeting by Rotarian Floyd L. Ferrell, manager of the local J. C. Penney Company, Inc. Ferrell stressed the fact that the 27-year-old newcomer would certainly explode the theory that the Rotary Club is "just an old man's organization." Strange is manager of the Allen Millwork Manufacturing Company. He was affiliated with the same business firm in Shreveport just prior to moving here about a year ago. He and Rotary Ann Jacquelyn reside at 605 Cole Avenue.

time was active in women's work of the church. She was an ardent student of the Bible devoting considerable time to this study. She was for years member of the 20th Century Book Club. One of her delights in earlier life was that of the preparation of choice foods and pastry in which she had unusual talent. Also in their numerous trips abroad, the Larches imbibed a fondness for French pastries and on one of their visits there, Mrs. Larche pursued a course in culinery lines as practiced in that country. It is said that many a young bride in Monroe received painstaking instruction in cooking from Mrs. Larche. But Mrs. Larche did not confine her talents to culinery lines alone, for she was of artistic temperament and excelled in painting, rug making and in flower gardening. She was regarded as an outstanding mother and home maker.

During her residence in West Monroe, Mrs. Larche was active in civic affairs there and also president of the Monroe Civic league. For some years, Mr. Larche was superintendent of Ouachita parish schools and also served in the state legislature.

Mrs. Larche was sister of the late Thomas E. Flournoy, for years president of the Ouachita National bank, of Miss Jordena Flournoy, and of Mrs. A. R. Millsaps.

She is survived by the following six children: Mrs. Albert C. Sanders of Helena, Arkansas; Mrs. Lewis L. Langford, of Jackson, Mississippi; Mrs. Charles P. McRae of Washington, D. C.; Lucien N. Larche, of Monroe; Thomas F. Larche, of Jackson Mississippi; and James G. Larche of Tampa Florida. She has six grandchildren and one great grand son. Two nephews; Fred F. Millsaps and Eugene K. Flournoy and two nieces; Mrs. J. H. Cade of Alexandria and Mrs. Louisa F. Unglesby of Monroe.

Active pallbearers will be: Bob Hanna, Jr., Don Simmons, Jr., Edwin Watkins, George Weeks Jr., J. Arthur Smith Jr. and Dr. C. Prentice Gray Jr. Honorary pallbearers will be: George Gunby, Jim Drew, Harvey Trousdale, J. H. Watkins, E. N. Faulk and Shelby Meeks.

GOVERNOR LONG

The appropriation drew fire like a bulls-eye. The narcotics bill passed without dissent.

Two pitched battles were fought, both in the senate, where anti-Longs had a presiding officer who was unfriendly with the administration. They took place on opening night last Monday and on Wednesday night.

Temporarily set back Monday, senate forces of Governor Long regained control two nights later. After that, things moved quickly but carefully, though in the shadow of possible illegality.

Here's the way it happened:

Lt. Gov. William J. Dodd, fueding with Governor Long since they quarrelled over Dodd's candidacy for governor, is president of the senate. He presides and, under senate rules, appoints committeemen.

Monday, he shook up all 30 committees, bouncing such strong Long supporters as Sen. Oscar Guidry, chairman of finance. That set up a potential roadblock on all 32 bills.

Under Dodd's gavel, two senators—Dudley LeBlanc of Abbeville and Charles Tooke, Jr., of Shreveport—talked so long on a resolution that senators were kept from hearing Governor Long's address.

On Wednesday, however, the administration's strong majority over ruled Dodd, pushing across amendments to senate rules. The changes re-formed committees, took away Dodd's right to name them and authorized a "gag rule" to limit debate.

Wednesday's parliamentary free-for-all left the senate, for a while, without a journal — its official record.

When journal adoption kindled debate, Long forces voted it off the calendar, moving Dodd to comment:

"Everything we've done is now null and void. This is the de facto first day of the session."

Sens. C. H. Downs of Alexandria and H. Alva Brumfield of Baton Rouge, administration leaders, quickly returned the subject. Back again, the journal was adopted.

Dodd insists that the committees he appointed should have passed on the bills, not those re-named Wednesday. Sen. Guidry's Finance Committee, which approved all 32, had no legal status, he says.

"Senate rules require 24 - hour written notice before they can be amended," Dodd says, "and no such notice was given Wednesday. The legality of the entire program is open to question."

Dodd said he juggled committees to insure public hearings and not "to obstruct any legislation." None of the opposition senators showed up for Sen. Guidry's public hearing on Thursday.

Of the $14,000,000 highway appropriation $9,000,000 will come from a surplus in the states general fund. The rest will be anticipated from revenues of the 1951-52 fiscal year.

Sen. Robert Ainsworth of New Orleans, in what he called his "swan song" Friday, deplored the bill, saying it would "lay the cupboard bare." Instead of spending funds, he argued, lawmakers should reduce taxes.

Rep. Brown said the appropriation had "political taint," since statewide elections are less than a year away.

Sen. C. E. Barham of Ruston, however, said tax reductions might gain popularity for Gov. Long but would hamper the next governo 's program.

The narcotics law fixes penalties up to 30 years for persons convicted of selling dope to anyone under 21 years of age. Former punishments ranged from 20 months to five years.

The other $2,150,600 appropriations will go chiefly to hospital construction and operation and the state civil defense activity.

While whipping through its 32-bill program, the administration crushed resolutions offered by foes in Senate and House. Among such unsuccessful attempts were:

Rep. Algie Brown's (Caddo parish) proposal to create a House commission to investigate Louisiana crime and law enforcement. Killed 60 to 20.

Rep. George Tessier's (Orleans) request for a legislative investigation of the state penitentiary, investigated by a citizens committee recenti, after 37 inmates protested "brutality" by cutting their heelstrings. Killed 70-17.

Sen. LeBlanc's demand that all highway appropriations be blocked until the state department of highways disclosed its revenues. Killed 28-7.

Sen. Tooke's wordy appeal to the 1952-56 legislature to restore state civil service. Killed 25-9.

Sen. LeBlanc's caustic call on the Senate to "compliment and praise" Gov. Long for "the use of convict labor x x x on his private farm." Killed 29-3.

WRECKAGE OF

fested jungle or even out to sea.

The discovery was the result of one of the greatest air searches in the history of African aviation.

Five U. S. air force flying Fortress B-17's from the Azores flew in and joined air force, Liberian National Airways, British overseas airways and private planes in patrolling over the trackless wastes. A flight of 15 U. S. air force B-29's was reported due from Europe late today to aid.

Liberian constabulary and tribesmen, called out by tom tom signals, scouted jungle trails for signs of the craft even though a safe crash landing in the jungle and tall timber seemed impossible.

Heavy overcast hampered the planes in their search this morning. Tornado-like winds ripped some areas yesterday.

The plane had a crew of nine from the New York metropolitan area. It left Johannesburg Thursday morning and was flying by way of Leopoldsville in the Belgian Congo, Accra and Monrovia on the African hump, Dakar, 650 miles north of here, Lisbon, Portugal, and the Azores to New York.

On the trip north it was reported to have developed trouble in its third motors but to have had it adjusted on the stop at Accra.

The U. S. embassy in Paris said Richard True Dunning, 29, a member of its courier staff, was aboard the plane. He was born in Dallas, Tex., and his mother lives at Glendale, Calif.

The Paris economic cooperation administration office said one of its American employes, E. Clower Mott, controller of the ECA mission in Portugal, also was aboard. He is a native of Cairo, Ga.

Other Americans listed on the plane were Mr. and Mrs. John C. Leventis of the Atlantic Oil Company at Accra; Mr. J. R. Hoffman and his wife, a British war bride, en route to their home in Pennsylvania, Willam Stott of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Tariga of Seattle, Wash.

PEACH FESTIVAL

Louisiana Tech campus at 8 p. m., June 27. Huge, golden trophies will be awarded the winners of both events, and the two will preside jointly at the next day's festival activities.

The queen's coronation ceremony will be held at a festival dance to take place Thursday night in the women's gymnasium at Tech. The princess will receive her honors at the time of selection.

Along with the selection of festival royalty, the fruit growers are sponsoring a talent contest which is expected to attract musicians, both vocal and instrument, jugglers, impersonators, dancers, comedians, and perhaps some performance not yet thought of by the entertainment committee.

Prizes of $25, $15, $10 and $5 will be awarded the winners who will be selected for ability, originally and popularity.

An exhibit of peaches will begin the program for Thursday, with a total of 48 ribbons, in addition to a grand prize, being awarded for peaches in two classes of eight varieties. Exhibits will go on display at the parish courthouse at 9:30 a. m., and will be judged between the hours of 10 a. m. and 12 noon.

Judging will be based on U. S. and proposed Louisiana grades, and the winning peaches will be auctioned off during the afternoon program at the Tech football stadium.

There will be float parades, auctions, peach-eating contests, speaking events, prizes, dances. Beautiful girls and an almost unlimited amount of peaches to keep everybody happy. Ruston, it is believed, is going to be a "mighty" lively place on June 28.

SEGREGATION IN

different view in his dissenting opinion. He wrote:

"There is no longer any basis for a state to claim the power to separate according to race in graduate schools, universities and colleges. . . . I am of the opinion that all of the legal guide posts, expert testimony, common sense and reason point unerringly to the conclusion that the system of segregation in education adopted and practiced in the state of South Carolina must go and must go now."

From Columbia, there came a terse "no comment" from the office of Governor James F. Byrnes on the decision. The former supreme court justice and secretary of state had declared before the case was heard that South Carolina would "reluctantly" close her public schools before mixing the races in them.

In New York, Executive Secretary Walter White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, announced that the N. A. A. C. P. is not abandoning its fight on the south's segregated schools. He said the association would "appeal immediately to the United States supreme court."

James M. Hinton, president of the South Carolina Chapter of the N. A. A. C. P., expressed optimism that the supreme court would reverse the lower court. He added that "we feel as strongly now that segregation is morally wrong and must be eliminated if America is to focus her impact on the world of darker-skinned peoples."

The special three-judge court, as is customary in cases involving state constitutions, heard the case so that it could be appealed directly to the supreme court. The plaintiffs, producing testimony by several educators against segregation, argued that the segregation provision of the state constitution violated the 14th amendment of the U. S. constitution. That amendment guarantees equal protection of the laws to all citizens.

The court held, however, that the state constitution does not violate the 14th amendment. But it added that educational facilities for Negroes in Clarendon school district No. 22 "are not substantially equal to those afforded for white pupils (and) that this inequality is violative of the equal protection clause of the 14th amendment."

The court, in its decree, then ordered Clarendon trustees to equalize their facilities for both races. It further ordered them to report back within six months "as to the action to carry out this order."

GOV. DEWEY

to San Francisco July 1 and on to Tokyo the next day. He expects to arrive in the Japanese capitol July 4 (Tokyo date) and will address the America-Japan Society there July 6.

After a week in Japan he will fly to Korea, he said, and visit the front lines. Then will come his visit with Chiang Kai-Shek, after which he will go on to Manila, Hong Kong, French Indo - China, Singapore, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand before returning home by way of Hawaii. He also may visit Thailand.

Dewey said he hoped to confer with General Douglas MacArthur before leaving for Tokyo. He talked with the deposed Far Eastern commander shortly after MacArthur returned to the United States.

Dewey said he had discussed his trip with fellow-Republican John Foster Dulles, special assistant to the secretary of state and now engaged in working out details of a U. S.-Japanese peace treaty.

Asked by a reporter whether there were "anything political" in his trip, Dewey replied:

"Absolutely nothing."

He said his views on 1952 were well known and did not need repeating. He has said that he would not be a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination next year and that he was supporting General Dwight D. Eisenhower for the nomination.

Eisenhower has not said he is a candidate for any nomination.

In Indianapolis, Senator Robert A. Taft, a potential candidate for the GOP nomination, was asked for the comment on Dewey's plans to visit the Korean war front. Taft said:

"I am glad for him to have a vacation if he wants to take it that way. I have no further comment."

ARMISTICE

and that the Chinese Communists have studiously ignored it.

Even as Malik was speaking here, the Peiping Communist radio was declaring that their army "must wipe out the enemy's manpower" in Korea, not just drive the armies off the peninsula.

Malik's new line—if it turns out to be new—had not yet reached Mao Tze-tung, Red China's leader.

His speech — unusually short for any Russian policy statement—left a number of questions unanswered. The chief one was whether he could speak effectively for the Chinese Communists.

Malik said the belligerents on both sides should take part in discussions for an armistice and withdrawal of troops of both sides from the 38th parallel.

Malik did not specify who he thought the belligerents were. U. N. spokesmen said the assumed he meant the Chinese and north Korean Communists on one side and the U. N. Forces on the other.

Malik's high policy statement, the first program speech he has ever made on a U. S. radio network, was contained in a broadcast of 14 minutes and 25 seconds recorded for a U. N. weekly program "price of peace." He was the series' 13th speaker.

U. N. delegation heads in New York began a quick study of the English version of the statement which Malik read for the transcribed broadcast. They indicated they would not have comment until the statement was referred back to their governments for further study.

Malik devoted much of his speech to attacks on the western powers, the north Atlantic treaty, American military bases abroad, the armaments race, and U. S. policy in Germany and Japan.

He insisted that the Soviet union and its people were devoted to peace and still believed in the peaceful coexistence of Socialist and capitalist systems.

He charged that the United States is trying to spread war in the Far East and guiding the U. N. into becoming an instrument of war. He attacked what he called seizure of Formosa by the United States, the embargo on Red China after it was declared an aggressor in Korea, and denial to Red China of a place in the U. N.

But after summing up his attacks and what he called the "profoundly vicious" policy of the west, he said the Soviet people felt the problem of the armed conflict in Korea could be settled.

"This would require the readiness of the parties to enter on the path of a peaceful settlement of the Korean question," he said.

"The Soviet peoples believe that, as a first step discussions should be started between the belligerents for a cease-fire and an armistice providing for the mutual withdrawal of forces from the 38th parallel.

"Can such a step be taken?

"I think it can, provided there is a sincere desire to put an end to the bloody fighting in Korea.

"I think that, surely is not too great a price to pay in order to achieve peace in Korea."

In proposals for discussing a cease-fire the Soviet bloc has always insisted that Russia and Red China be among the participants in any parley.

RED TRIAL OF

day on charges of plotting to overthrow the Communist government. They face possible death sentences.

The archbishop, who succeeded Cardinal Minszenty as head of the church in Hungary when the cardinal was sentenced to life imprisonment on treason charges in February, 1949, confessed he aimed to overthrow the government with arms and American aid. Three other defendants made confessions yesterday. Five of the defendants are Roman Catholic churchmen.

(The confession of the defendant is part of the regular technique of Communist trials. American businessman Robert A. Vogeler, sentenced to 15 years imprisonment on spy charges last year, gave an account of how his own confession was wrung from him. He was released last April. He said he was questioned for hours without rest, food or sleep, slapped and tossed in ice water, and finally his resistance and will were so undermined that he did not care what he said.)

In today's parade of confessions, six more Americans, including United States Minister Nathaniel P. Davis, were involved. They were: Louis Revey, former press and cultural attache at the embassy, who left Hungary two years ago; Ruth Tryon, present head of the U. S. information service in Budspest; Miss Mary Eich, her secretary; Malcolm Toon, legation secretary who left for Washington last year, and U. S. Air Attache Maj. onald Griffith.

Two Americans, former Legation Secretary Chris Petrow, and the present secretary, Albert Sherer, Jr., were mentioned yesterday as contacts with the alleged revolutionary organization.

The Americans all were mentioned today by Dr. Elajos Pongraz, 42, former Hungarian employe of the U. S. information service who was arrested last March on spy charges.

The fifth defendant to testify, he said he was an experienced intelligence officer who gathered secret information and passed it on to Griffith, Revey, Miss Tryon and Miss Eich.

He said he came into contact with Archbishop Groesz' group when he was ordered to collect information about the strained relations between the state and church. He said he had written on a legation typewriter a declaration by the archbishop that he would accept the functions of the head of state after overthrow of the Communist government. He testified the document was passed on to U. S. Minister Davis who is now on leave in the United States.

Vendel Endredy, tall, 56-year-old Abbot of the once-powerful Cistercian order which was dissolved in Hungary last year, boasted from an apparently excellent memory of money he had received from the Vatican and the United States. He said the money was used for political purposes, aiding royalists and helping the monks of dissolved monasteries in illegal activities. Between 1945 and 1951, he said he had received $33,000 from Cistercians in the nited States and $25,000 from Catholic circles at the Vatican.

Testifying in a rich baritone, he said he was the son of a poor peasant who was guilty of "criminal neglect and negligence" in tolerating appalling social conditions on the 30,008 enres of estates owned by the order in Hungary.

Defendant No. 7, Gyula Hagyo-Kovacs, a member of the pre-war senate, readily told the court how he made money illegally on instructions form Abbot Endready by trading in dollars and other currencies.

ALLIES ATTACK

both sides of the 38th parallel.

It was the first time Malik had made a bid that did not call for such conditions as U. N. admission of Red China. There was no immediate reaction in Korea or Tokyo to the Malik statement.

A dispatch from U. S. eighth army headquarters in Korea said that Malik's proposal had not been broadcast by the armed forces radio to front line troops more than two hours after the first announcement.

(The Peiping radio in a broadcast several hours before Malik spoke, talked defiantly of "wiping out the enemy's manpower in Korea." The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press at San Francisco. It was a switch from the old Peiping theme of driving the Allies from Korea.)

There was no indication of a cease-fire in the methodical preparations of the Chinese Communists. They massed troops along the 100-mile Korean front. Especially in the west north of Seoul.

In the air, 30 U. S. F-86 Sabre jets battled 12 to 18 Russian-made Mig-15 jets near the Manchurian border—the sixth day of such air battles in one week.

One Mig was damaged. It raised the score for the week to 11 Red planes destroyed, one probably destroyed and 22 damaged. In the same period, two Allies planes were destroyed and two were missing.

All signs still pointed to an imminent Communist offensive, possibly on June 25, first anniversary of the war.

The U. S. eighth army commander, in a pre-anniversary statement, said confidently "We shall not be defeated in Korea."

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet reviewed a year of war which seesawed to Korea's southwest tip, to its northern borders, and back to the middle. He said his eighth army now packs the firepower to repulse the Chinese and north Korea foe, whom he called "cunning, determined and ruthless."

Red resistance stiffened across 100 miles of front as screening forces strove to keep the Allies from penetrating outpost of the new Communist line.

The line is roughly 20 miles north of parallel 38 from the east coast to the old Red "iron triangle" in central Korea. Then it curves southwest to the 39th parallel north of Seoul.

Inside the triangle, Allied troops fought one of the bloodiest engagements in weeks. They twice won and twice lost a 500-foot hill before a third charge won them the crest just south of the triangle's apex town of Pyonggang. They had to yield another hill nearby and called on artillery to blast it.

In the west, Allied patrols were rebuffed by two Red regiments. These Chinese were believed to be screening an even largr Communist force north of Seoul near parallel 38, the old boundary which the north Korean Communists shattered by their invasion at dawn June 25, 1950.

In east-central Korea, Allied artillery pounded Reds observed massing on ridges northeast of Yanggu.

The jig-saw pattern was similar to the ones preceding the Chinese April 22 and May 16 offensives, both of which were halted by heavy Chinese casualties.

The hottest fight was near the apex of the onetime Red triangle in the central sector.

Unitd Nations elements jumped off at dawn Saturday to clear an area south of Pyonggang, northern tip of the triangle and controlling point for the broad plain to the north.

A field dispatch said the attack was aimed at throwing any imminent Red offensive off balance.

The Allies hurled a strong attack at a 500-foot hill in the broiling sun. The Chinese answered from their log-bunkered dugouts with machineguns, rifles and automatic weapons.

CONTROLS GET

applied, expires June 30. The administration is conducting an uphill fight to get it broadened and extended before the deadline.

The president addressed his letter to Vice President Barkley and Speaker Rayburn, and enclosed an accompanying report by the president's National Advisory Board on mobilization policy, stressing the dangers of inflation. "I have been considerably distressed," the president said, "by some provisions in the defense production bills reported by the Senate and House Banking and Currency Committees.

"These provisions take the easy way—to relax controls and hope for the best—which is extremely dangerous. All of us should realize that we are in a hard, tough fight with inflation in this country—just as we are in a hard, tough fight with aggression in Korea. x x x.

"I recommend most strongly that the defense production bills be strengthened, so that we can build the defense of our country without undermining the standard of living of our people or weakening the American dollar."

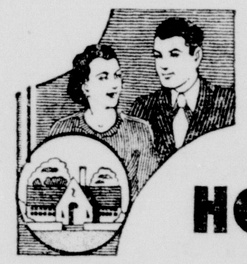

The president originally asked that the controls act be extended for two years. The senate bill provides for only eight months extension; the house measure for one year.

NEGRO INJURED

Robert Porter, Negro, was treated at local hospital last night following a fight and cutting scrape at a bar on DeSiard avenue.

Monroe police were called out at 10:30 last night.

The owner of the bar said he didn't think Porter was cut very bad. He identified the other participant in the fight as L. Johnson.

EL DORADO SHAVES MONROE'S LEAD

SPORTS TUMBLE BEFORE OILERS TO TUNE OF 7-4

Three Unearned Runs Prove Margin Of Victory; Play Again Today

El Dorado, Ark., June 23—(Special)—Three unearned runs were just what the El Dorado Oilers needed as they defeated the Monroe Sports, 7 to 4, in the opener of a two-game series here tonight, defeat of the Sports shaved their Cotton States League lead to one and a half games over the Oilers. The front runners of the league play here again Sunday afternoon.

The two Monroe errors that permitted the margin of victory didn't look too impressive until Catcher Dick Anderson, who was charged with one of the errors, hit a three run homer in the eighth inning in which the Sports scored all their runs.

Monroe outhit El Dorado, 11 to 6, but could't squeeze in runs when scoring opportunities presented themselves. The Sports, with eleven men stranded, had runners left on base in every inning except the first.

The Sports were behind 7-0 when they made their four-run flourish in the eighth. Bolo Hamric and John Paul Jones drew free passes to open the eighth. Al Mazur flied out, but George Andrews singled, loading the bases. Hamric scored as Carl Tucker grounded out to first base, and then Anderson followed with his long blow over the left field wall, Jones and Andrews coming home ahead of him.

Roy Niccolai and Chuck Slaber toiled on the mound for the Oilers, Niccolai getting credit for the victory. Miccolai left the game when he walked Darvin Chrisco after Anderson's homer, and Slaber came in to cool the Sports' heels the rest of the way.

"Arky" Bowden, who lasted only two and a third innings for the Sports, was the loser, giving up five runs during the time he worked. It was against Bowden that the Oilers got their unearned tallies. Chrisco relieved Bowden in the third and finished for the visitors.

El Dorado scored first with one run in the second inning as Mel Nunes walked and came all the way home from first when Carl Tucker dropped Eddie Zabek's fly into right field for what should have been the third out.

Then the Oilers added four more runs in the third. Jim Sinovic walked. Creed Nance poked a slow roller in front of the plate and all hands were safe as Catcher Dick Anderson, fielding the ball, made the play too late at second. Practically the same thing happened again when Jim Morgan punched a roller to Al Mazur at third. Mazur also made the play at second too late and the bases were loaded. Bill McGhee then singled, scoring Sinovic and Nance. Nunes popped out, but Ed Wolan walked, and Chrisco came to Bowden's relief. Anderson, attempting to pick Morgan off third, hit Morgan on the shoulder and the ball bounded into the outfield, Morgan and McGhee scoring.

The Oilers added two more runs in the fifth to make it a 7-0 lead. Morgan singled. Then with two out, Chrisco walked Wolan and served up a double to Johnny Palazzini that scored Morgan and Wolan.

PATTY BERG COPS WESTERN CROWN

Veteran Pro Pushed All Way In Gruelling Final With Pat O'Sullivan

Philadelphia, June 23.—(AP)—Patty Berg of Minneapolis streaked from behind today to turn back the cool-headed amateur, Pat O'Sullivan, two up, and capture her fourth Women's Western Open Golf championship.

The final match was so doggedly waged over the full 36-hole distance that the antagonists never were more than two holes part. Most of the time it was the veteran pro, Miss Berg, trying to overhaul the sensational 23-year-old amateur from Orange, Conn.

After trailing for 17 holes in the morning, the stocky daughter of Minnesota rammed home a 30-foot putt on the 18th to pull level for the first time. She sank a six-foot putt on the 36th to record her triumph by two holes.

At the end of the gruelling match and in 95 degree humidity, the champion plopped into a chair completely exhausted. She looked like a fighter who had just gone 15 rounds.

Miss O'Sullivan, cool as an ice cube for most of the day and relentless in applying pressure, showed her first signs of folding at the last stages of the long haul over the 6,660-yard Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

All square going to the last two holes, the New England Irish lass flubbed vital approach shots on the 35th and 36th holes to lose them to birdie and a par. It was her only crackup all day.

Tumlinson Pushes Gilbert In Race For Cotton States Slugging Lead

By J. P. Friend

Blytheville Ark., June 24.—(Special)—Carl Tumlinson, Greenwood, picked up 13 points in batting during the week ending June 19 and pulled to within 13 points of the Cotton States League leader, Jim Gilbert of Natchez.

The Dodger shortstop rapped out ten hits in 21 times at bat to boost his mark to .373, while Gilbert was dropping 11 points to .386 by virtue of only four safeties in 16 tries, according to the records of the Friend News Service, loop statistician.

Rex Carr, Hot Springs' clouting skipper, collected four hits in two consecutive games, June 13 and 14, and enabled him to move into third place with .341, a net gain of 11 points. Bobby Greene, Monroe flash, skidded ten points to .335 and down to fourth. Wally Buerger, Greenville slugger, got into but two games during the last period but had 9-4 and five points to .332 and no. 5 rating. Bill (Fibber) McGhee, El Dorado pilot, slipped to sixth with .331, a nine-point decline. High Glaze, Clarksdale, is ninth with .329, with Fred Boiko, Pine Bluff's speedster completing the upper ten with .327.

Al Mazur, Monroe manager, returning to the regular lineup at third, has a .353 figure, but has appeared in 51 times at bat with 18 hits.

Gilbert continues to dominate the specialized departments with three firsts, 83 hits; 138 total bases and 53 runs batted in. Carr, Austin and John Paul Jones, Monroe, are in a three-way deadlock for doubles, each with 21. However, Jones tops in triples with nine. Pete Konyar, Pine Bluff, is pulling away in homers with 15, getting two last week. He also has scored the most runs, 61. Bob Bonebrake, Greenwood sprinter, added a stolen base and clads with 41. Boiko has swiped 20.

Billy Muffett, Monroe, subdued Pine Bluff twice in four days and extended his winning streak to 11 straight. (He made it 12 in a row at Greenville Friday night) after losing his first start. His .917 percentage is best. Greenwood's Don Scott is second in rating with 5-1, for .833. Ira Hugh Moxley, Greenwood, is tied with Muffett in total wins, 11, but has lost four. He is followed by Copeland Goss, El Dorado, 8-3; Ben Lott, Pine Bluff, 5-2; Jerry Gardner, El Dorado, 7-3; Vachel Perkins, Pine Bluff, 9-4; Claude White, Monroe, 8-4; Rogers Stewart, Monroe; Don Rod, Natchez, and Charles Slaber, El Dorado, with 6-3; Tommy Graham, El Dorado, 9-5; and Bill Crawford, Greenwood, 7-4.

VICKSBURG VISITS BAYOU'S GOLFERS

Intercity Matches Scheduled Here This Afternoon At Country Club Course

Vicksburg Country Club golfers move into Monroe today for their second intercity match of the season with Bayou DeSiard Country Club's linksmen. Vicksburg won the first match at the Mississippi city recently, 25½ to 7½.

At the close of today's matches, the scores for both meets will be added, and the club ahead will take possession of a trophy established by the rival clubs as a permanent fixture to remain in the club house of the winning team each year. Bayou DeSiard golfers will really have to do their stuff today to overcome the lead Vicksburg already sports as a result of the earlier matches.

Bayou Pro Winnie Cole last night announced pairings for the intercity matches today, with visitors listed first, and starting times as follows:

O. B. Lambert and J. W. Evans vs. E. N. Hemphill and O. N. McCleary, 12:45; Ed Brunini and Dr. L. J. Clark vs. Robert Guerriero and McVea Oliver, 12:52; Cliff Hamilton and Ben Colmery vs. Clyde Nash and C. J. Turpin, 12:59; Dan Ricks and Joe Palaramo vs. Hal McClendon and Tilden Austin, 1:06; Sam Simmons and Lec Edwards vs. E. S. Girault and Bill Jones, 1:13; Dr. Gus Street and Dr. P. S. Herring vs. Dr. John Snelling and Jack Cottrell, 1:20; Alex Brunini and Dr. James Kiely vs. Fred Parrish and C. C. Minard, 1:27; Clint Schlottman and Richard Marcus vs. Charles Seiss and John Savage, 1:34; Dr. George Street and Bob Wilkerson vs. C. T. Munholland and Wesley Shafto, 1:41; L. P. Warren and John Boa vs. W. C. C[illegible] and C. B. McMahon, 1:48.

Don Powell and George Hollander vs. Burt Sperry and Allen Barham, 1:55 Bob Odom and Joe Odom vs. Dr. W. C. Summer and W. O. Webb, 2:02; E. Schlottman and Homer Smith vs. Fred Fudickar and George Miller, 2:09; W. W. Beckham and Al Drew vs. Jack Rubin and W. E. Dorrah, 2:16; Wilson Kent and John Holland vs. Fred Hudson and C. E. Thompson, 2:23; and B. Faulkner and Claude Wray vs. Henry Hinkle and Ned Leigh, 2:30.

The match between Bill Jones and "Shep" Girault, the Bayou's aces, and the Vicksburg duo of Edwards and Simmons is the feature foursome of the afternoon.

Meanwhile, the Bayou linksmen are continuing play in their club championship event.

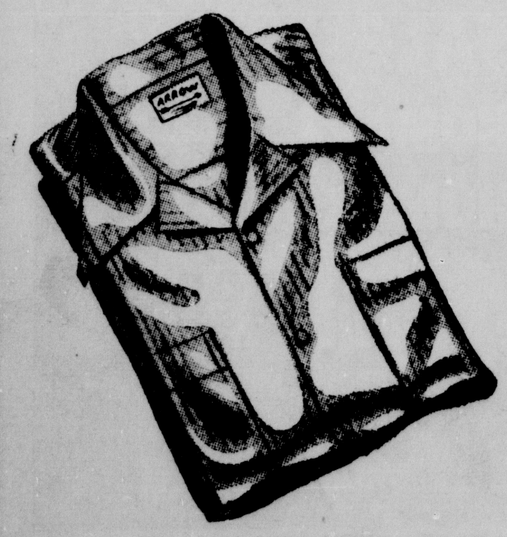

First round results in the first bracket (winners enter championship flight, losers in first flight): W. A. Jones beat Dr. W. C. Summer, 6 and 5; Jack Cottrell defeated Louis Milner, 2 and 1; Clyde Nash beat Ben Downing, 4 and 3; Robert Guerriero stopped Charlie Seiss, 4 and 3; E. S. Girault won over Dr. John Snelling, 6 and 5; R. B. Oliver defeated W. E. Dorrah, 5 and 4; Tilden Austin beat Bill Carpenter, 2 and 1; Harold McClendon beat C. C. Minard, 3 and 2; E. N. EXPECT BIG FIELD FOR KRAFT EVENT

Bastrop Prepares For 17th Annual Golf Tourney July 2-3-4

Bastrop, La., June 23—(Special)—In less than two weeks the seventeenth annual Kraft Paper Golf Tournament will be held at the Morehouse Country Club here with every indication pointing toward a large field although the 302 entries for the 1950 event will be hard to top.

Club Pro Milo Mattinson has announced awards valued at $1,500 will be awaiting amateurs winning in the various flights of the tournament opening with the pro-amateur on Monday, July 2, and the amateur feature running July 3 and 4. Cash awards totalling $225 will be awarded winning professionals in the pro-amateur event.

Qualifying began last Monday and will continue until noon Monday, July 2. At 1 o'clock, Monday, July 2, qualifying will be conducted for medalist and championship flight contenders, and at the same time the pro-amateur will get underway.

A chicken barbecue will be offered by the club to all contenders at 8 p. m., July 2.

First round matches in the amateur feature will begin at 7 a. m., July 3. Second rounds will also be played in the afternoon of the same day.

Semi-finals and finals in all flights will be played July 4.

The club's new tiled men's shower room is nearing completion, and Pro Mattinson said it will be ready and adequate to accomodate all entries.

Bill Jones, Monroe, will be on hand to defend the championship he won last year.

Mattinson said all Morehouse club members are being requested to qualify as soon as possible to leave the field free for visiting qualifiers next weekend.

The Louisiana Hotel and Shamrock Hotel are both modern and will be able to handle all reservations by visiting linksmen. Practice rounds will not be permitted July 2.

Joe Rountree, Dallas, Tex., representative of Wilson sporting goods, will be official starter for the tournament.

L. T. I. ADDS TWO MORE GRID TILTS

Addition Of Mississippi Eleven Brings Slate For '51 To 13 Games

Addition of two more football games will give the Louisiana Training Institute Pelicans a 13-game schedule this fall.

Superintendent A. L. Swanson and principal Kermit Youngblood, also athletic director, yesterday said Mississippi Boys' Industrial School of Columbia, Miss., has been added for two games, coming here for a season opener September 8, and the Pelicans going to Columbia for their final November 30.

It will enable L.T.I. football teams, for the first time in the history of the institution, to invade two states the same season. They had previously dates Junction City, Ark., High School.

The schedule includes nine Class B district conference games with Columbia, La., LaSalle of Olla, Clarks, St. Matthew's of Monroe, Gilbert, Waterproof, Sicily Island, Wisner, and Holly Ridge; one northwest district team, Dubach; and the three intersectional scraps with the Mississippi and Arkansas teams.

The schedule is probably the most ambitious tackled by L.T.I. although a better than average Pelican team in 1945 played a 13-game slate, winning six, tying one, and losing six, although not meeting quite as strong an array of teams or traveling so far.

A new 1951 bus, slated for August 1 delivery, and new uniforms are also ordered for the Pelicans.

Beter travel facilities and the "best-dressed" possibility are just a few of the improvements for the benefit of L.T.I. boys instituted by Swanson since the former coach at Oak Grove, High, Southeastern Louisiana College, L.S.U., and Southwestern Louisiana took over as superintendent here. New installations on the campus for intramural athletic programs (in addition to varsity fields) include five volley ball courts, four outdoor basketball courts, two softball diamonds, a baseball diamond, six horseshoe courts.

The complete L.T.I. grid schedule:

Sept. 9-Mississippi Boys' Industrial School, here.
Sept. 13-Columbia, here.
Sept. 20-LaSalla at Olla.
Sept. 27-Clarks, here.
Oct. 4-St. Matthew's, here.
Oct. 11-Gilbert, here.
Oct. 18-Dubach, there.
Oct. 25-Waterproof, here.
Nov. 1-Sicily Island, here.
Nov. 8-Junction City, there.
Nov. 15-Wisner, here.
Nov. 22-Holly Ridge, there.
Nov. 30-Mississippi Boys' Industrial at Columbia, Miss.

Kiner Single Keeps Newcombe From No-Hit Circle As Bums Blast Bucs

Dodgers Go On 16-Hit Spree To Hammer Out 13-1 Win Over Pirates

Pittsburgh, June 23.—(AP)—Ralph Kiner's first inning single and wildness deprived Don Newcombe of a no-hit, no-run game today as the big righthander pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 13-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Kiner singled with two out in the first inning for the lone Pirate hit. Newcombe walked four batters in the ninth to force over the only Pirate run. Newcombe walked seven and fanned five in posting his ninth victory.

The Dodgers supported Newcombe's classy pitching with a 16-hit barrage that included home runs by Carl Furillo and Rocky Bridges. Jackie Robinson didn't join the fun, going hitless in four tries and his batting average dropped from .374 to .367.

CUBS BEAT GIANTS

Chicago, June 23 — (AP) —Chicago's collection of former Brooklyn personnel combined their talents today to spark the Cubs to a 7-4 victory over the New York Giants.

The victory was the Cubs first over the Giants in their home park since May 9, 1950. The Giants had won ten straight at Wrigley Field during that span. The loss also put the Giants 7½ games back of the pace-setting Dodgers.

Former Dodgers Gene Hermanski, Bruce Edwards and Ed Miksis drove in all four runs of a fifth inning rally that gave the Cubs a commanding 6-1 lead. Ransom Jackson batted in the other three Chicago runs on a homer and fly ball.

RAINED OUT

St. Louis, June 23—(AP)—A heavy shower washed out the game between the Boston Braves and the St. Louis Cardinals tonight after two scoreless innings.

The Cardinals' Harry Brecheen, who has a 4-0 record, and Tribal ace Vern Bickford, who has won eight and lost six, were locked in what promised to be a sparkling pitching duel when the downpour struck. The playing field was submerged before the tarpaulins could be unrolled.

Brecheen opened by striking out the first three Boston batters and then set the next three down in order in the second inning.

A single by Nippy Jones and a walk to Solly Hemus gave the Cards two base runners in the second but Bickford fanned Brecheen for the third out before play was halted.

FARMERVILLE FALLS

Ruston, La., June 23. — (Special) — Dubach's 9 to 8 victory over the league leading Farmerville club enabled Bernice to take over the top spot in the Big Eight League. The Ruston Rebels coasted to an easy victory over the Commercial Solvents of Sterlington behind stellar pitching by Tinker Hood.

The Ruston Volunteers enjoyed a one-run lead going into the ninth inning against the Red Birds from Minden and it looked like the Minden club had been stopped in their mad dash towards the top, but the roof caved in, and Minden pushed six runs across in the top of the ninth on four hits and a couple of miscues on the part of the Vols. Hollis Morton, who relieved Lynwood Outz in the fifth, was credited with the victory.

Hodge was continued in good standing in the Big Eight and will keep their franchise. Manager Luther Hanna reported a reorganization program at Jonesboro-Hodge and the managers voted unamiously for Hodge's continuance in the league. At the meeting an All star team was selected by the Managers of the Northern and Southern clubs. The All-Star game this year will be played at Farmerville, July 6.

Stephens Breaks Up 11-Inning Ball Game As Bosox Whip Pale Hose, 8-7

Yankees Close In On White Stockings With 7-6 Win Over Indians

Boston, June 23. —(AP)— Slugger Vern Stephens continued his personal war against the Chicago White Sox' pennant hopes today by poling out an 11th inning two bagger that pulled out an 8-7 victory for the Boston Red Sox.

The setback cut the Chisox first place lead to a game and a half over the New York Yankees.

Last night Stephens' three-run homer shaved another game off the Chisox lead. It was the deciding blow as the Red Sox topped the White Sox, 6-5, in the opener of a four - game series.

Stephens' latest game winning smash, which scored Ted Williams, was against Billy Pierce, the little southpaw who replaced starter Howie Judson in the seventh inning.

The Red Sox, who used five pitchers, started off with Ray Scharborough and wound up with Willard Nixon, who, after working three innings, wound up with his fourth victory against one defeat.

The Red Sox gave Scarborough a four run lea, but the White Sox rallied for three runs in the third and four in the seventh to gain what appeared to be a decisive 7-5 edge.

But Pierce surrendered that advantage by walking both Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky before Billy Goodman came through with a two bagger that tied matters at 7-all in the eighth.

YANKS NIP TRIBE

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Pinch-hitter Joe Collins slashed a two-run single to left field with two out in the ninth inning to give the New York Yankees a 7 to 6 victory over the Cleveland Indians today.

The game - winning blow capped a three-run rally and allowed the Yankees to creep within 1½ games of the league-leading Chicago White Sox, who lost at Boston, 7-6.

Collins' timely hit scored Yogi Berra and Joe DiMaggio and extended a long-standing Yankee Sadium jinx for the Indians.

Until the ninth it looked as though the Indians might register their first victory in New York since July 14, 1950. During that time, the Tribe had dropped nine straight here.

But it just wasn't to be. Mickey Mantle and Berra opened the ninth by walking. Mike Garcia, who was the loser, replaced Lou Brissie on the mound after it was announced that DiMaggio was hitting for Gene Woodling.

The Yankee Clipper, making his first appearance since the recent death of his mother, doubled to right field scoring Berra. Mantle stopped at third.

Bobby Brown was intentionally passed, filling the bases. When pinch-hitter Johnny Hopp skied to Sam Chapman in short centerfield and Berra was forced to hold third, it looked as if Cleveland might make it. But Collins, a secondary figure in New York's pennant plans, delivered his clutch hit, and most of the 15,597 fans left the park happy.

All-Star Contest Scheduled July 4

A North vs South All-Star game will be played between teams of the Little Six Baseball League July 4, with five outstanding players to be chosen from each club.

Wilhite, Point and Terral's Store will represent the North, and the South lineup will come from Eros, Farmerville and Eureka. Farmerville is replacing the West Monroe Brownies, who dropped from the loop earlier.

Names of the All-Star players will be released within the next two weeks, league officials said.

Harris Still In Hospital Cause Of Illness Elusive

Washington, June 23. —(AP)— Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, will be kept in Georgetown Hospital at least three or four days for diagnostic treatment, Dr. George Resta, club physician, said today.

Earlier Dr. Resta had indicated Harris had improved to the point where he would be released from the hospital today by x-rays failed to reveal the source of Harris' intestinal disorder.

He was stricken shortly before the Washington - Detroit baseball game last night.

Farmerville Club Wins Four In Row

Farmerville, La., June 23.(Special)—The Farmerville American Legion Junior baseball team, defending champions of the fifth district of Louisiana, served notice on their district rivals this week that it plans to continue its reign

The Union parish team, after winning three and losing four, opened second round play with four consecutive victories this week to vault the Farmerville boys to a 7-4 record.

Farmerville started the string with the 7-6 conquest of Jonesboro-Hodge Tuesday night with Joe Farrar driving in the winning run in the seventh inning; measured Ruston, 7-6, Wednesday night with Malcom McVicker's seven-hitter; walloped Delhi, 15-1, Thursday night as Phillip Reeves hurled a three-hitter; and plastered Tallulah, 24-6, last night while backing Hayes' four-hitter with a 19-hit attack on Tallulah chunking.

The Clarks Legion team invades Farmerville for a game Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and next Friday night Bastrop will be here for a game beginning at 8 o'clock.

PACER SETS RECORDS

New York—(AP)—If the roan pacer, White Mountain Boy, never does anything else he will still be remembered as the first horse to hold track records simultaneously at both New York City trotting tracks—Roosevelt Raceway and Yonkers. The five-year-old stallin established the track record at Roosevelt last year with a mile in 2.00 3-5. This season he did a 2.02 4-5 mile at Yonkers for a record. —SK

FIELD HOUSE

Laramie, Wyo.—(AP)— The University of Wyoming's $1,100,000 War Memorial Field House will be formally opened Dec. 14 and 15 with a four-game basketball tournament. The three other teams will be Colorado A & M, St. Mary's College of California

Sturdy One Surprise Winner Of Inglewood

Inglewood, Calif., June 23 —(AP)—Citation stayed out of action nursing an ailing leg today, leaving the way open for Sturdy One to score a surprising victory in the $25,000 Inglewood Handicap before 41,700 fans at Hollywood Park.

In a blanket finish for the field of eight, Moonrush, the California pride, ran out of the money and it was left for Citation's stablemate, All Blue, as a pinch hitter, to salvage something from the race. All Blue grabbed second place and Be Fleet was third.

The time for the mile and one sixteenth was 1.42 1-5. Sturdy One paid $16.40, $7.10 and $8.30; All Blue $5.20 and $3.20, and Be Fleet $2.70.

Bewitch, the six - year - old mare racing for the Calumets, came up from dead last to take the fourth spot.

Hall Of Fame Triumphs In $25,000 Kent Stakes

Wilmington, Del., June 23. —(AP)—Hall of Fame raced to a six-length victory in the $25,000-added Kent Stakes at Delaware Park today, leaving a dozen other top-notch three - year-olds in his wake before a crowd of 18,500.

The triumph by Hall Of Fame, who paid $7.80 for 2, gave the Greentree stable its second winner in the event. Wine List captured it in 1949.

The Hampton stable's Alerted was second, a neck ahead of Frank A. Bonsal's Mullys.

Mrs. Nora A. Mikell's Repetoire, was second choice behind Hall Of Fame, but finished fifth after starting fast. The victory netted Hall Of Fame $23,300.

Two St. Louis Infielders Become Fathers Same Day

St. Louis, June 23.—(AP)—Infielders Nippy Jones and Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals each became the father of a baby daughter today.

Jones' second daughter was born this morning. The first child for the Schoendiensts arrived this afternoon.

ARTHUR "YANKEE" ARNOLD 17-year-old Delhi youth (above), has been been signed by the St. Louis Browns of the American League and his contract assigned to the Pine Bluff Judges of the Cotton States League. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Arnold Jr., Delhi, starred as a pitcher for Delhi High School and Delhi American Legion Junior baseball teams. He was signed at a recent tryout camp conducted by the Browns at Pine Bluff.

Herbie Dwire boosted the L.T.I. baseball team to top position in the Recreation Baseball League yesterday with a grand slam home run and one hit pitching that felled the West Monroe club, 9 to 4.

The one hit allowed by Dwire was a single by "Red"Counts and the second hit Dwire has released in three games, one an exhibition tilt before the league season opened. Walter Leone was Dwire's catcher, and the losing battery were Brown and Marzula.

Portman's Electric won by forfeit over Red Shield in the only other game.

INVERNESS RACE GROWS TIGHTER

Victories By Mangrum And Middlecoff Make It Anybody's Tourney

Toledo, O., June 23.—(AP)—A couple of former National Open champions, Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff, turned the 14th Inverness four-ball golf matches into a tight contest today as they upset both the leading teams in 18-hole matches.

Clayton Heafner and Johnny Palmer, both of North Carolina, were still leading the pack with a plus 5 count after five of seven matches. But four other teams were within shooting distance.

Mangrum and Middlecoff handed the leaders a 5 - down defeat this morning as they toured the par-71 Inverness layout in 61 strikes, knocking the southerners off the top spot momentarily.

Henry Ransom and Roberto Devicenzo, who moved into the lead with plus 5 as Heafner and Palmer fell, were defeated one down by Mangrum-Middlecoff this afternoon. That defeat moved Devicenzo, the Argentine champ, and his partner into second place with plus 4 at the end of the day's play, Heafner and Palmer climbing back into the lead with a one-up victory over Freddie Haas and Ed "Porky" Oliver.

Mangrum and Middlecoff, shooting the two best rounds of the day, a 61 and a 65, moved into the third spot with plus 3. Deadlocked at plus 2 were defending champions Sam Snead and Jim Ferrier, who won two matches today, and Dutch Harrison and Marty Furgol, who picked up five points with a pair of victories in today's rounds.

Al Brosch and Pete Cooper wound up in the last spot with a minus 11 after losing two rounds today, but have scored exactly the same number of birdies—25—at the second place Ransom- Devicenzo pair.

Tied for the $250 special prize for the most birdies in this tournament are Mangrum - Middlecoff and Heafner - Palmer with 38 each.

The event winds up tomorrow with two rounds and indications are that it will be a drive to the finish before the winner of the $4,000 first prize is decided.

Curandero Wins Equipoise Mile

Chicago, June 23.—(AP)—Curandero, with the veteran Jackie Westrope astride, charged to a length and a quarter victory today in the $27,500 Equipoise Mile at Arlington Park.

The winner is owned by Robert Kleberg, Kingsville, Texas, owner of the fabulous King Ranch. Prop finished second, with the favored Inseparable third and Danada Gift fourth in a field of seven.

Curandero returned $8.80, $5.40 and $3.00 across the board. The place price on Prop was $4.20 and $2.40. Inseparable, one of three horses entered by the Hasty House farm, returned $2.20.

STRANAHAN, BLAIR BATTLE FOR TITLE

Seasoned Frankie Meets Oklahoma A. And M. Ace In Western Finals

South Bend, Ind., June 23.—(AP)—Frank Stranahan, seasoned amateur from Toledo, and Jim Blair, teen - aged sophomore at Oklahoma A. and M., won semi - final matches today and will meet tomorrow for the Western Amateur golf championship.

Stranahan had to withstand a withering sub - par surge by unheralded Bob Olson, Michigan's No. 1 golfer, through 27 holes before finally winning 3 and 2 in today's 36-hole semi finals.

The 19 - year-old Blair, belting 275 yard drives, was never behind from the early morning holes in eliminating John Hare the Indianapolis district titlist, 3 and 2.

The methodical, calculating Stranahan, who at 28 has won every big amateur crown but the National, meets a comparative newcomer in the scheduled 36-hole showdown.

Blair looks like a big overgrown farm boy and in his first major plunge from national recognition appears to be no more ruffled than as if he were pitchforking hay. The 19 - year-old son of Missouri's lieutenant governor should make a cool customer for Frankie.

Club Officials Deny Rumor Cubs Will Get Duke Snider

Chicago, June 23.—(AP)—Officials of the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers denied today reports Duke Snider would be traded to the Cubs next spring.

The report was that the Brooks would deal their center fielder to the Cubs as part of the recent four-for-four swap which sent Outfielder Andy Pafko to the Dodgers.

"Pure Malarkey," said Dodger President Walter O'Malley, in Brooklyn.

"There's nothing to it," commented Wid Matthews, Cubs' director of playing personnel. "The deal we made last week is finished."

Northern Star Romps Home First In Select Handicap

Oceanport, N. J., June 23.—(AP)—Northern Star carried the Greentree stable's pink and black silks to a convincing 2½-length victory in the $10,000-added Select Handicap at Monmouth Park today.

Roman Fair was second over a sloppy track while Patty's Day took third.

A crowd of 18,279 saw Jockey Fernando Fernandez guide Northern Star over the six furlongs in a creditable 1:11 and three-fifths. The three-year-old English - bred colt, favorite in the field of six, carried 114 pounds and paid $4.60, $3.00 and $2.60.

Firefighters Get Police Challenge To 'Put Out Fire'

Police and firemen, preparing for their annual baseball contest between the two Monroe public service organizations here Friday night, July 13, promise plenty of fireworks with the Firemen, in the role of defending champions, facing the task of having to "put out the fire" to retain their crown.

"Friday, the Thirteenth will be a sad day for the Firemen," declared Police Captain Jack Davis who revealed his policemen are working hard in the determination that the trophy will be displayed at police headquarters for the next year.

"Putting out fires is our business," challenged Chief Lee Hales of the fire department. "Those cops can get just as hot as they like. The hotter the fire the better my boys work. When we get through with those dazed bluecoats, they will think they were tackled by a 'general alarm.' "

A popular feature of the game last year was the spectacular comedy routine by members of both departments. The clown acts went over big with the fans, so more routines have been added to guarantee the customers "one-a-minute" laughs.

An added feature will also be presentation of awards to the players, made possible by merchants and businessmen of the Twin Cities.

Tickets for the game, to be played at Legion Memorial Park, are already on sale and may be obtained from any member of the Optimist Club, co-sponsor, or from any police officer or fireman. The pasteboards are going at one dollar for adults and 35 cents for children.

MISSOURI PACIFIC BEATS

Missouri Pacific took a 9 to 6 win over Lida Benton in a Peewee League softball game yesterday with Liles, Junjina and Carter the winning battery. Inzina and Pohlman paced the Missouri Pacific team with hits, and Dunn was the leading batter for Lida Benton.

Oil Production Up In Weekly Report

Tulsa, Okla., June 23.—(AP)—The nation's daily average crude oil production rallied slightly during the week ended June 16, totaling 6,102,100 barrels, the oil and gas journal reported today.

This was a gain, the journal said, of 550 barrels over the preceding week.

Kansas led the increase with 309,450 barrels, 6,300 more than its output the week before.

Other gainers were Mississippi, up 1,600 barrels to 100,450; Oklahoma, up 1,250 to 505,600; Arkansas, 150 to 78,300.

Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,754,175.

Plans Made If Oil Supply Cut

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Government agencies have worked out a pooling arrangement, it was learned today, under which big American oil companies operating abroad could share transportation and petroleum supplies to meet any emergency caused by a closing of the great Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Refinery at Abadan, Iran.

The arrangement has been worked out by the petroleum administrator for defense (PAD) in association with the office of defense mobilization and the antitrust division of the department of justice. The justice department informally approved the plan late this week.

Petroleum officials said representatives of interested companies will meet here Monday afternoon to go over the document technically known as "a voluntary agreement" under the defense production act. That law permits the lifting of liability for possible antitrust violations in combinations set up to meet defense needs.

Government petroleum experts said that if the Abadan refinery should close because of the Iranian-British dispute over oil nationalization, it would raise colossal problems of supplying petroleum products to the eastern hemisphere. Special difficulties are foreseen in providing kerosene for India and heavy fuel oil for ship bunkers. Motor gasoline was described by these sources as being not a serious problem at this time.

The idea of the voluntary agreements is simply that in order to meet essential oil demands of friendly countries American oil suppliers would be permitted to interchange their products and shipping capacity as well as other facilities for the purpose of making the most efficient use of available supplies, transport and the like.

Officials recall that when the Abadan refinery, the world's largest, shut down for a relatively brief time in April the PAD began work on a voluntary agreement and conferred here with representatives of 17 countries. It was not necessary then to go through with the project. A similar number of countries would be involved in the present operation.

April Gas Totals Up Over 1950 Level

Gas sales in April, 1951, totaled 4,473 million therms, an increase of 16.7 per cent over 3,833 million therms sold in April, 1950, the American Gas Association reported today. This substantial increase occurred despite a decline in degree days, the measure of climatic conditions upon which heating requirements are based, of 13 per cent under a year ago. The association's index of total gas utility sales for the month of April was 352.9 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

During the twelve months ended April 30, 1951, utility sales of gas rose to 38,616 million therms, an advance of 17.0 per cent over 32,998 million therms sold in the comparable period a year earlier.

Natural gas sales for the month of April aggregated 4,151 million therms, a gain of 19.0 per cent over 3,488 million therms sold in April, 1950. The A. G. A. index of natural gas sales was 385.3 per cent of the 1935-1939 average in April, 1951. For the twelve months ended April 30, 1951, sales of natural gas totaled 35,724 million therms, a gain of 18.7 per cent over a year earlier.

Combined manufactured and mixed gas sales during April, 1951, were 321.3 million therms, a decline of 7.1 per cent, compared with sales of 345.8 million therms of these gases in April, 1950. The index of manufactured and mixed gas sales during April, 1951 was 169.1 per cent of the 1935-1939 average. For the twelve months ended April 30, 1951, utility sales of manufactured and mixed gas were 2,892 million therms, a loss of 0.1 per cent under 2,895 million therms sold in the previous twelve-month period.

American Girl Lost In Berlin

Berlin, June 23.—(AP)—An American girl working for the U. S. consulate in Hamburg was reported lost tonight in the Soviet zone of Germany.

Officials said Miss Arlean Raff drove a German - licensed car through a border crossing point from Hamburg to Berlin Friday night and has not been heard from since.

The crossing point was one normally used only by German traffic.

The U. S. mission at Potsdam has asked the Soviet authorities to help trace the girl.

Miss Raff is the daughter of Frank Raff of St. Paul, Minn.

Loan To Iran Would Put U. S. In Ticklish Position

By Joseph C. Goodwin

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Iran's willingness now to accept a $25,000,000 loan from the U. S. export-import bank poses a ticklish step for this country in its effort to tread only middle ground in the British - Iranian dispute over oil nationalization.

The state department said last night Iran now wants the loan toward which it once displayed marked coolness.

Granting of such aid would jibe to a tee with the United States' policy of helping free countries strengthen their economies against the threat of communism. But it might be viewed by Britain — a valued anti - Communist ally — as a weapon against them in their fight to retain rich Iranian oil holdings.

When the idea of a loan from this country was first discussed with Iran last September, Iranian officials and newspapers complained that $25,000,000 would be far below economic assistance given other Communist -menaced nations.

The Communist - backed Tudeh party quickly stepped up its propaganda against the west. And some officials here were concerned that the Reds might succeed in taking over the Iranian government.

Iran, however, continued to hold a more - or - less middle course in its relations with east and west. Royalties from the British - owned Anglo - Iranian Oil company contributed sizeable revenues for government operations.

But since Premier Mohammed Mossadegh has moved to take over the oil company, the government has been in a precarious financial state. The oil royalties were stopped by the company weeks ago when Mossadegh's government passed the nationalization law.

Although Iranian officials are now in the oil fields to take over the operations in the name of the Iranian government, company officials are holding on, and the British government is appealing for relief to the world court.

Loss of the big Iranian fields and refining facilities would strip Britain of its largest single overseas money - maker and take a sizeable cut from western supplies of motor fuel.

Diplomats consider the situation so politically sensitive internationally that a single move in the wrong direction might touch off a war northern neighbor, Russia.

It was against this background that state department press officer Lincoln White said last night that Premier Mossadegh had advised U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady that he would now accept an export - import bank loan.

4 COMPLETIONS IN WEEKLY REPORT

Three New Oil Wells, One Gas Well Noted In Conservation Summary

Successful completions once again outnumbered abandonments in the weekly drilling report from the state department of conservation.

Four completions listed included three in the Tullos-Urania field and one in the Monroe field. Those in the Tullos-Urania field are:

W. T. Mack Co.-L. Tullos, No. 1, S23-T10-1E, puping one barrel; Placis Oil Co.-Urania Lumber Co. Pima No. 11 and B-1, both listed at S7-T10-2E, pumping an estimated 40 barrels and ten barrels, respectively.

In the Monroe field: Interstate Natural Gas-Fee Gas No. 301, 580 MCF.

Airman Is Charged With Killing Wife

Laurel, Miss., June 23.—(AP)—A 28-year-old airman who stabbed his wife to death with a Japanese dagger has been charged with murder, District Attorney Paul Swartzfager said today.

Swartzfager said Sgt. Herbert Egloff of Sicily Island, La., cut his own chest slightly after stabbing his 31 - year-old wife seven times last night. Mrs. Ruth Blakeney Green Egloff, former Laurel waitress, died soon after arriving at a hospital.

The district attorney said the attack took place at the home of Mrs. H. A. Cantrell, sister of Mrs. Egloff. Mrs. Cantrell and her 12-year - old son, Perry, were witnesses.

Schwartfager advanced jealousy as a possible motive for the man's actions. The couple had been married seven months.

General Inspecting Natchez Contracts

Washington, June 23. —(AP)— The Elvair Corporation of Mississippi came under an on - the-spot investigation today as the army inspector general's office started probing the company's defense contracts.

Three IG officers from Washington left for the company's Natchez plant. Elvair, with headquarters in Jackson, holds about $3,000,000 defense contracts.

The contracts were criticized by a house armed services subcommittee headed by Rep. Edward Hebert (D.-La.).

Juke Box Music Will Still Cost Five Cents

By Oland Silk
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Juke-box distributors in the Twin-Cities, having felt the public pulse on the matter of raising all recordings to a dime play, have apparently interpreted the diagnosis as signaling caution, and will not go up a nickel per serenade.

A spot survey of the three distributors in the Twin-Cities yesterday revealed this note of caution. It was generally understood that if anyone moved for conversion, it would be in unison with others.

COSTS HIGHER

A spokesman for the Delta Automatic Music Co. outlined the reasons for the discussed conversion, saying that records had gone up from 21 to 52 cents, and that the machines had risen from $269.50 to a category between $800 and $1,000.

Add to that operating costs and you have our predicament, he elaborated.

Although not speaking officially for the company, he saw little chance that the nickel charge would be raised.

Charlie and Sig Lett, operators of the Twin-City Music Company in West Monroe, envisioned a "bigger risk" by going to a dime than remaining at a nickel.

"It might even make business worse," Charlie Lett stated.

CASE CITED

Perhaps the one case stopping a conversion in Monroe is the abortive made by a Bastrop distributor to change to a dime. He had to revert to a nickel even though he had no competition.

An employe of the Monroe Vending Company here was of the opinion that such a conversion "just wouldn't work right now." He, like the others, said it would be nice for them, but not feasible.

The distributors look with envy upon the candy manufacturer who can produce a smaller candy bar for a nickel.

We can't make the records smaller or stop the recordings half-way, they all complain.

West Coast cities have already converted to the dime recording as has other sections of the nation. John Hawley of the National Association of Music Box Operators has predicted that all the nation's cities would follow suit within three months.

When told about the increase on the West Coast, one cafe operator merely said:

"They've got money out there."

Dewey Wants Power In GOP Foreign Policy In 1952

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey seems determined to have a powerful role in charting Republican foreign policy in 1952.

That's one obvious conclusion to be drawn from his announcement today that he will shortly visit Korea and other Far Eastern parts —as a private citizen, travelling at his own expense.

As the 1944 Republican nominee for president, Dewey took credit along with the late Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) for the creation of the wartime bipartisan foreign policy.

Some of his friends here say he would like to take Vandenberg's place as a G. O. P. spokesman on foreign affairs, and they believe his Asiatic inspection trip is intended to strengthen his claim to such a role.

As the 1948 presidential candidate, Dewey remains the titular head of his party. His right to speak for the party as a whole would be strongly challenged, however, by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) and a number of other leading Republicans.

Dewey has differed frequently with the Taft faction, on foreign affairs in particular. He has spoken in favor of international programs which Taft, Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) and others have criticized.

It seems likely that Dewey's Far Eastern swing is planned with an eye toward strengthening his position in any controversy with Taft, Wherry and their colleagues when the time comes to declare party principles for next year's campaign.

Taft said at Indianapolis today that the Republicans would make foreign policy a major issue in "a most vigorous attack" on the administration in '52.

A potential candidate for the presidential nomination. Taft appeared to shrug off the possible importance of Dewey's projected trip. The Ohio senator told a news conference at Indianapolis:

"I am glad for him to have a vacation if he wants to take it that way. I have no further comment."

The White House said President Truman had approved Dewey's trip. There was no suggestion, however, that Mr. Truman had encouraged it—since Dewey could very well blast administration far east policies on his return.

And the state department, promising the New York governor every assistance, said it was "glad Governor Dewey is able to visit the Pacific."

At the same time responsible officials stressed that Dewey is going strictly on his own—that the department will make arrangements for him, as it would for any prominent American, but doesn't mean to be regarded as sponsoring his trip.

Most Republican leaders in congress had little to say about the governor's plan. Rep. Hoffman (R-Mich) inquired: "Is he going as an enlisted man?"

Twice beaten in presidential races, Dewey says he won't try for a third nomination. Instead, he is plugging for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who says he's not interested, either.

The New York governor's decision to go to Asia apparently indicates he believes—along with a lot of other Republicans— that President Truman's ouster of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as Pacific commander will make Asia and its problems a prime political issue.

The governor has been critical, as was Vandenberg, of the way problems were handled in the Orient. He has urged aid for Chiang Kai-shek, Nationalist leader on Formosa, whom he plans to visit.

Dewey's announcement indicated he shares with MacArthur, with whom he is on very friendly terms, the view that developments in Asia are likely to be vital to the U. S. The Truman administration has said the primary defense against Communism is in Europe.

Negro Arrested On Home Brew Charge

A 41-year-old Negro was arrested by Monroe Police detectives Friday night and charged with making "home brew."

Officers stated that Percy Thomas, 1501 Wood street, was arrested after a disturbance complaint was filed by neighbors. His home was searched and police found that he was making beer and selling it at retail prices.

Thomas is charged with the manufacture of beer, selling it without a license, and selling alcohol that was untaxed.

LEBLANC OPPOSED TO HIGHER TAXES

State Senator Says There Is Need For State To Avoid Raising Taxes

Lafayette, La., June 23.—"The national tax picture has become so heavy for all of us that there is need for the state government to pull in its belt and not tax further" "Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc told members of a motor caravan representing 15 Louisiana communities which called on him in LaFayette today to urge him to enter the gubernatorial race.

"We saw just the opposite of this during the past few days in Baton Rouge," LeBlanc said, "when, instead of retrenchment in the state government spending to preserve the surplus in the Treasury as a cushion against possible emergency the administration choose instead to transfer the money into an untraceable, unquestionable method of spending and dissipating the reserve."

"The motor caravan was organized by "businessmen for LeBlanc, Inc." and included LeBlanc supporters from Slidell, Lacombe, Covington, Bogalusa, Franklinton, Ponchatoula, Tickfaw, Independence, Amite, Roseland, Kentwood, Hammond, Baton Rouge, Opelousas and Sunset.

Louis S. Prejean, prominent Baton Rouge attorney and a vice-president of "businessmen for LeBlanc," in speaking for the group said, "We feel that you are the man of the hour, the one man who has the abilities and the drive and the experience necessary to guide our state through one of the most trying periods of national emergency."

Traffic Blocked By Train Here

An Illinois Central Railroad train blocked traffic in the heart of Monroe for approximately 35 minutes last night at about 6:30 o'clock.

City Judge W. M. Harper said a city ordinance prevents the unnecessary blocking of a crossing for more than three minutes.

Sam Futrell, 1216 St. John street, vice-president and general manager of the Twin City Printing Company, said he was caught in the ensuing traffic jam in the 100 block of North Second street during the entire time.

A lady private nurse who preferred her name withheld said she checked the time she was delayed as being 35 minutes.

Night Yardmaster Hugh D. Fairley said the train was delayed so long because a trespasser climbed over the coupling or "cut - lever" between two cars at Five Points, DeSiard Street, and disconnected the cars.

The train, Fairley added, was 122 cars long and crewmen had to walk back 40 car lengths to connect the cars again.

Fairley explained that the train stopped in the first place because it was blocked by a Missouri Pacific train on the south side of Monroe.

Hadacol Caravan Is Slated For Monroe

Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc will bring his 1951 Hadacol Caravan to Monroe September 28, the senator announced yesterday.

This year the caravan will travel by special train and will play in 47 cities in 16 states. Admission as before will be a Hadacol box top.

The 1951 show will be of far greater proportion than last year, LeBlanc announced. "An amazing group of stars is being lined up, an even greater number than last year," he said.

On January 18, 1911, navy pilot Eugene Ely landed a curtiss bi - plane on a platform on a navy ship in San Francisco bay and later took off successfully.

'Lady Godiva' Rides Through Coventry, Eng.

Coventry, Eng., June 23—(AP)—Lady Godiva rode again today. This time she was watched by 100,000 goggle-eyed peeping toms.

The occasion was the centuries-old Coventry pageant held in memory of a lady who has become a patroness of this humming industrial city.

In the role of Lady Godiva this grey afternoon was London actress Ann Wrigg. As she sat side-saddle on a frisky white horse her own brown hair was covered by a long golden wig. It also covered most of her, but with the wind wafting the hair of the wig, it was possible to see a good deal of comely Miss Wrigg.

Besides the wig Miss Wrigg wore what she described as something like a nylon net Bikini swimsuit. It wasn't very noticeable, being small and the same color as Miss Wrigg. She was a picture of poise.

According to the popularly accepted story Lady Godiva in the 15th century rode naked through the streets of the city to persuade her husband, Lord of Coventry, to reduce taxes which were a burden to the people. The legend says he was persuaded.

Was Miss Wrigg nervous with a couple of hundred thousand eyes on her?

"Plenty," she admitted, after she had completed her 4 1-2 mile ride through the picturesque streets. And she was driven almost to distraction by the liveliness of "willoughby warrior," the horse which was the other half of her act.

Willoughby Warrior is a white hunter, 16.3 hands high, and he seemed to think this afternoon that he was a ballet dancer. He liked the music of the dozen bands and he seemed to want to show off to the crowds.

Miss Wrigg, expert horsewoman, slid around a good deal on his broad back. So, what with keeping seated, keeping Willoughby Warrior in the middle of the pavement, and keeping herself somewhat modes they covered with the wig, Miss Wrigg had a busy afternoon.

And no one was stricken blind.

Jarrell Funeral Is Slated Today

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. today for Lewis Boatner Jarrell, former mayor of Columbia, who died Friday while visiting his son in Ardmore, Okla.

Harrell was a leader in the Columbia American Legion Post, and a member of the Masonic order.

Services will be held in the Columbia First Baptist Church with Rev. J. D. Kitchenham and Rev. Sam Holliday officiating.

There will be a Masonic Recessional, with members of the order serving as pallbearers. Interment will be under direction of Riser's Funeral Home of Columbia.

He is survived by his wife, the former Sarah Evelyn White, of Greenville, S. C.: one daughter, Mrs. Dan M. Moore, Jr., of Monroe; a son, Lewis C. Jarrell, of Ardmore, Okla.; his mother, Mrs. C. C. Jarrell, of Columbia; two sisters, Mrs. E. L. Barnett, of Columbia and Mrs. C. R. Godgrey, of Winnsboro; one granddaughter, and several nieces and nephews.

After being president, John Quincy Adams, against all precedent, became a representative in congress from Massachusetts. He served for 17 years.

New "Safety-Flow Ride" joins list of Plymouth "exclusives" in the lowest-priced field

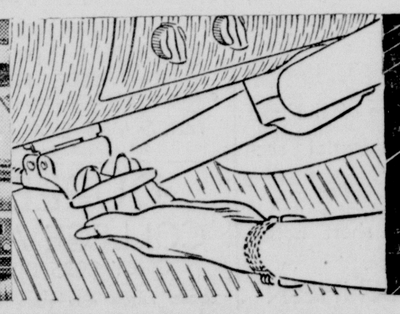

Equipment and trim subject to availability of materials

"Safety-Flow Ride" is a combination of many engineering advances, including the new Oriflow shock absorbers that give you three times the cushioning power offered by ordinary shock absorbers! Oriflows adjust themselves to road conditions, giving you a smoother, flowing ride wherever you drive.

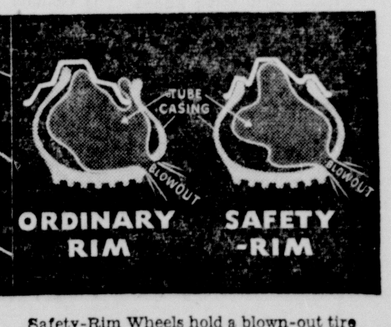

Electric windshield wipers, unlike the vacuum kind, don't slow down when you step on the gas. Only Plymouth has them in the lowest-priced field.

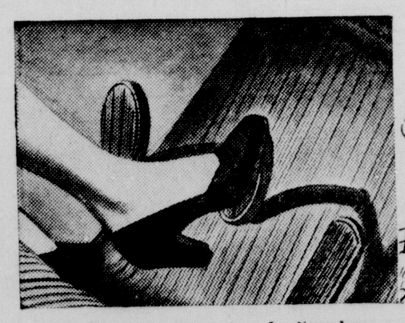

This easy-action parking brake is independent of the service brakes—an added safety factor found only in Plymouth among the leading low-priced cars.

Plymouth is the only leading low-priced car in which turning the ignition key gives you starting and automatic choke all in one convenient motion.

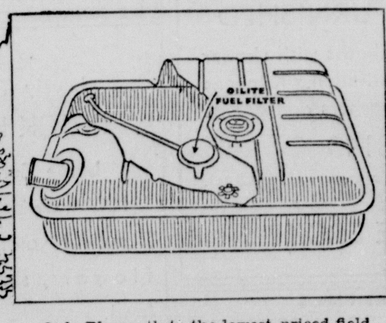

Safety-Rim Wheels hold a blown-out tire firmly on the rim while you bring the car to a controlled stop. A Plymouth "exclusive" in the lowest-priced field.

Brakes of the other two leading low-priced cars have a total of four hydraulic cylinders; Plymouth has six! You get more uniform control.

Plymouth, and only Plymouth in the lowest-priced field, gives you the brilliant performance of a 97-horsepower engine with 7.0 to 1 compression ratio.

Only Plymouth in the lowest-priced field has an Oilite fuel filter, which filters out dirt and water. Located in the tank, it guards against clogging or freezing.

Plymouth chair-height seats are the highest found in the leading low-priced cars. They give your body full support in a natural, comfortable posture.

And Plymouth offers you many other features found in no other leading low-priced car, including:

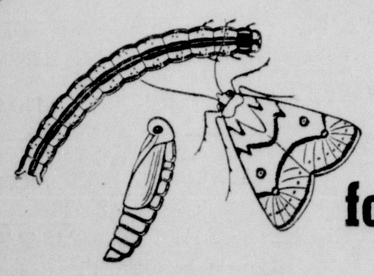

Floating Power engine mountings for smooth, quiet operation . . . a cowl ventilator for extra coolness and fresh air in summer . . . and other "exclusives." Let your Plymouth dealer tell you more—and give you a demonstration!

Inspect your crop for Bollworms now!

Strong, healthy cotton that looks like it's already made can still be damaged severely by bollworms. Start your control measures now while insects are young—before they have entered the boll.

Make weekly inspections of your crop for evidence of eggs and young insects. Beginning around July 1st, Bollworms are usually found on plant leaves and bud terminals. Your county agent or experimental station can supply you with complete information on control measures for your locality.

DDT has been proved the cheapest and most effective insecticide for bollworm control. Buy CHAPMAN DDT (liquid concentrates and dusts) to get the best quality. Chapman also offers DDT combined with other organic insecticides in balanced formulations for complete control of all major cotton insect pests. The killing power of Chapman insecticides are familiar to all users.

Chapman makes formulations with BHC, Toxaphene, Aldrin (118), Dieldrin (497), DDT, TEPP and Sulfur.

Bridal Couple Repeat Vows At Methodist Church In Chatham On June 9

In a ceremony marked by simplicity and reverence, Miss Dot Tullos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Tullos, of Chatham, was joined in marriage to Mr. E. W. Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Robertson of Pollock. The Methodist Church in Chatham was the scene of the wedding solemnized Saturday, June 9, at five o'clock by the Reverend S. W. Tullos, pastor of Woodworth Baptist church and an uncle of the bride.

Tall standard baskets of white and green floral arrangements were alternated by branched candelabras holding white glowing tapers which cast their soft radiance over the altar of the sanctuary as the bride and groom exchanged their wedding vows.

While the guests were assembling with the assistance of the ushers, Troy Garrett, Donald Robertson and Conally Brown, a musical background was provided by the organist, Mr. Paul Torgrimson, of Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, who played several of the bride's favorite selections. Miss Johnnie Mae Campbell of Leesville sang "Always", "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Preceding the ceremony, candles were lighted by little Richard and Ronnie Tullos, cousins of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss Oreline Roberts and Miss Louise Griggs of Monroe, cousins of the bride, and Miss Peggy Sandifer of Pollock, a cousin of the groom. They wore identical gowns of aqua tulle over taffeta. The soft plaited bodice was accentuated by a bolero of matching lace. Miss Reeta Gayle Tullos served her sister as maid of honor. Her gown, a duplicate of the bridesmaids, was of two shades of lilac. All attendants carried bouquets of asters in contrast with their gowns.

Following the maid of honor, and preceding the bride down the isle was the little flower girl, Glenda Faye Roberts of Monroe, a cousin of the bride. She was precious in her gown made similar to the attendants. Her pink basket contained pink and white petals which she strew along the isle perfecting the path over which the bride came.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, Mr. B. A. Tullos, who gave her in marriage. She was radiant in a distinctive creation fashioned of blush satin with tight fitting sleeves coming to a point in the front. Small covered buttons extended down the front to the point of the bodice and from the elbows to the wrists. Her fingertip veil of blush illusion was in tiers from a coronet of satin embroidered with seed pearls.

Immediatley following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. Pink in its most delicate shade was expressed by flowers at vantage points. Mrs. Sherwood Tullos presided over the bride's book where each guest registered after being received by the bride and groom and their mothers. On one end of the bride's table, which was adorned with a cloth of pink ruffled organdy over blush bridal satin, was the exquisitely embossed wedding confection, its three graduated tiers topped with a replica bride and bridgegroom. Assisting the receptionists, Mrs. C. C. Moss, with the cake and punch serves were Mrs. Elmo Tullos, Mrs. Tommy Womack, Mrs. Woodrow Tullos and the bridesmaids.

The bride's mother was attired in a model off-navy lace, with which she wore pink accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart rosebuds. Mrs. Robertson, mother of the groom, chose a model of becoming beige nylon with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart rosebuds.

Following the reception, the couple left for their home in Lake Charles, where the groom is employed by the Missouri Pacific company. The bride was wearing a two-toned brown silk shantung suit with white accessories and a corsage of white sweetheart rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Northwestern State college, and for the past session has been music instructor in the city schools of Monroe. The groom is a graudate of Northwestern State college and L.S.U.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Beebe and Juanita Kilpatrick, Jonesboro; Jeanette Roberts, Calhoun; Jimmy Godfrey, June Godfrey, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Roberts, Monroe; Monette Robinson, Port Arthur, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. L. Branch, Miss Montez Wilder and Mr. Bob Branch, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Aswell, Quitman; Mr. Gene Allen, Bernice; Rev. E. F. Brown, Arkansas; Mrs. Nelle Renegar, Granny Brown, Pat Robertson, Rodney Robertson, Wilmer Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Robertson, Conally and Neal Brown, Geneva Sandifer, Pollock; Ethel Robertson, Natchitoches; Bernice and Donald Robertson, Baton Rouge; Wallace and Betty Sandifer, Alexandria; Precious Payne, Pineville; Jimmy C. Tullos, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Tullos, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Tullos, Granny Tullos and Ola Tullos, Jena.

LOVELY JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Latimer Alexandria Brock, was Miss Lina Mardis Warren, daughter of Mrs. Barker Warren and the late Mr. Warren, of Lismore, La. before her marriage June 17th in that city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brock of Mt. Hermon, La.

Lina Mardis Warren Weds Latimer Alexandria Brock

Wedding Solemnized At St. Patrick Catholic Church In Lismore, June 17

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Sunday, June 17, the St. Patrick Catholic Church in Lismore, La., was the scene of a lovely wedding uniting Miss Lina Mardis Warren, daughter of Mrs. Barker Warren and the late Mr. Warren, of Lismore, and Mr. Latimer Alexandria Brock, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brock of Mt. Hermon, La. Father John Quinn officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar which was decorated with baskets of gladioli, and lady in white with jade foliage at Holy Virgin Mary and St. Joseph statues. The windows in the back of the altar were draped with clematis foliage, daisies, and jade foliage. Candelabra holding slender white tapers were entwined with clematis which formed an arch before door of altar. Gold altar vasse held glads and lady in white.

Mr. Sam Beaser of Lake Providence, soloist, sang "Ava Maria" and "Mother At Thy Feet is Kneeling," accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd Girlinghouse of Monterey, La. Mrs. Girlinghouse played the procession from Wagner's "Lohengrin," and Mendelssohn's recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her cousin, Richard S. Wilds, Jr., of Wildsville, La., was lovely in her wedding gown of Ivory satin, with panels of Chantilly lace down the front and the back extending down the train. The tight fitting bodice was buttoned down the front with tiny ivory satin covered buttons. The long sleeves came to points over her hands with edging of lace. Her floor length veil of illusion was edged with lace and fell from a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Lily of Valley and carnations topped with white with lavender throated orchids and leaves of lace.

Miss Ola Mae Byles of Natchitoches served as maid of honor and matron of honor was Mrs. B. B. Breard of Lismore, cousin of Mrs. J. C. Edwards of Linville, Miss Gussie Catarnese of Natchitoches, Mrs. Woodie Davis, of Ferriday, Miss Glyndon Brock of Mt. Hermon, neice of the groom, and Miss Marion Simmons of Bogalousas. The matron of honor's dress of aqua and the maid of honor's dress of medium aqua were fashioned with bodice of taffeta made with small puff sleeves and a square neckline. The full skirt with three double tiers was made of nylon net. They carried fans made of the net with yellow roses entwined in the fans.

The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to those worn by the maid of honor and matron of honor. They carried fans with yellow Talisman roses. The bridal attendants were wearing net hats of heart shape with ruffled edge centered with a rose bud.

Therisa Warren of Lismore, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl and was wearing a gown identical to that worn by the bride. She carried a basket of yellow and white rose petals. Richard S. Wilds, III of Wildsville, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Mr. E. J. Riley of Amite served the groom as best man. Ushers were Earnest Bahm, Russell R. Jones, Dewitt Kinchen, all of Hammond, and William Wesley Warren of Lismore, cousin of the bride. All were wearing summer tux's with black bow ties.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of black and white silk brought from Korea. She was wearing black velvet accessories and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a navy blue and white dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was an orchid.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the Community Center in Ferriday. Receiving with the bridal couple and attendants were Mrs. Barker Warren, Mr. Richard S. Wilds, Jr., Mrs. E. H. Brock, and Mr. Ripp Kemp.

The bride's table was covered with a lovely cutwork cloth centered with the tiered wedding confection. Placed at each end of the table were fans of tule with carnations which were connected from each end over candlesticks to the cake. An arrangement of gladioli and lady in white centered the mantel. Small baskets were placed at each end.

For traveling, Mrs. Brock was wearing a pink linen suit with navy blue and white accessories. Her costume was completed by an orchid corsage. After an extended wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Denver and Pubelo, Colorado, the couple will reside in Amite, La. Later they will make their home in Lismore.

The bride is a graduate of Northwestern State College in Natchitoches. At the present time she is assistant extension sociologist with L. S. U. serving the State of Louisiana as Dr. Mary Mims assistant. The bridegroom is a graduate of L. S. U. Vocational Agriculture. He is assistant supervisor of Veterans Teacher of Tangipahoa Parish.

Out of town guests were Miss Ellen LeNoir, Miss Stella Jones, Mr. Clyde Ingram, Miss Gladys Tappan, Mrs. Wallace Trotter, of Baton Rouge; Mrs. Ray Brock of Mt. Hermon, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Simmons and son of Bogalousa, La.

Ancient Paris, often the target of invasion, was captured and plundered several times by the Vikings more than 1,000 years ago.

Sara Elizabeth Roberts Weds Mr. Jimmy T. Cole

First Methodist Church Is Scene Of Impressive Double-Ring Service

In a ceremony marked by dignity and beauty, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Mrs. N. E. Roberts and the late Mr. Roberts, was joined in marirage to Jimmie T. Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cole of Columbus, Miss.

The First Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding solemnized by Dr. A. M. Serex at 6:30 in the evening Saturday, June 2, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bridal couple exchanged their vows before the altar which was beautifully decorated with tall baskets of white gladioli placed against a background of greenery and glowing candles in branched candelabra casting their radiance over the altar of the sanctuary.

While the guests were being ushered to their pews by Mr. Clinton R. Russell and Mr. Stanley C. Lilja, Mrs. Everett Zeagler, organist, rendered a program of prenuptial music. Mrs. A. M. Serex, accompanied by Mrs. Zeagler, sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because." Mrs. Roy Wilson sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Al A. Featherston of Memphis, Tenn., was matron-of-honor. They were wearing identical gowns of pink and mist green net over green taffeta with portrait necklines and bouffant skirts. They carried over their arm a basket-was wearing ice blue nylon net over ice blue taffeta and a garland of pink sweet peas in her hair. The ringbearer, Jimmy Greenlee, cousin of the bride, wore an ice blue satin suit.

Mr. Frank Rickard served his son as best man. Ushers were Clifton Greenlee and James Greenlee, uncles of the bride, and Harry Preston, cousin of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Greenlee.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hostess, Mrs. Greenlee, Mrs. H. A. Phillips, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Anne Rickard, mother of the groom, the bride and groom, and members of the bridal party.

Ivory gladioli in attractive arrangements adorned the reception rooms. In the dining room the bride's table was overlaid with a lace cloth over pink satin. At one end was the tiered pink wedding confection surmounted with a miniature fan of lily of the valley and pink net, resting on a silver plaque.

Mrs. James L. Greenlee and Mrs. C. J. Greenlee, aunts of the bride, served mint green punch from a crystal punch bowl. Others assisting in courtesies were Mrs. Frank Rickard, sister-in-law of the groom, of Natchez, and Mrs. Charles Osborne. Mrs. E. G. Brazzel presided at the bride's book.

For their wedding trip to New Orleans, the bride was wearing robin egg blue silk shantung suit with white accessories and corsage of sweet rose buds. Following their wedding trip the bride and groom will reside in Wichita Falls, Tex.

Mrs. Rickard is a graduate of Ouachita parish high school and attended Converse college in Spartansburg, South Carolina where she was a member of Delta Zeta. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lutcher High School in Orange, Tex. and Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, Tex. He is a member of Beta Tau Gamma fraternity.

LOVELY BRIDE

Mrs. Eddie L. Rickard, the former Miss Billie Margaret Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phillips, of Natchez, Miss., before her marriage May 28th at the Stone Avenue Methodist church in this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Annie Rickard and the late Mr. E. Rickard of Orange, Texas.

Billie Margaret Phillips Bride Of Eddie L. Rickard

Couple Exchange Nuptial Vows At Stone Ave. Methodist Church

A lovely wedding of the summer season was that of Miss Billie Margaret Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Phillips of Natchez, Miss., when she became the bride of Mr. Eddie L. Rickard, son of Mrs. Anne Rickard and the late Mr. E. Rickard, of Orange, Tex.

The marriage was solemnized at the Stone Avenue Methodist Church Monday, May 28th, with the Rev. Yerger, officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring service before the altar which was beautifully decorated with a profusion of white gladioli and trailing ivy. Branched candelabra held a myriad of slender ivory tapers.

Mr. Frank Parker, soloist, sang "Beloved, it is Morn," and "Oh, Lord Most Holy." The traditional wedding marches from Wagner and Mendelssohn marked the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. J. W. Greenlee, was beautiful in her wedding gown of ice blue satin fashioned with a redingote of ice blue nylon lace over a hoop skirt. The redingote, embroidered with seed pearls, formed a cathedral train. The collar, sleeves and train were encircled with tiny seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of ice blue illusion fell from a Juliet cap which was edged in tiny seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of five gardenias surrounded by Lily of the Valley with cascade streamers of white satin ribbon and nylon net.

Mrs. Fred Lindsy was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Johnston and Mrs. Charles Osborn, Jr. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Faye Brazzel and Miss Veretta Greenlee, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Lindsy was wearing an emerald green nylon net over electric blue net with taffeta slips of emerald green with tight fitting bodice and full skirt. She wore a Juliet cap of green lace with shoulder length veil of green nylon net. The bridemaids wore gowns identical to the one worn by the matron of honor in electric blue nylon net over emerald green net. They wore halos of sweet peas and mitts of green taffeta. The bridal attendants carried pale pink nylon net fans encircled with pink sweet peas.

Little Linda Rickard, neice of the groom, served as flower girl. She shaped bouquet of Majestic daisies. They also wore bandeaus of Majestic daisies in their hair.

Jack Lindsey of Columbus, Miss., served as best man and Al A. Featherston of Memphis, Tenn., was groomsman.

At the sound of the traditional wedding march, the bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. N. E. Roberts, Jr., who gave her in marriage. She was radiantly lovely in her wedding gown of ankel-length blush pink nylon tulle over satin with tight-fitting sleeves coming to a point at the wrists. The very full skirt was trimmed with scattered sprays of blush lilies of the valley. A high illusion neckline completed the fitted bodice. Her only ornament was a single strand of pink pearls. The finger tip length veil of blush pink illusion fell gracefully from a matching bandeau cap trimmed with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations, lilies of the valley and stephenotis with streamers of blush pink satin ribbon.

The bride's mother was lovely in a model of pink lace with which she wore pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Cole, mother of the groom, chose a becoming gown of navy sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the bride's home. The receiving line, which formed in the living room, consisted of the bride and groom, the two mothers and the feminine members of the bridal party.

In the reception rooms, beautiful arrangements of daisies and Queen Anne's lace were used on the mantel, buffet and on each corner of the bride's table in the dining room which was laid with a laced cloth. At one end was the bride's cake, a three-tiered confection of exceptional artistry, with figurines of a bride and groom surmounting it. Mrs. Clinton R. Russell served the wedding cake after the bride and groom had cut the first slice. Miss Mary Ann Ashford served punch at the other end of the table. The bride's book was presided over by Mrs. Stanley C. Lilja of Houston, Tex.

Later the couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans and other gulf coast states. The bride's going-away suit was coffee silk shantung, with which she wore white and brown spectator pumps, white and brown bag, white gloves and a white nylon straw hat. Upon their return they will live in Houston, Tex.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Halbert and Mr. Jack Lindsey of Columbus, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Lilja, Miss Miriam Bell and Miss Wilma Gaither of Houston, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Al A. Featherston of Memphis, Tenn.; and Mrs. Don Short and Charlene of Throckmorton, Tex.

Miss Olivia Jean Johnston Weds Prentiss Hendricks

St. Matthew's Catholic Church Is The Scene Of Impressive Ceremony

At a ceremony characterized by simply dignity and beauty, Miss Olivia Jean Johnston, daughter of Mrs. Dora B. Tolar and Mr. M. R. Johnston, of this city, exchanged marriage vows with Prentiss Curray Hendricks, son of Mrs. L. C. Hendricks and the late Mr. Hendricks, of West Monroe. The marriage was solemnized at six o'clock in the evening Saturday, June 2, at St. Matthew's Catholic church with Father Andrew Staricek, officiating.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double ring service before the altar which was decorated with baskets of mixed summer flowers. Branched candelabra held slender white tapers.

Mrs. Della Williamson at the organ rendered a program of prenuptial music and the traditional wedding marches were used to mark the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a tea length gown of light blue organdy with a white embroidered border. She wore a pink hat with nylon veil and pink gloves. Her shoes were of pastel multi-color. She carried a white prayer book topped with white featered carnations with white ribbon streamers entwined with carnations.

Miss Mary Louise Johnston, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was wearing a pale green tea length organdy with white accessories. Mrs. George T. Slavent, matron of honor, wore a yellow organdy with orchid accessories. Both carried colonial bouquets of mixed sweet peas.

Mr. Dale Hendricks served his brother as best man. Ushers were George T. Slavent and Perry Kent.

Mrs. Tolar, mother of the bride, was wearing a light blue dress with navy and white accessories. She was wearing a pink carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother was wearing a navy blue dress with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. L. C. Hendricks.

Arrangements of mixed summer flowers were placed at vantage points in the receiving rooms. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a crystal bowl filled with yellow day lilies and flanked by crystal candle hoders with yellow tapers. The tiered wedding confection at one end of the table was embossed with white rose buds and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. At the other end was placed the crystal punch bowl.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High school and attended Northeast Junior college. The groom graduated from Ouachita Parish High school and attended Northeast Junior college. He was a member of the Phi Kappa fraternity and served two years in the Navy.

The bridal couple are now at home at 112 Austin street in West Monroe.

Miss Caroline Smith Weds Betro Shia McRaney, Jr.

Candlelight Ceremony Held At First Baptist Church In Temple, Tex.

Wedding vows and rings were exchanged Saturday evening by Miss Katherin Caroline Smith and Betro Shia McRaney, Jr., in a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bryan Smith of Temple and Mr. and Mrs. Betro Shia McRaney, Sr., of Monroe, La.

Rev. Sam D. Taylor of San Saba, great uncle of the bride, read the marriage vows before the sanctuary where woodwardia and lace fern with salal and huckleberry formed a background of greenery. Before the baptistry a fan-type arrangement of gladioli, Majestic daisies, white carantions and candytuft complemented the altar rail decorations. Here oval arrangements of the white blossoms were used above the garlands of greenery that covered the chancel rail.

Flanking the pulpit steps where the celebrant stood were baskets of white flowers and containers of palms. Cathedral tapers burned in tall white candelabra.

"Calm As The Night," "Liebestraum," "Clair de Lune," "Holy Ghost With Lifnt Divine" and "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" were among the prenuptial selections played by Mrs. Kenneth Frazier.

Miss Frances McDonald sang Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Frazier, who also played the processional and recessional marches.

The bride approached the altar with her father. She wore a formal gown of ivory slipper satin, fashioned with a deep yoke of illusion outlined with scallops and embroidered with seed pearls and beads to form a decollete effect over the shoulders. Tiny covered buttons extended down the back of the molded bodice and the long fitted sleeves terminated in petal points at her wrists. The rose and leaf embroidered motif on the bodice was repeated on the side fullness of the circular skirt which was designed with a bustle effect and had a cathedral train.

The bride's double veil was held by a coronet of rosettes of satin embroidered with seed pearls and white bugle beads. The veil, which extended the length of her train, was caught at the edges with embroidered designs of pearls.

She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lily of the valley on an heirloom testament carried by her mother and grandmother in their weddings. From this fell shower ribbons looped with stephanotis.

Miss Nancy Margaret Lipps served as maid of honor. She wore a dress of nile green lace and marquisette, designed with cap sleeves and close fitting bodice finished with a peplum and fastened down the front with lace covered buttons. Miss Lipps wore a picture hat made of the green lace and finished at the back with a matching velvet bow. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink Delight roses circled with maline and tied with satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Miss Ann Abrams of Waco, cousin of the bride, Miss Nancy Sellman of San Saba, Miss Betty Anderson and Mrs. Richard Bennett of Tyler. They were dressed like the maid of honor except they wore small brimmed hats of lace and carried bouquets of deep-pink gardenias.

Mr. McRaney served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were Bill McRaney, brother of the bridegroom, Sam Williams, his cousin David Garrett, both of Monroe, La., and the bride's cousin, Douglas Smith, Jr., of Washington D.C.

Mrs. Smith wore a mauve lace gown with a peplumed jacket. She wore a matching halo hat. Mrs McRaney chose a blue lace gown. Both mothers wore white gardenias.

Parents of the bridegroom stood with the newly married couple and the feminine members of the wedding party at the reception held on the roof of the Kyle hotel. Garlands of greenery adorned the ceiling - high windows and tall baskets of white blossoms highlighted points of the ball room.

The wedding ring cake, embossed with calla lilies and lilies of the valley was mounted on a reflector on the bridal table which was lighted with white tapers in silver candelabra and had an arrangement of white flowers. Mrs. S. C. Williams of Monroe, aunt of the bridegroom, served the cake and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. A. Smith, presided at the punch service.

Members of the house party included Misses Martha Thomson, Ann Buchanan, Martha Haliman, Frances Lee McDonald, Martha Williams, Virginia Creamer and Mesdames Robert Andrews, Jerry York of Austin and Mrs. Charles Thorpe.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans and other southern points, Mrs. McRaney wore a summer suit designed of gray gabardine with blue accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. McRaney graduated from the Temple schools and attended Monticello college in Alton, Ill., before entering the University of Texas where she was a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Her husband attended Louisiana State University before entering the Universiy of Texas where he received his degree. He served with the navy air corps for three years.

Mr. and Mrs. McRaney will be at home in Monroe after June 24. He is associated with the Bancroft Paper Company.

EMMA JEAN MARTIN AND ROLLAND LEROY BRANTLEY UNITED IN MARRIAGE

The Peniel Baptist church in West Monroe was the scene Saturday evening at ten o'clock of the marriage of Miss Emma Jean Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Martin, and Rolland Leroy Brantley, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brantley, of West Monroe. The Rev. C. C. Martin performed the ceremony.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive service before the altar which was decorated with baskets of white dahlias. Branched candelabra held slender white tapers.

Miss Bennie Bingaman, rendered several prenuptial selections and accompanied Miss Christine Bishop in songs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white tea length gown of brocaded organdy. Her veil of white nylon net illusion fell from a coronet of flowers. She carried a bouquet of white gladiolis.

Miss Lona Merle Milstead was maid of honor and Mrs. Hiester C. Roth, matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Joanne Wink, Miss Sybil Perkins, and Miss Bonnie Jean Fluitt.

Mr. Lonzo C. Martin served the groom as best man. Ushers were Jimmy Calhoun, Richard Stiltner, Walter Bell, and Jerry Barnett.

Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, was wearing an orchid linen dress. Her corsage was of white carnations. The groom's mother was wearing a grey sheer dress with white carnation corsage.

The bridal couple, both graduates of Ouachita Parish High school, will make their home in West Monroe.

CHIEF TUSQUAHOMA CHAPTER, D. A. R., HEARS TALK BY MRS. ELMER SLAGLE

Mrs. Elmer Slagle speaking on National Defense was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Chief Tusquahoma chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which was held at the Methodist Youth building Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Beautiful decores of magnolia blossoms adorned the piano and an array of summer flowers were used at vantage points throughout the reception suite. Members were met at the door and invited in by the hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt, Mrs. H. C. Ervin, Miss Katherine Averette and Mrs. Warren McGee Mrs. George Lawn, newly elected regent in customary gracious manner presided over the meeting.

It is interesting to note that Mrs. Lawn's eighty-year-old grandmother, Mrs. W. F. Latham, was regent eighteen years ago at Coral Gables, Fla., and presented Mrs. Lawn with her regents pin worn during the term of her office. Mrs. Latham was a resident of Monroe from 1907 to 1914, and a charter member of Fort Miro chapter. The meeting was opened with prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. Lela Cullom, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag led by Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt. A resolution was offered by Mrs. Jack Willis in behalf of the chapter to Mrs. Gilbert Stovall retiring regent, who organized Chief Tusquahoma chapter in 1950 praising Mrs. Stovall for her devotion and untiring efforts in behalf of the chapter. Special guests at the meeting were Mrs. W. E. Hicks of Shreveport, state historian and Mrs. J. C. Liner, state membership chairman. Mrs. Hicks requested the co-operation of the chapter in the work of locating and reporting the graves of revolutionary soldiers. Committees named for the ensuing year were: American Indians—Mrs W. G. Haynes, Jr.; Americanism—Mrs. Roy E. Lee; approved schools—Miss Katherine Averett; American music—Mrs. Roy Brooks; building completion fund—Mrs. Lewis Lee; by-laws—Mrs. Jesse Norris; conservation—Mrs. H. C. Ervin; correct use of flag—Mrs. Tom Rainbolt; D. A. R. good citizenship pilgrimage —Mrs Archie Dickerson; D. A. R. magazine—Mrs. Lela Cullom; D. A. R. manual for citizenship—Mrs. J. Frank Jones; D. A. R. museum—Mrs. Clark Butler ;D. A. R. studden loan fund—Mrs. J. O. Miller; erection bell tower at Valley Forge —Mrs. J. A. Haile; finance—Miss Mary Louise Ellis; genealogical records—Mrs. V. O. Allen; girl home makers—Mrs. E. T. Stroud; junior American citizen—Mrs. W. D. McGee; markers—Mrs. Henry Hamilton; membership—Mrs. J. Metris Bell; motion pictures —Mrs. Edward Koserog; national defense—Mrs. J. G. Rickerson; parliamentarian—Mrs. J. L. Harper; press relations—Mrs. Jeff Caldwell; program—Mrs. J. Howard Williams; transportation—Mrs. O. N. Reynolds. In her talk to the chapter, Mrs. Slagle said in part—

The national defense committee is the most important single phase of the work done by the Daughters of American Revolution. The sixtieth continental congress featured national defense prominently, judging by the publicity it received both in the Press Digest and in metropolitan papers. On National Defense night Senator Harry Byrd and Rev. Edmund J. Walsh, S. J., regent of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University were the principal speakers. It was heartening to me to find that the president general saw fit to cancel her reception to make one more business session in order to give national defense a proper presentation of its work.

People who are not members of the Daughters of the American Revolution ask what the work is, and some of our own members at times confuse the work with that of others closely related. The work of this committee deals more with the protection of the principles expressed in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights.

It works to expose attempts to weaken the principles upon which our country was founded and to alert our citizens to the flaws in world government arguments and to the continued menace of communism, especially within our midst.

It opposes therefore, such proposed legislation as federal and to education, socialized medicine. It opposes also the ratification of the genocide treaty and the covenant of human rights. It is heartily in favor of the twenty-second amendment which would limit the term of office of the president of the United States.

The D. A. R. is likewise opposed to the continuing development of what Congressman Lawrence Smith of Wisconsin calls "an international bureaucracy" developed through the United Nations and other kindred ventures and would like to see H. R. 46 brought from committee to the floor of congress.

The harmful results of Yalta, Teheran and Potsdam, secret agreements engineered by the executive branch of our government, the D. A. R. believes should be warning enough to the dangers we face, and is therefore opposed to secret agreements. "As voting taxpayers who support our government and place in office those whose salaries we pay, we the people should be well informed on every pact or agreement and what the cost would be to Americans."

The national defense committee urges all members to be informed and vote, regardless of party affiliations and to work with the local civil defense council in the gigantic program to be undertaken.

In closing, Mrs. Slagle quoted Mrs. James B. Patton, president general in her address to the recent congress: "We now reach a point for momentous decisions, both as to our future course in Asia as a member of the United Nations and in the defense of Europe as a member of the Atlantic Alliance. At the same time we are charting a course of home defense. It is a time for sober thinking. The United States does not intend to withdraw behind an iron curtain of its own. This is not the American way. But sovereign rights and freedom of action should be safeguarded in any collective plans and agreements which affect the security of this nation. It is our contention now that the national defense of America and the Americas rests primarily with this nation and our sister nations of this western hemisphere. This is not a selfish position. For without American production we would be lost. Indeed, the United States is the arsenal for all freedom loving peoples the world over."

At the close of the meeting delicious frozen frappe and angel food cake squares were served to Mrs. Metris Bell, Mrs. Lela Cullom, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, Mrs. H. C. Ervin, Mrs. George Lawn, Mrs. Roy Lee, Mrs. Lewis Lee, Mrs. Taylor McFadden, Mrs. J. O. Miller, Mrs. Jeff Caldwell, Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt, Mrs. J. G. Rickerson, Mrs. Gilbert Stovall, Mrs. Jack Willis, Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, Jr., Mrs. J. L. Harper, Mrs. Jesse Norris, Miss Katherine Averett, Mrs. Warren McGee, Mrs. V. O. Allen, Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. J. C. Liner and Mrs. W. E. Hicks.

Miss Shirley McIntyre Weds Joseph M. Malay

Miss Shirley McIntyre of this city and Mr. Joseph Monroe Malmay of West Monroe were united in marriage Saturday evening June 9 at seven-thirty o'clock.

The quiet and lovely double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. S. Jones, pastor of the Buckner Church, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. McIntyre of Mangham, parents of the bride

Miss Barbara McIntyre, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and only attendant. Mr. Winfred B. Simms served the groom as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. Assisting in the serving of the wedding cake and punch were Mrs. E. C. Williamson and Mrs. Winfred B. Simms.

Among those present for the wedding were Mrs. M. O. Malmay, and Mr. Buddy Malmay, mother and brother of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Malmay left over the week end for Philadelphia. The groom is with the U. S. navy and will rejoin his crew on board ship in that city.

CUT WEDDING CAKE

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Joe Farrar shown cutting their wedding cake following their marriage which was solemnized June 9th. The bride is the former Miss Laura Lea Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Overton of West Monroe. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Farrar, Sr. of Ruston.

Miss Laura Lea Overton Weds Harry Joe Farrar

Impressive Ceremony Solemnized At Home Of Bride's Parents In West Monroe

Beautiful simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Laura Lea Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Overton, and Harry Joe Farrar, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Farrar, Sr. of Ruston, La., which was solemnized Saturday, June 9th, at the home of the bride's parents in West Monroe.

The bridal couple exchanged the vows of the impressive double-ring ceremony before a background which was beautifully decorated with standards of shasta daisies and white candles in branched candelabra. The Rev. Jeroy Weber officiated at the ceremony before relatives and close friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding dress of blue lace. Her accessories were of white and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. Her only ornament was a diamond lavaliere belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. F. M. Gates.

Mrs. Kenneth Furlow was matron of honor and only attendant. Betty Lou Overton served as ring bearer.

Mr. R. W. Farrar, Jr. served his brother as best man.

Following the reception, the couple left on their wedding trip to Vermont. Mrs. Farrar was wearing a navy blue linen suit with white orchid corsage. The groom, a member of the U. S. Air Force, is stationed at Ft. Ethan Allen, Vermont, where the couple will make their home.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school. The groom attended Louisiana Tech prior to joining the Air corp.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Ulmer and son Billy of Baton Rouge, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Overton and son Hugh of Dallas, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Farrar and son Bill of Lake Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Ed George and family, and Mrs. Vera Overton, of Bastrop.

Girl Scout News

A visit to the work room at the Red Cross last week disclosed a small group of girls busily washing dishes at the close of a cooking lesson. Seems four girls do the washing up after each lesson, all taking turns in the Scout way. The girls had cooked eggs in two ways. On the following morning the girls were to make biscuits and we heard Mrs. Swift tell them not to eat breakfast Thursday morning because the group was to cook and serve a complete meal family style, with girls drawing lots to see who would act as various members of a typical family. We know it was fun, and we expect to hear a number of fathers and mothers bragging about the biscuits daughter can make.

There was a sad side to our visit, however. We learned that 90 girls, yes, ninety, almost a hundred, had reported at the appointed time to join a sewing class. Of course, no one could work with that many, so only the very first to show up could be accepted. It is hard to disappoint girls who want to do something worthwhile and can't because not enough adults can help them.

Mrs. Swift showed us the slips being made in the class by girls who have never done any sewing before. They were exceptionally neat and well made, almost finished.

We learned with regret that Mrs. Swift will not be able to give the second series of lessons for girls who have already had some experience in sewing. She has had to take on some work that she didn't know about when the classes were scheduled. We hate to disappoint you girls, but we can't help things like that.

In spite of delays caused by storms and by draining the pool, seventy girls each day are reporting to swimming classes under the direction of Beverly Hatchell and Agnes Jones. Girls and parents seem satisfied with the progress being made. The girls are apparently having fun, but we aren't sure about the mothers who sit on the benches in the heat to watch their daughters' progress.

New swimming classes begin tomorrow. If any of you girls are planning to join them, report to the office tomorrow morning and register. Remember, the Scout office is being worked on, and you'll still have to go to 207 Miro.

Catherine Beulah Morse Is Bride Of Hugh D. Smith

St. Peter's Church In Covington Scene Of Marriage Which Was Solemnized June 2

The marriage of Miss Catherine Beulah Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Morse, of New Orleans, and Covington, La., to Mr. Hugh Davies Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McLaurin Smith of this city was solemnized Saturday June 2nd at four o'clock in St. Peter's church in Covington with the Rev. Father Timothy Pugh officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of candlelight Chantilly lace and nylon net made over satin. The tight fitting bodice had a low neckline and long sleeves. The full circular skirt was edged with two deep pleated nylon net ruffles which cascaded into the long train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a lace cap edged with two small rows of pleated ruffles of net and was trimmed to the back by a cluster of white spray orchids. She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley, white amazon lilies, and white orchids.

The maid of honor was Miss Patricia Abadie, and the bridesmaids were Misses Indie Ferguson, Patricia Henry, Jeanne Drane, Yvonne Tingstrom, Edith Fielding. The junior bridesmaids were Misses Judith Drane and Maynell DeCuir. They wore floor length dresses of champagne nylon net made over matching taffeta worn with coral taffeta sashes. They wore small nylon net caps trimmed with two pleated ruffles and a spray of coral glamellias to the back. Their bouquets were of coral glamellias and evergreens.

The church was decorated with tall standards of white stock, peonies and gladiolus with fern and evergreen.

Mr. Smith had as his best man, his brother Mr. Duncan McLaurin Smith, Jr., and the groomsmen and ushers were Charles T. Morse and Clayton E. Morse, brothers of the bride, Bob Kelly of Monroe, Jerry Wages of Lafayette, Ebert Van Buren, Edward L. Stenger, and John D. Abadie of New Orleans, Allen L. Smith of Baton Rouge, and Norman E. Woodall of Birmingham, Ala.

Following the wedding the reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, on Military road. Mrs. Morse wore a patio length gown of shirred mauve marquisette. With it she wore a mauve picture hat trimmed with mauve gerbera daisies and mahogany illusion. Her corsage was mauve orchids with mahogany centers. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Smith, mother of the bridegroom, who wore a blue lace dress over white linen. At the waistline she wore a cluster of white carnations. Her accessories were white linen.

Later in the evening the young couple left on a wedding trip to Florida. The bride chose as her traveling ensemble a lemon yellow linen suit, worn with white accessories and a cluster of white orchids with yellow centers.

They will make their home at 308 Rochelle avenue in Monroe.

RECENT BRIDE

Mrs. Durwood Neal Swilley, was Miss Jeanene Lafayette, daughter of Mrs. Leola Lafayette of West Monroe, before her marriage on June 2. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Swilley, Sr. of Winnfield.

NEWS FROM THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The long hot lazy summer days are now with us and this is a perfect time to catch up on back reading or to read one of the newer books recently added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Several years ago James Street wrote a novel about a Baptist preacher, "The Gauntlet" which was extremely popular. This week the sequal to this story has appeared. It is called "The High Calling" and has for its central character London Wingo, the hero of the earlier book. This story takes up the career of Wingo after 20 years. In this book Wingo returns to Linden, Mo., the scene of his first pastorate. He returned to Linden with mixed emotions. Here his beautiful wife had died and now he was bringing with him his equally lovely daughter, Paige. Linden had witnessed his first trials and defeats and triumphs as a Baptist minister. "The High Calling" is a warm, moving novel and one you will not want to miss.

Readers who enjoy fantasy will not want to miss "The Enchanted" by Elizabeth Coatsworth. This is the story of a young man's strange romance in the Enchanted, an actual and magical region in the northern Maine woods. Miss Coatsworth is a delightful writer and you will want to read this if you like the fanciful.

There are many of us who still thrill to the stories of the period when knights were bold. Such readers will welcome "Knight With Armour" by Alfred Duggan. This is the story of a naive young Englishman who set out on the first great pilgrimage to the Holy land. In this book we receive a fascinating picture of life of the time. Many details of warfare between mounted knights are told in this book.

If you want to read a thoroughly delightful book, try "Umberto's Circus" by Eduard Bass. This story is set against the rich tapestry of life in a traveling European circus during the late nineteenth century. Umberto's circus traveled the highways and cowpaths of Europe and the near east while four generations succeeded each other to carry on its glittering name and tradition. The Umberto family, as well as every performer, animal trainer, tightrope walker and stable hand were united by one great idea, the love of the circus. This is a book that is outside the strife, jealousy and ambitions of the world as we know it. Its sympathy, liveliness, humor and humanity, its compelling narrative, combine to create a story that will appeal to anyone who ever thrilled to the smell of sawdust and the fascination of the circus ring.

A book for which the library has had a number of requests is "The Communist Trail in America" by Jacon Spolansky. Walter Winchell has urged his listeners to read it. This book deals with the adventures of Mr. Spolansky, a FBI agent, in his efforts to track down communism in this country.

If you are interested in history, especially the history of the South in the period before the Civil war, you will surely want to read "William Johnson's Natchez," the antebellus diary of a free Negro. This diary was only discovered a few years ago and has now been edited and published by the L. S. U. press.

MISS JOSIE BENINATI AND WAYNE CARSON UNITED IN MARRIAGE

One of the loveliest spring weddings of the season was that of Miss Josie Beninati, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Beninati, of Port Arthur Texas, to Mr. Wayman Carson, son of Mrs. Reubin Carson and the late Mr. Carson of Hodge.

The lovely ceremony was read at nine a. m. Nuptial mass Saturday, May 12th., at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Port Arthur. The Right Reverend Monsingier Drouihet officiated, assisted by the Reverend Schinider.

The altar was banked with glossy greenery interspersed with white Gladioli. Mrs. Helen Valery rendered a program of nuptial music and was accompanied by Miss Rose Cammareri.

The traditional marches were used as recessionals and precessionals.

Miss Romanye Bryan served the bride as maid of honor. She chose a gown of madonna blue net over satin, ballerina length. The sweetheart neckline was accented by the puffed sleeves. She wore long lace gloves and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in a ballerina length gown of white chantilly lace over nylon net. The fitted bodice featured a lace yoke outlined with a soft satin fold gracefully overhanging the shoulders to form a cap sleeve. Tiny covered buttons graced the bodice from the lace yolk to the waist line. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiny satin and lace Juliet cap; her long lace gloves ended in petal points and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis interspersed with satin ribbon and centered with an orchid.

Jimmy Breaux served the groom as beat man and ushers were Gordon Schriber and Anthony Ippilito. Following the ceremony the parents of the bride were hosts at a reception held at the Goodhue Hotel.

Among the out of town guests were: Rev. Schinider of Houston Texas; Miss Jo Ann Price of Beaumont, Texas; and Rev. Hopp, Mrs. H. A. Michaud and Carrall Michaud all of Hodge.

The bridegroom is a member of the U. S. Air Corps and is now stationed in Washington D. C. where he will continue his schooling as a Radio Technician a course he was pursung at a Port Arthur college before entering service several months ago. The bride is a graduate of the same college where she graduated in business administration.

MONROE BRANCH OF A. A. U. W. PLAN ACTIVITIES FOR YEAR

Although meetings of the Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women will not be resumed until September, plans are now being worked out for the program and activities for 1951-52. Under the capable leadership of the new branch president, Miss Carrie Dee Drew of West Monroe —longtime teacher in the Ouachita Parish High School—officers and committee chairmen are already giving attention to plans for the fall. Mrs. Aimee Cook of West Monroe continues in office another year as vice-president as does Mrs. A. L. Tatum of Monroe as treasurer. The newly elected secretary is Mrs. George Riser.

Miss Drew has announced the following acceptances for committee chairmen for 1951-52: Education—Miss Mary Hester; International relations—Mrs. C. E. Buckley; Social studies—Mrs. D. H. Martin; creative arts—Miss Anis Klie; status of women —Miss Frances Flanders; membership—Mrs. Harry Lemert; legislative—Mrs. Elmer Slagle; program —Miss Hazel Mitchell; yearbook —Miss Eleona Brinsmade; social—Miss Harriet Boyle; publicity —Miss Mary Clay.

Other committee chairmen will be announced later, according to Miss Drew.

The Monroe branch is one of 1,100 local A. A. U. W. branches in all 48 states. The American Association of University Women is one of 34 federations of the International Federation of University Women, which unites university women of the world in educational work.

Membership in the local Monroe branch reached the high point of 45 last year, with Miss Drew serving as efficient membership chairman. She has also been branch treasurer for Monroe, bringing excellent experience in the organization as a background for her new office of branch president. The national membership in A. A. U. W. has exceeded 111,000 women.

Only graduates of the 286 colleges on the approved list of A. A. U. W. are eligible for membership and only degrees requiring sufficient courses in the liberal arts are approved by this organization, which has accomplished much in raising standards of higher education over the United States. Institutions in Louisiana on the approved list are L. S. U., Tulane and Newcomb. Women in the Twin Cities who are graduates of out-of-state colleges and are uncertain as to the status of their college on the A. A. U. W. rating list are invited to contact the branch president, Miss Drew, or the membership chairman listed above for more information. Application for 1951-52 membership is now open.

Canned meats are tops for summer. Heat and glaze a canned ham and serve with canned cling peach halves filled with sour cream accented with a bit of prepared horseradish. It makes a pretty looking platter and tastes every bit as good as it looks.

In summer time we like to buy the small tins of vacuum-packed almonds. They are as sweet and fresh as when they first came off the tree. You'll find them in convenient six-ounce tins.

BRIDE AND GROOM

WOLF CALLS GET THE BIRD

Upland, Calif. —(AP)— When a pretty girl passes the home of Mrs. Evelyn Price, she's apt to hear a wolf whistle. The appreciative calls come from "Jimmy," Mrs. Price's talking Mynah bird. And if the pretty girl has a few moments, Jimmy is always delighted to run through his vocabulary of more than 70 phrases.

He might rattle off such expressions as: "Hi, baby," "What's your name" "I love you," "Oh boy," "Darn the dogs," "Put the coffee on," "I doubt it," or "Get the doctor."

Put them all together and they don't make much sense, but Jimmy doesn't seem to notice. Other birds in the neighborhood don't seem to like Jimmy. He sits around for hours mocking their calls.

California blanched or unblanched almonds, mixed with a little salad oil and baked 20 minutes in a slow oven come out tasting mighty good. For an extra bit of flavor sprinkle the hot almonds with a tiny bit of curry powder or cinnamon. Delicious with summer salads.

Miss Alice Marie George Bride Of William Hance

Couple Exchange Vows At The Central Baptist Church In West Monroe

At a ceremony characterized by simplicity and charm, Miss Alice Marie George, daughter of Mrs. Marie B. George, of West Monroe, and Mr. J. R. George, of Fort Worth, Tex., exchanged marriage vows with William Taylor Hance, son of Mrs. Violet Hance and Mr. Ed Hance of Monroe. The marriage was solemnized at four o'clock in the afternoon Friday, June 8, at Central Baptist Church in Monroe with the Rev. Roger Johnson performing the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Roger Johnson rendered a program of prenuptial music while the guests were being seated. Miss Bonnie Lou Pettit, soloist, sang "BEcause" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches marked the beginning and end of the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a navy blue dress of salina cloth topped with a finger tip length cloth of white lace. She carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of vanda orchids and white carnations with flowing white satin ribbon streamers.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Lillian Barry, was her only attendant. She was wearing a most becoming dress of nasturtium lace over taffeta of the same shade. She carried a bouquet of orchid asters with matching ribbons.

Mr. James McKay served the groom as best man. Mr. Ralph Marionneaux, Jr., and Mr. James R. George, Jr., brother of the bride, served as ushers.

Out of town guest attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Evans George and family of Dallas, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. E. P. George, Sr., and family of Bastrop, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Langston of New Orleans, and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Langston of Little Rock, Ark.

The bride is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, 1951 class. The groom is also a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

The first trans-Atlantic yacht race was held in 1866.

HE FLEW BY ACC'DENT

Bakersfield, Calif. —(AP)— Just 40 years ago, Henry A. McGregor made his first and last airplane flight. Then he abandoned aviation in favor of repariing automobiles. McGregor, now 66, is still an auto mechanic, but he likes to reminisce about his days as a bird man.

He had seen but one airplane, he recalls, when he built one in his backyard "I flew by accident," MacGregor recalls. "I took it out to a field and got in, started the motor and taxied forward. I noticed after awhile that the bumps had ceased and looking down I found myself about 20 feet in the air, going about 35 miles an hour.

"I flew for about half a mile then settled back to earth. Then I turned it around and tried it the other way. It wouldn't fly. I know now that I was going against the wind the first time and the with the wind the second time."

The next time McGregor attempted a flight, his machine struck a hole and nosed over, shattering a wing. A few days later, a whirlwind came along and smashed the ting to kindling wood.

Miss Margaret Kalil To Appear In July Concert

Delta Rho Delta To Sponsor Young Artist Home From New York

"The power of music will be put to the supreme test on Thursday evening, July 26, at 8::00 p.m., when Margaret Kalil, lyric coloratura soprano, will be presented in a concert at Northeast Louisiana State College under the auspices of Delta Rho Delta National business and professional women's sorority announced at the regular business meeting of the sorority held in the home of Mrs. Paul Adams on Speed Drive on Monday evening.

Mrs. Adams greeted guests at the door and invited them in the cool reception room where summer flowers were placed at vantage points.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the Code of Ethics by Miss Ella Pearl Sutton followed by the reading of May minutes by the secretary, Miss Mary Ann Ashford. The report of the audit committee, headed by Miss Mary Louise Farr, was read and approved. Miss Johnnie Floyd gave a report of the finances.

The ardhon set up the following committees for the year 1951-1952: ways and means: Miss Mary Louise Farr, chairman; Miss Ella Pearl Sutton, Miss Janet Shepard; social activities; Mrs. Paul Adams, chairman; Miss Bernice McCray, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Taylor, Mrs. Bertah Patterson, Miss Elizabeth Stringer, Miss Teresa Thomisee, Miss Betty Waddill; Visiting committee: Miss Ann Mickel, chairman ;Miss Ruby Warner, Miss Marjorie Ewing, Miss Lillie Glenn, Miss Genevive White; telephone and House: Mrs. Jean Boyce, chairman; Mrs. French, Miss Mary Riser, Miss Wilma Smith, Miss Betty Richardson, Miss Katherine Buckley; Social Service: Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick, chairman; Mrs. Cascille Golson, Mrs. Bonnoe Williams, Miss Mary Ann Ashford, Miss Johnnie Floyd.

Miss Lillie Glenn will serve as Director of Publicity for Sigma chapter for the ensuing year.

Several projects were discussed at this time as a means of raising money for the many social service activities of Sigma chapter. The various committees will meet and the projects will be announced in the early fall when the lecture program goes into effect.

The main project for the summer months is the sponsoring of Miss Margaret Kalil in July. Tickets for the event will be on sale at the downtown stores and may be obtained from any member of Delta Rho Delta.

At this time Miss Freeda Mickel extended to members of Sigma chapter her thanks and appreciation for the splendid cooperation given in selling tickets to the showing of the great "Caruso" at the Tem Theater, which benefited the Ouachita Parish chapter of Infantile Paralysis.

Mrs. Julia Morrow Gilmer, prominent speaker, dramatist and literary critic from Shreveport, will be present in a book review on Monday evening at the Virginia Hotel. Friends of Delta Rho Delta are invited to hear this outstanding speaker.

A conversational hour followed the meeting and Mrs. Adams served delicious refreshments to the following members present: Mrs. W. Fields, Miss Mary Ann Ashford, Miss Teresa Thomisee, Mrs. Gretchen Mogoffin, Miss Marjorie Ewing, Miss Ella Pearl Sutton, Miss Lillie Glenn, Miss Rreeda Mickel and Mrs. Adams.

PIANO STUDENTS

Miss June Mercer (left) and Miss Shirley Chancellar (right), two accomplished piano pupils, who have been studying with Mrs. George Wallis of Bastrop for the past several years, are taking a special summer course with Mrs. Thelma Oseland of this city. Delta Rho Delta Presents Noted Reviewer Monday

Mrs. Julia Morrow Gilmer Will Be Guest Speaker At Sorority Meeting

The Cameo Room in the Virginia Hotel will be the scene on Monday evening, June 25, at 8:00 p.m., of a book review when Sigma chapter of Delta Rho Delta National Business and Professional Women's sorority will present Julia Morrow Gilmer, of Shreveport, La., one of the foremost authorities and lecturers on current books.

Mrs. Gilmer has chosen for her book on Monday evening "The Re-Discovery of T. Scott Fitchgerald."

Mrs. Gilmer, wife of a prominent Shreveport physician, popular dramatist, feature writer and literary critic comes to Monroe with a background of many appearances at various clubs, churches and civic organizations and with a successful competition with the foremost book reviews of the south. Her work as lecturer has extended over many parts of Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana. She lectures with notes and will give a dramatized version of her book review. She illustrates each chapter within sight of her audience and interprets each step as she proceeds, a combined lecture and review. Her success with her unique book reviews has earned her "repeat" with large audiences at some of the most sophisticated societies in the south.

Her reviews are such that everyone will enjoy and remember them.

Delta Rho Delta members extended a cordial invitation to members of other book clubs in the twin cities to be their guest on Monday evening and hear this outstanding speaker.

ENGAGED

Miss Mary Lou Jowers, daughter of Mr. R. L. Jowers and the late Mrs. Jowers of Rayville, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Ellis Bairnsfather, son of Mrs. Chloe Bairnsfather, of this city, is announced today. The wedding will be solemnized at four o'clock June 30th at the First Presbyterian church in Alto.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

In recent articles we have been discussing the choice of your first discard. There are times when you should discard from strength (three or more of a kind) and times when you should discard from weakness (no more cards to match the discard). Your choice should depend mostly on the nature of your hand.

Sometimes you are dealt a clear cut offensive hand; sometimes a clear cut defensive hand. Most of the time you are dealt a hand that isn't much of anything, and you must wait for the hand to take on a real character during the early part of the play.

An obvious offensive hand is one that gives you an excellent chance to win the discard pile very quickly. Naturally you must have the count. Equally naturally, you must have several different pairs.

When the count is only 50 points the ideal hand is five pairs and a joker. Low pairs are better than high pairs because low cards are usually discarded more freely than high cards.

You will seldom get the perfect hand, but you don't have to wait for perfection. Four pairs plus the count is a very fine hand and even three pairs plus the count is a good offensive combination.

With any such hand you should begin a campaign to win the discard pile. Keep your pairs and try to accumulate new pairs. It may be necessary to discard from three of a kind when you have such a hand (provided that this discard does not give up the count.)

Such a discard from strength serves three purposes. It may induce the player at your right to match the discard — in which case you will take the pack at once. It makes room in your hand for new pairs. Finally, it is probably the safest discard you can make. The next player is less likely to have a matching pair when you discard from three of a kind than when you discard a singleton.

A defensive hand is one that offers a good play for a fast out and very little play for winning the discard pile. For example, you might hold four cards of one kind, three cards of another kind, and one or two wild cards.

Such a hand will produce a canasta very quickly if your partner can add to either meld. It is not much good for wining the pack since you have only two pairs. The enemy is unlikely to throw a card that you can pick up.

With such a hand, you discard odd cards and keep building up your hand. When possible you will make the initial meld, especially if you can do so without having to use your wild cards.

Mr Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

In 1950, Americans consumed 169,545,152 gallons of distilled spirits. This is an average per capita consumption of 1.14 gallons.

Miss Oda Roberts And Glover Rockett Take Wedding Vows

Candlelight and white flowers filled the chapel of the First Methodist Church, Friday evening, June 1, when Miss Oda Roberts, daughter of Mrs. Walter Anderson of Texarkana, Ark., and France Roberts of Dallas, Texas, became the bride of Glover Otta Rockett, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rockett, Sr. of Spearsville. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. C. Smith of Bernice, at seven o'clock before an altar of white gladioli and stock against green fern.

Mrs. H. L. Booth at the organ presented a program of nuptial music and also accompanied H. L. Booth who sang "Because" and "I Love Thee",. The traditional wedding march was played.

The bride, given in marriage by Wilton Sutton, wore a summer ballerina-length bridal dress of white net with full circular skirt and a bodice of crushed net which gave an off-shoulder effect. Her finger tip veil flared from a coronet of white seed pearls and lace and she carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Miss Anne Prosser, maid of honor and only attendant of the bride, wore a dress of white embossed organdy over light aqua with a white organdy duster. Her bouquet was made of white asters.

Preceding the ceremony the candles were lighted by Miss Eva Dean Cox, while Mrs. Booth played softly "Clair de Lune." Her dress was of deep aqua lace and she carried a white candle circled by white split carnations.

Best man was J. T. Rockett, Jr., of Spearsville, brother of the bridegroom, and ushers were Mack Cole of Shreveport and George Breazeal of Spearsville.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Mae Roberson and Mrs. Wilton Sutton were hostesses at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith. Beautiful arrangements of white gladioli daisies, and white stock decorated the home.

Welcoming guests at the door were Mrs. Roberson and Mrs. Kathleen Cain who presented them to the bridal party which consisted of the bride and bridegroom, the attendants, the bride's mother, Mrs. Anderson, and bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Rockett.

Mrs. Fred Griffin had charge of the guest's book.

White tapers in crystal candelabrum shed soft light on the three tiered wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom on one end of the table. A crystal punch bowl was on the other end and the center piece was a lovely arrangement of lilies and white carnations. The table was laid with a white imported cut work table cloth.

Mrs. Mae Roberson, Mrs. Kathleen Cain and Mrs. Wilton Sutton alternated at the cake and punch bowl. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Don Lper, Mrs. L. L. Kincade, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Sr. and Mrs. Fred Griffin.

Immediately following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Rockett left for a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo. For traveling the bride chose a navy blue suit with matching accessories, and an orchid corsage from her bouquet.

Upon their return the young couple will be at home in Spearsville.

Make Opponent Pay Dearly As Possible

By Oswald Jacoby

"You had a lot of nerve bidding six spades," North said to East after today's hand had been played and the smoke had cleared away. "You couldn't make six spades, you know."

East just nodded amiably. He knew perfectly well that six spades would have been set. He suspected as much when he bid six spades—but he went ahead and bid the slam anyway.

Opening lead—♠ A

The reason was very simple. The bidding of South and North made it perfectly plain that they were determined to play the hand at hearts. East therefore made it as expensive as possible by pushing them to seven hearts.

South knew that he couldn't lose much at seven hearts. If North had a high diamond or two, besides the high hearts already indicated, the sacrifice might turn out to be very cheap. The opponents would score over 1600 points if they made six spades, and a sacrifice bid of seven hearts was a good insurance policy against such a disaster.

Was South foolish for bidding seven hearts against a slam that couldn't actually be made? He felt a bit sorry when the hand was over, but he didn't feel foolish.

He thought that the opponents had at least an even chance to make their slam. If good opponents bid ten hands in that way it would be reasonable to assume that they could make five of the ten slams.

If South passed all ten slams, the opponents would wind up scoring about 1600 points on five hands and losing 100 points on the other five hands, for a net score of about 7500 points. If South bid seven hearts against each slam he would lose a maximum of 500 points per hand. In ten hands he would be 2500 points better off.

This argument doesn't alter the fact that East made a fine stab at six spades. He knew exactly what would go through South's mind, and he deliberately gave South the chance to make the obvious sacrifice bid.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

North, 1 Diamond; East, Pass; South, 1 Spade; West, Pass.

North, 2 Clubs; East, Pass; South, ?

You, South, hold: A-Q-10-8-3-Hearts 7-6-2, Diamonds 8-5-4, Clubs K-J. What do you do?

A—Bid two spades. You have a fairly strong major suit, and possibly North can raise when it has been rebid. If North has a near-minimum, he can probably pass two spades comfortably enough. If he rebids in the minors, you will sell out.

Today's Question

Q—The bidding has been:

North, 1 Diamond; East, Pass; South, 1 Spade; West, Pass.

North, 2 Clubs; East, Pass; South, ?.

You, South, hold: A-Q-10-8-3, Hearts K-J-2, Diamonds 8-5-4, Clubs J-6. What do you do?

Officer C. W. Hand, shown above on his three-wheel motorcycle, has been a member of the Monroe Police department for five years. Hand, an officer in the traffic department, is responsible for placing tickets on automobiles found violating the parking limit, conduct of funeral precessions, parades, and apprehension of motorists found violating other traffic ordinances. The traffic officer started out in the department walking the night five-point beat, and was later transfered to the uptown beat during the day. Hand won first place in the tyro shooting matches at the annual Louisiana Peace Officers convention held recently in Lafayette. He is the father of two children, a daughter 14 and a son 8, and resides at 118 Masonic street. (Staff Photo by Marvin DuBos)

Advertising Cost Cut By High Income Tax Rates

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on the relation of advertising to income tax for which J. S. Garelick, local certified public accountant, is the source of information.)

By Margaret Gambrell
(Of the Morning World Staff)

With ever increasing taxes—now at an all-time high—businessmen throughout the country are relying more and more on certified public accountants for advise on tax matters.

This week in an interview with J. S. Garelick, one of Monroe's most prominent accountants, the effect of advertising on income tax was found to be astounding.

Mr. Garelick, a graduate of New York University who has been practicing here since 1927, pointed out that advertising expenses are deductible regardless of whether the business is operating or temporarily closed.

This, he said, gives the company a chance to keep its name before the public.

"If this results in a net operating loss, the company can carry it back to 1950 and if that is in excess of the 1950 income, it can be carried forward for five years," explained Mr. Garelick.

"In other words, a loss sustained in 1951 can be carried back one year and carried forward five years."

A corporation earning less than $25,000 pays 25 cents of each dollar in income tax, while acorporation earning over $25,000 pays 47 cents of each dollar in excess of $25,000.

Seventy-seven cents of each dollar made in excess of $25,000 by a corporation subject to excess profits tax is paid in income tax.

Pointing out the effect advertising has on income tax, Garelick stated, if a corporation whose earnings are less than $25,000 spends an additional $1,000 for advertising and realizes no additional income, it loses $750. If it earns an additional $1,000 it breaks even. If it increases its profits by $2,000, the corporation realizes a net increase in profits, after taxes, of $750.

A larger corporation whose earning are in excess of $25,000, but is not subject to excess profits tax can spend an additional $1,000 for advertising and realize no additional income. It loses $530 Garelick said.

If this corporation earns an additional $1,000 it breaks even, however if it increases its profits by $2,000, it realizes a net increase in profits, after taxes, of $530.

A corporation whose earnings are in excess of $25,000 and is also subject to excess profits tax can spend an additional $1,000 for advertising and realize no additional income, it loses $230.

If it earns an additional $1,000 it breaks even and if it increases its earnings by $2,000, it realizes a net income in profits, after taxes, of $230. It was pointed out by Garelick if this type corporation is under the maximum tax rate of 62 per cent, it risks losing $380 or earning $380.

The accountant explanied that if a business is owned by an individual proprietor, it risks anywhere from 20 to 87 per cent, depending upon his earnings but it can also earn anywhere from 20 to 87 per cent also depending upon his earnings.

When questioned about corporations in the $50,000 bracket, not subject to excess profits tax, Garelick said if they decided to spend an additional $5,000 for advertising, the tax on this $5,000 would be $2,350.

If the corporation did not spend this $5,000, it would increase its net earnings by $2,650, Garelick said.

On the other hand, if this $2,650 was paid out in dividends to a stockholder who is in the 50 per cent tax bracket, he would realize a net income of $1,325.

"In other words," Garelick said, "the expenditure of $5,000 for advertising would cost the stockholder $1,325."

If this case was subject to excess profits, the net cost to the stockholder would be $575.

If an individual proprietorship expects to earn $50,000 and decides to spend an additional $5,000 for advertising, assuming that he is a married man in the 59 per cent bracket, this $5,000 will only cost him $2,050.

Garefick points out that by advertising businessmen can cut down on their income tax and at the same time benefit by keeping their name before the public.

IN BIG ATTACK

A Monroe resident Friday received the distinction of being the first Louisiana naval air reservist to be identified in a navy combat dispatch. He is Lt. James C. Ussery. His unit fighter squadron 821, was called to active duty from the New Orleans Naval Air Station in August, 1950. The dispatch—bearing a June 8 dateline "with task force 77 in Korean waters"—noted: "A U. S. S. Princeton flight including Lt. James C. Ussery of Monroe, La., former week-end warrior, teamed up with a striking force from the carrier U. S. S. Bon Homme Richard in an attack on the Chorwan approaches to the Red 'Iron Triangle' in Korea." Many of the original members of Ussery's squadron, the navy said, have been transferred to other duty. Mrs. Ussery, the former Miss Jo Ann Guerriero, and two children, Sandy and Jim, are residing in Monroe.

Farm real estate in the United States is estimated to have a total value of about $69,000,000,000.

14-Year-Old Ruston Youth Owns And Operates Circus

Hank Fraser Is Youngest Of Circus Historical Society; Has Collected And Assembled Three-Ring Circus For Five Years

For fun, for thrills, for the best of entertainment, come to Fraser Brothers' miniature circus.

This small three-ring show is owned and operated by 14-year-old Hank Fraser, of Ruston. He has been assembling his collection for five years and is, at present, registered on the rolls of the Circus Historical Society, a national collectors' organization, as its youngest boy member.

Beginning his hobby at the age of nine when he first became interested in circuses, Hank has developed his miniature show from six small dime store trucks, which he painted with red and silver fingernail polish, into an outfit which includes a big-top program of 17 acts, a side show, a menagerie of around 100 animals, and a fleet of almost 50 trucks and wagons. He has built and painted most of the equipment himself.

The program for the Fraser Brothers' show resembles that of any other true show. Described on a type-written handbill, it consists of 17 acts (called displays in circus language) and a grand finale. It takes place under a big-top tent that was made and scaled to size by his mother.

In the first display, Fraser Brothers' presents its pageant entitled "When The Circus Comes to Town." According to the program, it is "when the performers and horses pulling large cages parade around the arena." During this time the band, a record, is playing the traditional circus numbers.

Audiences will be entertained in the second act by a "mixed group of life size carboard Royal Bengal tigers and African lions, all in one steel barred arena."

In addition to this performance, individual animal displays are given. One of the most unusual of these animal acts is the one which stars Big Daisy, an elephant. With a strip of yellow fringe tacked around her waist, she is supposed to do a graceful sort of Hula dance.

The equipment used in an act Hank entitled "the world renowned Virginia Wardad presents her one-foot hanging act, high in the top of the big tent." The trapeze from which she hangs is a bicycle tire chain. Virginia Wardad, herself, is a tiny ballarina dancing doll, whose curved foot fits securely into an opening in the chain. Miss Wardad is found to be a very versatile performer, for, later in the show, she balances on one foot while riding a horse around the ring.

Laughs for the big-top show are to be derived from the "Congress of Clowns," which appears four times in all. In one act, they are to be driving a car, in another, they are on a bandwagon.

The grand finale for the show is based around a group of Royal Mounted police figurines. They constitute the main theme of the show.

All of these acts, it is understood, are not supposed to actually take place. This only means that Hank has the equipment and human and animal figurines necessary to reproduce them in miniature.

This is also true in his six-act side show. In this, perhaps, Hank has shown the most originality n his ideas. The platforms for his attractions are fashioned from cigar box wood. His fat man, called "Big Sam," is a painted salt and pepper shaker. Olaf Johnson from Sweden, the giant, is a large sized doll that was once mounted on a toy horse. The human torso is an armless and legless small plastic figurine. In his sword act, Jack Smith lies in a small medicine box. Pins, serving as swords, are run through the box. Virginia Wardad takes time out from her big - top performances to show her skill as a snake charmer, and allows snakes molded of modeling clay, to be wrapped around her body. Hank uses his performers in both big-top and side shows because he does not have enough miniature figurines at present.

Small pieces of canvas are cut and painted to serve as banners advertising the show. Hank has also painted bubble pipes a silver shade to resemble loudspeakers and spotlights.

At the present time Hank is making big plans to expand and enlarge his collection, and hopes some day to have it ready for exhibition. It seems that he wishes to make a sort of sideline career of his work through the years.

"In fact," he stated, "I expect I'll be fooling around with it all my life."

Today we think of the Twin Cities area as being highly industrialized and civilized. It may come as a surprise to note that in 1790 the inhabitants of this area considered it such a wilderness that they needed fortifications to brotect themselves from the Indians.

An old French document, written by the inhabitants of the Ouachita Post on August 29, 1790 asking the commander, Jean Filhiol to establish a fort for the protection of their wives and children while they were away during the hunting season, is recorded in the Ouachita Parish clerk of court's office.

Fort Miro, as it was named by the settlers, was located on the exact spot where the Monroe Steam Laundry, South Grand street, is situated at the present time. The definite location was established by John R. Humble of Monroe after many years of study of old documents.

The document, which was translated from French to English by Mrs. Alf Reid, reads as follows:

"To Monseigneur Jean Filhiol, the commander of the post of Ouachita.

"The undersigned citizens of the post petition, saying:

"That this section having become for some time the great landing place of several Indian Tribes, who under pretext of hunting, by mutual understanding, remain here during two thirds of the year considering that your petitioners are in such small numbers, scattered and absent from home during the hunting season, which is when the said Indians are most numerous, their families and what they possess are exposed to insults and raids by the marauders.

"Thus they accustomed themselves and nothing has happened until now, thanks to the fine spirit in which you have maintained them, and the orderliness that you have established (not to taste liquor). But, sir, that security in which your petitioners were beginning to resign themselves is breaking; the enemies of which there is no apprehension on this river; penetrated it and pillaged the camps of Mr. Archer last winter.

"The chiefs that we were mingling with, whom we were accustomed to see without fear, have begun to disagree among themselves because a certain blonde scalp, which we saw with them when they were going out above the Ouachita, according to the report of Mr. Menard, was that of an American who was with Michel L'Allemand, whom we suspected to have fallen by the hands of these savages. Shall we not guard ourselves for fear they will carry on to such a point that we will be plundered and annhilated? These attacks occurred last winter in the supper section of the river, but what guarantee have we that those hordes of enemies will not fall upon us again next winter? The eve that most of us leave for the woods to hunt for furs to provide our needs; we tremble with fear of finding on our return our families beheaded; and our home sacked; and what assurance have we that the ravagers will not be detected while we are here?

It is, sir, a sad plight that confronts us; our suppliants relate their conditions, like their gentle Father, would convince you that you will employ all the powers at your disposal to relieve the suffering under the circumstances.

Your petitioners believe that nothing will quiet them more than to see a fort erected in their midst, in case of alarm, they are certain that their families and their children will find it an assured refuge of safety, and all gathered there, they would still be able to guard their possessions from devastation against the enemy that does not like resistance. Your petitioners now ask of You:

Be so kind, sir, as to lend yourself to their desires and to do what you think wisest so that it may be done by the end of next October. Eace One offers and obligates himself to contribute according to his means and will offer prayers for conservation.

The petition was signed by the following men: Badins, De La-Baume, Francois Cave, Francois Duval, Bpte. Prudhome, Baltazar Foguel, Cabilier du Champignol, Pre. Preve, Bte. Maconce, Vincente Michele, Auguste Roye, Bte. Janot, Louis Francisco, Tupar, Francois Moron, Joseph Itier, and Louis Chauvin.

These French names have long faded away from North Louisiana.

Addict Tells Horrors Of Dope Habit

Pittsburgh—Did you ever wonder what it would be like to take dope?

Here's how one drug addict described his horrible ordeal during a two-month-long binge on heroin. Haggard and stooped, the 21-year-old former athlete said he became an addict after meeting other addicts and a drug peddler while working at a used car lot.

"Before I knew it I was on the stuff," he said. "It calmed me. In fact, it numbed all the organs in my body. I was immune to pain. After six or eight hours, though, the stuff would wear off and my nerves would be worse than ever.

"I discovered the only thing that could help was another shot. The more I took the more I needed and the worse my nerves got. Pretty soon I began to feel other symptoms.

"For instance, I couldn't sleep. I got addicted to sleeping pills, too. I lost my appetite. The first thing I got up in the morning, I had to have some. While the stuff was working I would sulk and want to be by myself or in the company of other dopeheads.

"When the effect wore off, the torture started. Pain would hit me in the back first, then my stomach would roll around like jelly. I'd get diarrhea.

"Then I noticed I was getting immune to the dope. I was taking ten capsules a day but no matter how many I took, the pains and nausea began coming more frequently.

"I asked my brother to help me. He took what was left of the heroin and got rid of it. Then my family called a doctor.

"I'm through with the stuff. I'm going to take treatments and I've been told I can be cured.

"I'm telling this story so others won't kid themselves, as I did, into thinking they can handle any kind of narcotics."

MORRISON BACKS REP. HALE BOGGS

Representative Says He Will Stump State For Orleans Congressman

By B. N. Timmons

Rep. James Morrison, who has been a stormy petrel in Louisiana politics for years, today joined those indorsing Rep. Hale Boggs of New Orleans for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Morrison not only issued a statement announcing his intention of supporting Boggs for the nomination, but added that he will actively stumpt the state for the New Orleans congressman next fall.

Meanwhile, Boggs will fly to New Orleans Sunday and make a state-wide radio speech Monday night. He said, however, that he will not actually begin his campaign until after Labor Day. It is expected that he will be accompanied by Sen. Russell Long on his major speaking tour of the state, with both men talking from the same platform.

In his statement today, Morrison said:

"I have definitely decided to support Hale Boggs for governor in the coming gubernatorial election. There were many factors that caused me to make this decision. Hale Boggs in my humble opinion will make an outstanding governor. He has the ability and integrity and above all else love and appreciation for his fellowman.

His work here in the nation's capital has been outstanding. Both Democrats and Republicans have profound respect for Hale Boggs. His congressional work was so meritorious and he put forth such a tremendous congressional effort that he was awarded by the leadership a most enviable position; member of the ways and means committee which is considered a most coveted assignment.

"Naturally with the years that we have spent together here in Washington I have had the opportunity to closely watch the record and ability of Congressman Boggs. On many occasions we have worked together on vital interests which were of utmost importance to the state of Louisiana. On all occasions Boggs put Louisiana above everything else and time and time again has demonstrated and shown that he is an outstanding member of congress.

"In his last two campaigns for reelection he received the backing of both factions.

"In his long experience as a public servant he has demonstrated that he could cooperate and aid people in all walks of life having served both rural parishes in New Orleans and the city itself in his capacity as a congressman.

"I believe that the people of this state find themselves in an exceptional position at this time to elect an outstanding man for governor. By supporting and electing Hale Boggs governor of this state the people of Louisiana will have a dependable, industrious, sympathetic governor who will be able to solve the many and difficult problems that we will face in the coming years. I feel sure in my humble opinion that he will make us one of the best governors we have ever had. I intend to make an active campaign on behalf of Hale Boggs and I expect to join Sen. Russell Long and speak from the stump from time to time in his behalf."

NEW FISH BAIT—BAYOU BOOGIE 500

Anthony Danna, a talented Monroe commercial artist whose favorite hobby is fishing is shown spraying his newest bass bait the Bayou Boogie 500. Danna is now making fish baits commercially in his shop at 1511 Jackson street and distributing them to dealers throughout Louisiana and Arkansas. Monroe Angler Makes Bait-Bayou Boogie 500

Anthony Danna Puts New Fish Bait On Market; Sells To Jobbers And Dealers In Arkansas And Louisiana

By Margaret Gambrell
(Of The Morning World Staff)

Ever tried the Bayou Boogie 500 for bass? It's said to be a sure bet when spoons and wigglers fail.

Made by a local angler—Anthony Danna of 1511 Jackson street—the new bait is designed especially for Louisiana bayous and river lakes.

Danna, a 36-year-old commercial artist whose hobby has been fishing for a number of years, originated the Bayou Boogie for his own personal use. Later eager fishermen heard of the bait and persuaded Danna to make duplicates.

The demand for his latest bait the Bayou Boogie 500 is so great, he says, "I'm going to have to get some help to fill the orders."

FIRST BAIT

Danna, a graduate from the Chicago Art Institute, returned to Monroe after his discharge from the service. Undecided whether to return to the institute for a refresher course, he began to catch up on fishing and experimenting with flies and plugs.

After experimenting with the plugs, he hit upon Bayou Boogie. Friends began using the bait and soon he was supplying local dealers. For the first couple years it went over well and he began to sell to big jobbers.

Danna pointed out he was limited in his advertising and consequently after a while the sales dropped.

NEW 500 SERIES

With encouragement from friends and fellow-fishermen, Danna continued his experiments and made the new Bayou Boogie 500.

"It seems to have caught on from the beginning," Danna says, "now it looks like I have more than I can handle from local, out-of-town dealers and jobbers."

"For five years, I've worked with baits with little success and now over night I'm swamped with orders," explains Danna.

Danna's first workshop was located in the garage, but with increased demands for baits, he constructed a three-room frame workshop for his equipment and materials.

USES PLASTIC

Plastic for the baits comes from Chicago. When Danna makes a special bait, he takes a trip to Chicago with the wooden model from which a mold is duplicated.

Duplicates of the mold are delivered to Danna who then proceeds to insert lead inside the baits and bind them together.

He buys his lead in coils and cuts it in the proper proportions for the baits.

Later he drills holes for screws, after settling on the proper amount of lead to be used in determining the depth for fishing.

After the plastics have been glued, he begins the tedious job of painting. A spray gun is provided for this and the baits are also dipped.

Among the equipment in Danna's shop are pressers, grinders, sanders, air compressors, spray guns and drying racks, from which the baits hang and dry.

The new Bayou Boogie 500 is being made in six different colors and one size.

MOVES HERE

Born in Homestead, Penn., Danna moved to Monroe in 1932, after 14 years in Indianapolis.

He graduated from Neville High school and went directly to the Chicago Art Institute where he studied five years.

For a year and a half, he worked in an art studio and in 1941 became a paratrooper. In the service for four years and four months, Danna came back to his home here before continuing his career as an artist.

Fascinated with fishing, he began experimenting with various baits and soon found all his spare time was taken up making plugs for friends.

Danna plans to advertise his baits in all national sporting magazines and soon have them on the market in cities throughout the country. He does all of his own art work on the fish bait boxes and the advertisements.

At present, he is only selling to dealers and jobbers in Louisiana and Arkansas.

Describing his work with fish baits, Danna declares, "I'm doing it principally because I like it."

WOUNDED

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon West, Route 3, West Monroe, have been notified by Major General Bergen that their son, Pfc. Auley West, was wounded May 31. From the battlefield Pfc. West was taken to the third station hospital in Pusan temporarily, and from there flown to the army hospital in Tokyo. He was in the seventh infantry regiment, third infantry division. He graduated from Ouachita Parish High School in 1949 and entered the army in June, 1950. His brother, Pfc. Murray West, is stationed in Korea with the 37th preventive medical company.

LEBLANC TO DISCUSS SPECIAL SESSION

Lafayette, La., June 23.—(Special)—Sen. Dudley J. LeBlanc announced today that he would discuss "The Special Session" in a broadcast over a statewide radio network.

Sunday at the special session of the state legislature Senator LeBlanc of Abbeville introduced a resolution asking the Honorable R. B. Richardson, chairman of the highway commission to furnish members of the senate with the "amount of money in dollars and cents in the highway treasury." The resolution also asked for specific information on various road projects being considered for construction and for which funds had been earmarked. LeBlanc explained that he wanted this information so he could intelligently vote on the proposed legislation on highway construction.

The resolution was rejected by the senate body by a vote of 28 to 6. At the following session when LeBlanc attempted to explain his reasons for introducing the resolution the senate body voted a "gag" rule and refused to let him speak. Senator LeBlanc's broadcoast will be heard over radio station KMLB at 12:00 to 12:30 Sunday noon.

Prince To Get Little Pomp From Belgium

When young Prince Baudouin becomes the fifth king of the Belgians July 17, he may do so in a ceremony as simple as the inaugural of a president of the United States.

The world will probably call it a coronation. But Belgium has no crown—and no tradition for pomp and display when her kings ascend the throne. If Prince Baudouin follows Belgian tradition, he will simply appear before both houses of parliament, and taken an oath of allegiance to his country.

Prince Baudouin, who is now 29, is a prince of mystery. Even the eight and a half million people he will rule, know very little about him although he has been their chief of state since last August, when his father handed over his powers to him.

Leopold had tried to return to the throne himself after World War II. But the Belgians were bitter over his unconditional surrender to the Germans, when the Nazis invaded neutral Belgium. The country split on the question of his return to the throne; and after a series of strikes and riots, Leopold handed over his powers to his eldest son, who became chief of state.

Baudouin was then a tall, lanky, serious, bespectacled boy of 19. He made a visit to the United States a few years before and talked to quite a few Americans in Miami and Pittsburgh. But to many Belgians he was a stranger, for he had grown up during the war and had even spent some time outside the country.

After he took over the powers of state, they learned more about him. He takes his job seriously and works hard at what he has to study. But he has little time for social affairs—considers them only a duty. For fun he much prefers swimming, skiing and golf.

STARTS THURSDAY AT JOY

JACK CARSON ropes GINGER ROGERS in this scene from "THE GROOM WORE SPURS," presented by Universal-International.

Jane Wyman, Van Johnson Starred In New Comedy, 'Three Guys Named Mike'

Romantic Activities Of Airline Stewardess Basis For Film At Joy

The career and extra-curricular romantic activities of an airline stewardess form the novel and engaging subject of M-G-M's "Three Guys Named Mike," current attraction at the Joy Theatre.

Jane Wyman is cast as the picture's appealing heroine, with the three guys named Mike played respectively by Van Johnson as a shy graduate research student in chemistry, Howard Keel as a virile American Airlines pilot, and Barry Sullivan as a suave advertising executive.

In a fast-moving narrative punctuated with sparkling diologue and infectious humor, the story depicts Miss Wyman's rigorous training as an airline stewardess, her preliminary blunders after she graduates from the training school and gets her first job on the plane piloted by Keel, and the subsequent career in which she proves herself not only a knowing and efficient sky-riding hostess but also the apple of the eye of the pilot, the chemistry researcher and the successful ad man. It takes a spectacular free-for-all, no holds-barred fight upon the part of the trio of male suitors before Miss Wyman can decide which she wants as her partner for life and we think it only fair to let the spectator follow the outcome for himself, rather than give away the ending.

What we can tell you, however, is that the Academy Award-winning Miss Wyman has one of her most ingratiating roles as the heroine, Marcy, who shows herself to be adept at handling any emergency that can occur among passengers in an airplane — including that of keeping away the inevitable "wolves." It is a captivating performance filled with bounce, bouyant humor and charm.

'THE THING' PLAYS PARAMOUNT SCREEN

Hailed as one of the most suspenseful pictures ever made, Howard Hawks' production, "The Thing," offers a cast of brilliant new faces in an amazing story of a terrifying visitor from the sky.

The thrilling melodrama opening a three day run at the Paramount Theatre has its locale near the North Pole, at a base where a group of American scientists are investigating Arctic phenomena. When a mysterious space-ship crashes near by, the scientists radio the air force field at Achhorage, Alaska, and a group of army fliers arrive on the scene.

The space-ship is accidentally destroyed, but one of its "crew" is rescued and taken to the base. The subsequent thrilling developments take the form of conflict between the scientific group who wish to study the fearsome "thing," and the Air Force captain who realizes it poses a terrible threat to all civilization and wants to destroy it while there is yet time.

Kenneth Tobey, as the captain, and Margaret Sheridan, as the pretty secretary of the scientific group, head this competent cast of newcomers, which Producer Howard Hawks hand-picked for his unique offering via Winchester Pictures Corporation. Dewey Martin and James Young as two of the fliers, Douglas Spencer as a newspaperman, and Robert Cornthwaite, Eduard Franz and John Dierkes as scientists have the other top parts along with Jim Arness, who has the title role.

Stone Ave. Church To Have Revival

Beginning Monday evening at 7:30 each evening through Saturday, revival services will be held, at Stone Avenue Methodist Church. This will be the 'old time religion' type revival. The truth will be fearlessly spoken and testified to. We have faith in the efficacious blood of Christ to save the most sinful. To reclaim the backslider and to strengthen the obedient. There is power in the blood. If you are seeking the truth, as it is contained in the gospel of Christ Jesus, come with us, attend these services. Rev. Tilman Brown, pastor of the Brownville Methodist Church, West Monroe, will bring the messages.

The auditorium is equipped for your comfort.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT

Tyrone Power and Susan Hayward are the young couple who find one another when fate brings them together in a fierce encounter with desperadoes in the Suspense drama "Rawhide" starting a four day engagement at the Paramount Theatre Wednesday.

Power, Hayward Coming In 'Rawhide,' Action-Packed Western Adventure Film

Impressive Supporting Cast In Thriller Opening Wednesday At Paramount

Tyrone Power and Susan Hayward, just about tops among movie starring duos, head the cast of the western suspense drama, "Rawhide," which opens Wednesday at the Paramount Theatre. An impressive supporting cast includes Hugh Marlowe, Dean Jagger, Edgar Buchanan and Jack Elam.

"Rawhide" purports to take a new twist on western drama fiction, relating the story of a young man left by circumstances to defend a lonely frontier station of the Overland Mail back in 1880's. His only company is a beautiful young woman with her orphaned niece, and his enemy a band of outlaws led by a crazed murderer. This desperate situation, in which the conflict is viewed within the miniature world of the forlon outpost of Rowhide, is enacted by Power, Miss Hayward, Hugh Marlowe as the killer and Jack Elam as a maddened henchman.

For Tyrone Power, much the world traveler for the filming of "Prince of Foxes," "The Black Rose" and "American Guerrilla in the Philippines," "Rawhide" represents one of his growingly infrequent stops on American soil. Following its completion, Power went to London to appear on the stage in "Mister Roberts" and subsequently in a Twentieth Century-Fox film to be made there, "The House on the Square."

Susan Hayward has climbed to the highest rung of the star ladder by virtue of her performances in "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain" and "I Can Get It For You Wholesale." She will be seen, after "Rawhide," in the much-anticipated "David and Bathsheba.

Hugh Marlowe comes to "Rawhide" fresh from the triumph of "All About Eve" and newcomer Jack Elam from his pronounced success as a new and considerable menace in "Bird of Paradise," though it was for the previously completed "Rawhide" that he was brought to Hollywood. Dean Jagger returned to the studio which brought him new fame and an Academy Award for his performance in "Twelve O'Clock High" to enact another outlaw for Twentieth Century-Fox in "Rawhide." And Edgar Buchanan, a veteran of outdoor epic roles, is seen in the Power-Hayward co-starrer as a grizzly frontiersman who falls victim of desperadoes.

Also featured are George Tobias, Jeff Corey, James Millican and Louis Jean Heydt.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, June 23. — Consider, if you please, the following news announcement, printed in a recent Hollywood trade paper:

"Topicality of teen-age drug addiction as reflected in continuing press exposes across the country has cued Producer-Director Roy del Ruth to reactivate 'Mud.' Yarn, which deals with aspects of the subject, has been owned by del Ruth for several years."

Admittedly, there have been "press exposes" of drug addiction on the part of teen-agers; admittedly those exposes have caused considerable public concern. But I fail to see how such subject matter can be converted into "entertainment," or why any movie producer, in his right senses, should attempt to do so.

Let's suppose, for the sake of being charitable, that del Ruth is not primarily interested in making money; that he is, first of all, inspired by a conviction that his proposed picture will serve a worthwhile purpose by arousing the public to fight against the spread of a monstrous evil.

If that is the case, the records show him to be deluded. The various organizations which have made studies of the effect of such cinematic preachments, are unanimous in declaring that none of them have accomplished such a purpose. Quite the contrary, in fact.

But I'm willing to disregard the question of effectiveness; it seems to me that these "topical" pictures are to be condemnd for an altogether different reason. They fail dismally, as a general rule, to achieve what should be the No. 1 job of any motion picture. They fail to entertain. The fact that the public is interested in a press expose of teen-age drug addiction certainly doesn't mean that the average theater-goer wants to see a picture devoted to the same subject matter.

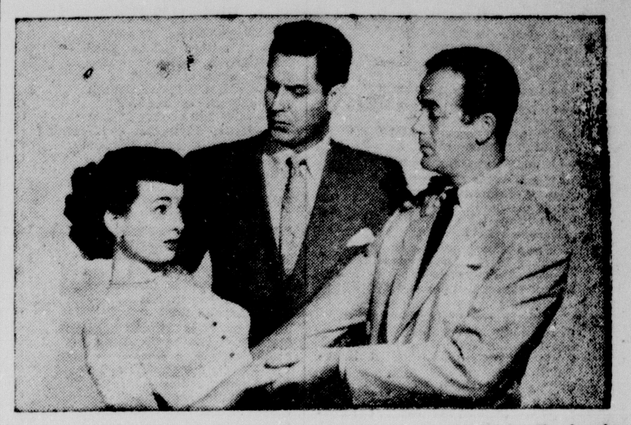

The man who invented the "topical" picture also invented, I think, a formula that has played a major part in emptying American movie theaters.

Preview Nights: Pic of the week: Warner Brothers' "Strangers on a Train" (Farley Granger - Ruth Roman - Robert Walker). A masterly produced murder thriller that will win cheers from all adults whodunit fans. Not suitable for the small fry. . . . Good: RKO's "Happy Go Lovely" (David Niven-Vera-Ellen - Cesar Romero). A made-in-England filmusical, as breezy as its title, that should prove a favorite with American audiences. . . . Paramount's "That's My Boy" (Dean Martin - Jerry Lewis - Ruth Hussey). Hollywood's zaniest comics in a rib-tickler that easily rates as their best to date. . . . 20th Century-Fox's "Take Care of My Little Girl" (Jeanne Crain-Dale Robertson - Mitzi Gaynor - Jean Peters). A controversial story about college sorority life that's sure to stir up heated arguments wherever it's shown. . . . Universal - International's "Comin' Round the Mountain" (Bud Abbott - Lou Costello - Dorothy Shay). Preferred fare for Abbott and Costello addicts — and you should know, by now, whether you like 'em or not. . . . Fair: Columbia's "Two of a Kind" (Edmond O'Brien-Lizabeth Scott-Terry Moore-Alexander Knox). Crime melodrama, good enough to keep you entertained while waiting for the featured attraction. . . . Columbia's "Silver Canyon" (Gene Autry-Pat Buttram-Gail Evans). A giddy-ap that's par for the course. . . . Best Performance: Robert Walker in "Strangers on a Train."

One other picture, previewed during the past week, I've failed to include in the above paragraph of "thumbnail" comment. It's title: "A Streetcar Named Desire."

It tells the story of the moral disintegration of a pretty young school teacher—a girl who tries to hide her uncontrolable nymphomania under a rather transparent veneer of prudishness. Forced out of both her job and her home town when her transgressions are discovered, she takes refuge in the home of her married sister where her brother-in-law quickly realizes her true character.

PLAYING AT THE TEM

What happens when a prudish small-town girl, as played by the lovely and talented Ann Blyth, consents to pose for a city slicker commercial artist, portrayed by handsome Mark Stevens? The amusing and entertaining answer is seen in University-International's new comedy offering, "Katie Did It," which features Cecil Kellaway, Jesse White and Craig Stevens. "Katie Did It" was directed by Frederick de Cordova and produced by Leonard Goldstein.

BLYTH, STEVENS IN 'KATIE DID IT'

New Film, Jam-Packed With Laughs, Opens At Tem Theater Today

Delightful in theme, and jam-packed with laughs from the opening reel to the final fadeout, Universal-International's comedy - romance, "Katie Did It," which opens today at the Tem Theatre, is one of the brightest comedies to come out of the Hollywood film studios this season.

Starring Ann Blyth and Mark Stevens, and featuring such excellent supporting players as Jesse White, Cecil Kellaway, Craig Stevens, William Lynn, Elizabeth Patterson, Jimmy Hunt and Sheila Stevens, the picture revolves around Miss Blyth who has been brought up in a strict manner in a prudish New England town and who falls in love with city slicker Mark Stevens, who portrays a commercial artist.

The romance blossoms brightly until Ann falls victim of false information and believes that Mark is already married and the father of two children.

From then on, it's a sprightly comedy of errors, winding up with a whirlwind finish in which Mark regains Ann's love just as she is about to step to the altar with another man.

Miss Blyth's portrayal of Katie, the little girl with the Mid-Victorian upbringing, is thoroughly delightful, and leading man Mark Stevens offers an excellent performance as the sophisticate who falls in love with the gal from the small town.

Other excellent characterizations are offered by Jesse White as the town tavern-keeper; Cecil Kellaway as Katie's bumbling uncle; Craig Stevens as the son of the town banker, who is also in love with Katie; and William Lynn as the town man-of - all-work.

"Katie Did It," was produced by Leonard Goldstein and directed by Frederick de Cordova.

Hal Boyle's Notebook

New York, June 23.—(AP)—What is the price of Korea? Has the battle there been worthwhile to the United States a year later?

What have we gained? world respect — and time to arm ourselves. And today we have a mighty field army.

What have we lost? Well, more than 70,000 Americans have been hurt or killed or are missing. Along the way some of those 70,000 casualties insisted on going right back up into the fighting, and only in the last few weeks have been rotated home.

The statistics of this engagement that began as a United Nations "police action" are on the staggering side.

We claim we killed or wounded more than a million of the enemy. They don't say. But the ambassador of our south Korean ally says the war so far has cost the lives of 3,000,000 of his people and made 10,000,000 homeless. All of Korea, north and south, has about 30,000,000 people.

From a strictly humanitarian standpoint it therefore appears that we have given more death, misery and confusion to the south Koreans than we have liberty. And we have. That is only fair to say.

But we have kept the pattern of freedom pretty clear in the United States and elsewhere. And under the United Nations flag a solid right block has been thrown into Soviet Russia's attempt to take Asia by force.

History may yet say that his attempt to grab all of Korea by pure muscle was one of Joe Stalin's greatest mistakes. It is there he abandoned promises for attempted performance.

When a fellow has nothing better to deliver than a glamorous promise, he should remain a rainbow man. He should never commit himself.

His mistake: he should have kept on saying what he would do, and kept on not trying to do what he said he would do. A promise to do something is better propaganda in our present world that a real effort to improve a situation. Sad it is; so it is.

Few are left of the two American infantry companies who first engaged and slowed down the north Korean army south of Seoul. It was a spearpoint of 500 men against a mob of 250,000 or more.

They had to take the casualties because there was no one else who could break up the Red tide. They got more blame than credit at the time, but the passage of 12 months has shown they did well—considering.

Those first few who held the Korean dyke until it could be built stronger included a number of teen - age kids who had joined the army for security. The breaking up of their dreams may be a small part of the price of Korea, but it is a big part to the boys who lost those dreams.

In a dozen months a magnificent U. S. - U. N. army has been built up able to stay in Korea as long as it wants to, no matter how many more troops the Chinese may want to waste against it. The story of the Korean campaign has been this: the more they throw against us the less we have massed, we have muscled.

Let none say that Korea was easy. The weather, the filth, the fortitude of the enemy, the fact no end to the campaign was visible—these things made Korea difficult and memorable.

Today we hold a new "Chinese wall" of our own, a steel shell curtain against the iron curtan. Russia's bid by force has been blocked by force.

But the real price of Korea, the fourth costliest war America has fought, is the same old expensive bill paid before — the cost of unpreparedness.

And how can you ever pay back the loyalty of ready men who died to save an unready nation?

LET'S EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. S.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. Psychologist E. Lowell Kelly concluded so from a study of 76 married couples. Husbands and wives rated their happiness; then rated each other on 36 personality traits. Happily married couples had a good opinion of themselves but rated their mates higher. I have a swell opinion of A. E. W., but a sweller opinion of Mrs. A. E. W.—most of the time!

Answer to Question No. 2

2. No. He may be developing creative powers. Psychologist Edith A. Weiskopf, Purdue University, thinks there are four mental stages in developing ideas: preparation, incubation, illumination and verification. Our schools, she thinks, often do not give children time for incubation and illumination. We teach them facts and rush them on to verify these facts, without allowing the slow processes of growth and creation; that is, letting ideas soak in.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. According to Columbia University researcher Phillip Lewis, they are devoting less weekly time. Two years ago students devoted an average of 25 hours; 18 months ago, 23 hours; a year ago, 19 hours. Students in TV English (that's a new one!) reduced their time to 13 hours by being more discriminating. Students found that headaches were caused more by lack of glasses than by TV.

MEMORIAL CHURCH PLANNING SCHOOL

Annual Daily Vacation Bible Group Starts Monday Sessions

The Memorial Methodist Sunday School will conduct its annual Daily Vacation Bible School in the educational building, 401 Sherrouse Ave., beginning Monday, June 25th. The school will be in session five days a week for two weeks, 9:00 to 11:30 a. m., for all boys and girls from 4 years of age through the 6th grade in school.

Rev. Ralph Cain, pastor, announces the following courses:

Beginners — 4 and 5 year olds —"Our Happy World", Mrs. Sidney L. Williams, Mrs. Raymond John, Mrs. F. T. Smith, Jr., Mrs. Henry Mann and Miss Martha Williams.

Primary — 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades — "Our Daily Bread", Mrs. W. G. Miller, Mrs. Ed Rowan, Mrs. J. Herbert Walker, and Miss Annette Moak.

Juniors — 4th, 5th and 6th grades—"Learning to Know the Bible," Mrs. Henry Williams, Mrs. J. Leon Dennis, Mrs. D. E. Gaar, Mrs. E. J. Brown and Miss Frances Shepard.

An invitation to attend is extended to all boys and girls in the above age group, regardless of church affiliation.

The first blood transfusion is believed to have been the one given to Pope Innocent VIII in 1492.

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY

CANNIBALS? DADDY, WHAT'LL WE DO?

WHAT CAN WE DO, JUNE? IF ONLY I HADN'T GOTTEN YOU INTO THIS ··

DR. ARCHER AND HIS DAUGHTER JUNE, EXPLORERS, CAPTURED BY THE "ROPE PEOPLE" IN THEIR CURIOUS TREE-TOP VILLAGE···

I'VE NEVER HEARD OF THE ROPE PEOPLE. WHO ARE THEY, GURAN?

IN THE DEEP WOODS, THE PHANTOM HEARS THE TOM-TOM REPORTS···

DEEP IN THE JUNGLE, BEYOND ROARING WATERS. DANGEROUS FOLK. NO TRIBES GO NEAR THEM, FOR THEY EAT HUMAN FLESH!

CANNIBALS! STRANGE· I'VE NEVER VISITED THEM· BUT IT LOOKS LIKE I'M GOING TO NOW, AND FAST!

THEY ARE CRAFTY FOLK. TAKE SOME OF THE BANDAR WITH YOU.

NO, I'LL TRAVEL FASTER ALONE! STAY, DEVIL! HERO AND I MUST TRAVEL LIKE THE WIND!

WILSON, McCOY 6-24

WATCH YOUR STEP, HERO, THESE ARE THE ROARING WATERS. ONE SLIP AND GOOD-BYE!

THE PHANTOM RACES THRU THE JUNGLE· CROSSES THE FOAMING RAPIDS··

WE'RE BEYOND THE ROARING WATERS! WE MUST BE NEARING THE "ROPE PEOPLE"·· WONDER HOW THEY GOT THAT NAME?

NOW HE MOVES SOFTLY AND CAUTIOUSLY··

··AND HE FINDS OUT AS A LOOP SUDDENLY FALLS ABOUT HIM!
